SWIFT FLYING STARS.

Vastness of the Universe Indicated by Their Long Travels.

The almost incredible distances of the heavenly bodies are well illustrated by Camille Flammarion's comments to the Societe Astronomique de France on the study by V. M. Slipher of the Lowell observatory on the speed of the nebula in Andromeda, which is 300 kilometers a second. Flammarion remarks that if this speed has been maintained since the days of Hipparchus, twenty centuries ago, the nebula has traveled in that time 19,000,000,000 kilometers. Hipparchus made a catalogue of the visible stars, and this nebula is not found in his list, although it can now be seen with the naked eye. Had it been as brilliant 2,000 years ago as it is today, Hipparchus, living under the clear sky of Alexandria, could not well have overlooked it.

"Must we then conclude," asks Flammarion, "that its twenty centuries of approach to us have been enough to increase its brilliancy? The parallax of the nebula is 0.17 second, which corresponds to a distance of 181,000,000,000 kilometers. It takes light nineteen years to travel that distance. So in 2,000 years its distance would have diminished by about one-tenth."

But then, no one knows that it has maintained this terrific speed throughout the centuries. It may have moved more slowly or more rapidly at any time. All is conjecture except the actual figures for its present speed and distance.

The fact that bodies moving at such speeds are not seen to move brings home to us the vastness of the universe.—New York World.

Time Alone Would Tell.

"Do you think," she asked the professor, "that my daughter will ever become a noted singer?"

"I gant say," replied the professor. "She may. She dell me she gome of a long lived family."—National Monthly.

Baking and Cooking in this Climate

Climatic conditions are very important in cooking and baking; what applies to the high altitude of the East is not adaptable to the sea level of this section. That is why successful Eastern formulae are often failures here. The Fairies Cook Book, just issued by the Fisher Flouring Mills Company, manufacturers of the perfect All-Purpose Flour, made of choicest Eastern hard wheat and choicest Western soft wheat, was prepared with this fact in mind. Mrs. Isabella Swezy, recognized authority on the art of cookery, prepared and tested every one of its 156 recipes. For successful baking in this climate the Fairies Cook Book has no equal. We will mail you the book if you fill out and send us coupon below, together with Ten Cents (cash or stamps).
