TALENT ITEMS.

There was a special meeting of the Commercial Club Thursday evening, the main purpose being to plan a method of advertising. The most feasible plan considered for a large circulation was the Sunset plan, as has been taken up by other towns of the state and this valley.

N. O. Powers is reshingling his house.

J. N. Pace is starting the foundation for a new house in the Shideler addition.

The Suncrest orchard shipped a car of Jonathan apples to Germany a few days ago.

F. B. Oatman attended the I. O. O. F. congress of southern Oregon, which was held in Grants Pass last Friday.

The town well has been completed and everything is now ready for the building of the standpipe, which was to be completed by October 20. Evidently they will have to hurry, as the material has not arrived yet. There cannot be anything done for the remainder of the system until the standpipe is completed and the pump installed. E. E. Phipps of Ashland has the contract for putting in the system of pipes.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church are going to give the feed for the voters on election day.

Mrs. C. E. Hoyt of Klamath Falls visited with Mrs. G. A. Gardner last week.

The new seats for the assembly room in the new school building have arrived and will soon be installed. They are of a nice design and will be a much needed improvement over the folding chairs that were put in last year. The folding chairs will be grouped and placed in the gallery, as many as will be needed, and the balance will be used as fillers when needed in the assembly room.

The territory of school districts 8 and 99 was admitted to this district at the last boundary meeting. District 8 is building a new school house.

V. A. Dunlap and wife are visiting friends in Talent. They are making their home at present at San Diego, Cal.

PAY FEUDAL TRIBUTE

Hudson Bay Trading Company to Fulfill Feudal Rite 250 Years Old.

Edmonton, Alta.—Furs of two elks and two black beavers will be presented to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught next summer, when the governor general of Canada visits the northern outskirts of the Hudson's Bay Trading Company. The is not in the nature of a gift, but to carry out, probably for the first time, a provision of the charter of incorporation granted by King Charles to the Gentlemen Adventurers of London on May 2, 1670. This gave to Prince Rupert and his associates "the sole trade and commerce of all those seas, bays, straits, rivers, lakes and creeks lying within the entrance of the straits called Hudson's Straits."

A. F. Fugl of Edmonton, district manager, has tendered one of the company's swiftest steamships, fully manned and equipped, for the novel voyage to the Arctic circle by way of the Mackenzie river. It is expected that the governor general will be accompanied by a party of distinguished men from various parts of the United Kingdom.

The clause in the charter making obligatory upon the Hudson's Bay Company the presentation of furs to the heirs and successors of the merry monarch of the seventeenth century reads as follows:

"We do, by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, make, create and constitute the said governor and company for the time being and their successors, the true and absolute lords and proprietors of the same territory and limits and places and of all other premises, saving always the faith, allegiance and sovereign dominion due to us, our heirs and successors, for the same to have, hold, possess and enjoy the said territory, limits and places * * * to the said governor and company, and their successors forever to be holden to us, our heirs and successors, as of our manor at East Greenwich, in our county of Kent, in free and common socage, and not in capite or by knight's service, yielding and paying yearly to us, our heirs and successors for the same, two elks and two black beavers, whensoever and as often as we, our heirs and successors, shall happen to enter into the said countries, territories and regions, hereby granted."

According to law there is doubt whether the Duke of Connaught would be included as coming under the term heir and successor. It is argued that the expression means the reigning monarch, hence the officials of the Hudson's Bay Company have decided that the words "heirs and successors" are capable of including members of the royal family generally and will so interpret them on the occasion of the governor general's visit to the vast northland.

2 CENTS FOR CONSCIENCE FUND.

Iowa Man Makes a Small Contribution to "Onkel Sam."

Washington, D. C.—After giving personal attention to the letter of a Decorah, Iowa, man who desires to ease his mind by paying the United States 2 cents, Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh removed the minimum limit of 5 cents on "conscience fund" contributions. The letter reads:

"Onkel Sam, United States Treasury: Hereby I send you 2 cents which I owe you by mistake. I were sending a little article with the mail and put a slip of writin in with. After sum time I thought I did not do right and regret. So excuse me."

Chickens Find Gold at Weed.

Weed, Cal., Oct. 10.—Claud Wanacheck, foreman of the box factory, is proudly showing $2 in a small gold nugget taken from the gizzards of six spring chickens recently sold to M's. J. Adams.

While this is proof that there is gold at Weed, the mystery is whether the chickens picked up the gold at Wanacheck's or Adams' place. The discovery has created excitement and several have gone prospecting on both places. One place is in the extreme south section and the other in the extreme northern part of town.

A month ago Mrs. Mary Caldwell found a nugget valued at $2.50.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Official Pamphlet Arguments Answered by O. H. Barnhill.

The world is moving at a rapid rate these days, in more ways than upon its axis. Oregon is preparing to fall into line and join the equal suffrage column. The recall of Mayor Gill of Seattle showed conclusively what women could and would do with the ballot. Even the Oregonian is advocating votes for women, and the shades of Harvey Scott generally know when to stand from under.

There is, however, danger of over-confidence on the part of the friends of this reform. The Oregon anti-slavery party will go the other way next November. The standpatters on this question occupy four times as much space in the official pamphlet as those on the progressive side, which looks as though the latter had failed to take full advantage of their opportunities. So long as Oregon editors pursue their present liberal policy of giving both sides a hearing it should be easy to regain any ground lost.

We are told that "men and women are divinely ordered to be different in the state." The Mormons have a similar way of clinching an argument. They claim to get a special revelation from the New Jerusalem, and that settles it. During the Dark Ages the privileged classes had a good deal to say about the divine right of kings to rule the common people without the latter's consent, but it has been a good while since a similar claim has been made to bolster up the old injustice of one class of citizens refusing to let another class participate in the government. Southern slave holders in ante bellum days told the black men that it was "divinely ordered" that the white men should do the voting while the colored brethren did the work. But the men of the north didn't take much stock in such revelations, which they said came from below instead of above, and we suspect it is much the same with this alleged divine right of one sex to rule the other.

One of the strings upon which the opposition is continually harping is the alleged injustice of forcing the ballot upon women who do not want it. "Imposing a burdensome task" is one way they have of stating the case. In the name of common sense and simple reason, we ask someone to explain by what peculiar mental process it can be figured out that anyone is to be forced or compelled to vote. Those women who do not believe it to be their duty to vote now need not think so then unless they change their minds of their own free will. They will enjoy just as much of their present highly prized "exemption" and cherished "immunity" then as they do now. All that is asked is that those who wish to vote be permitted to do so. No one has any intention of disturbing those who are content to let others do the voting. Be assured, ladies, you will be permitted to rest in peace. Nobody is going to drag you to the polls and force you to cast a ballot. You will be permitted to enjoy just as much exemption from politics as you do now. Participating in government will be entirely a matter of choice and free will.

Women do not need the ballot, we are told, because the vast majority of them are already represented by household suffrage. Admitting, for the sake of argument, that such is the case, how about the minority? How about the 7,000,000 working women who are not represented by "household suffrage"? Are their rights not worth considering? Whether they are in the minority or majority doesn't matter—the principle is the same.

In a recent conversation with the writer, our esteemed friend, Mr. Whisler, stated in reply to the above argument that we shouldn't give independent working women an opportunity to better their condition, because that would have a tendency to induce more women to become independent wage-earners, and there are already too many of that class. What is needed is more women in the home. If that be a logical line of reasoning, then our city missionaries and social settlement workers are a mistake, because by making life more endurable in the city they are attracting people away from the country.

As a matter of fact, few women deliberately choose the lot of the lonely wage-earner in preference to home life. It is generally a case of hard necessity. But whatever her station in life, whether from choice or necessity, every woman and every man has a right to participate in the government and determine under what conditions they shall live. This is the basis upon which all equal suffrage argument is built and no amount of fallacious reasoning can impair its soundness and justice.

Another official pamphlet argument against woman suffrage is that it will not improve the quality of the vote. Such a statement is equivalent to saying that women are no better than men. Everybody admits the moral superiority of women. The great majority of male criminals in our jails and prisons, the comparatively few immoral women compared to the number of immoral men, the preponderance of women in the churches—all these things constitute unanswerable proof of the high moral standard of women as compared to men. Will they not carry this elevated standard into politics and raise our laws to a higher level? Ask the saloon men, the gamblers and white slavers why they are always and everywhere so actively opposed to votes for women. They know that woman's influence in public life, as in the home, has always been for higher and better things; for purity, justice and humanity.

Ask recalled Mayor Gill if women did not raise the quality of the vote in Seattle. Ask Edward T. Taylor, Colorado's representative in congress, who says that "there is not another state in the Union that has during the past twenty years enacted one-half as much beneficial legislation for the protection and moral uplift of the race." Mr. Taylor gives a list of 150 such laws, for the passage of which he says the women deserve the main credit. This is not theory but fact, proving conclusively that women do raise the quality of the vote when they are enfranchised.
