A MISTAKEN IDEA

There are some people who still resort to drugged pills or alcoholic syrups to overcome colds, nervousness or general debility, and who know that the pure, unadulterated nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is eminently better, but refrain from taking it because they fear it may lead to excessive fat or obesity.
This is a mistaken idea, because Scott's Emulsion first strengthens the body before making flesh. Its blood-forming properties aid nature to throw off sickness by building health from its very source, and flesh is formed only by its continued use. Avoid alcoholic substitutes for SCOTT'S.

ORANGE MARMALADES.

MARMALADES require great care while cooking. They burn very easily. If the marmalade is made from berries the fruit should be rubbed through a fine sieve to remove seeds. Measure fruit and sugar, allowing one pint of sugar to each quart of fruit pulp.
Rinse the preserving kettle so sides and bottom are moist. Add layer of fruit, then layer of sugar until not more than two layers of each are used. Layers should be not more than two inches deep. Heat slowly and stir constantly. If one has an iron stand used for holding a sadiron place it under the kettle to allow an air space between heat and kettle bottom. Let boil slowly two hours for not more than four quarts of fruit. Pack in small jars or glasses and cover with paraffin.

Breakfast Sweets.
Tomato-Orange Marmalade.—Yellow tomatoes are the prettiest, but the red ones taste just as well. Peel the tomatoes and squeeze out all of the seeds. Weigh and to each pound allow one orange (rind and pulp), half a lemon and one pound of white sugar. Boil till thick and put up in small glasses.

Orange Marmalade.—If you have a crate of oranges you can make this delicious sweet at a trifling expense. A dozen large oranges will make a fair quantity. Pare the rinds of one dozen oranges very thin, taking off with them the least possible quantity of white. Run the rinds through your meat chopper, cover with cold water and boil until tender. Drain thoroughly and add to them the shredded pulp of six oranges and one lemon freed from seed and white pith. Weigh the mixture and for every pound allow three-fourths the weight of sugar and boil, stirring often, until thick.

Combined With Oranges.
Blended Marmalade.—A recommended recipe for this delicacy is to allow the pulp of three lemons and seven sour oranges (seeded) to seven coarsely grated pineapples. To each pint of the mixture allow three-quarters of a pint of granulated sugar. Add a good pinch of salt and stir the whole in a preserving kettle over the fire until the sugar melts; then cook until the consistency of peach marmalade is reached. Remove from the fire and pour into preserve glasses. When cool cover with paraffin and put on the lids. Select a cool, dry place for the marmalade if one can be found.

Riddle Gives Free Venison Barbecue

Deer are numerous and grow large and fat in the mountains of Douglas county. Riddle is the gateway to the best deer hunting in the civilized world, and practically every resident is an ardent sportsman. While other cities throughout the state make an annual celebration of roses, strawberries, cherries, rough riding or whatever feature of their resources they wish to impress upon the world, it remained for Riddle, through her strong Rod & Gun Club, to conceive and establish as an annual event, a Free Venison Barbecue, and to make a celebration of features attractive to sportsmen, when monster fat bucks, barbecued to a queen's taste, are served generously and free to all who wish to come and partake, and enjoy a venison feast the like of which is unheard of and practically impossible to duplicate anywhere else.

The date for this year's barbecue, which is the second in history, has been set for Monday, Sept. 7th, which is Labor Day and a legal holiday, and Riddle's Rod & Gun Club and her citizens in general, cordially extend an invitation to everyone to be present and feast on venison, which is free to all.
Besides being unique in respect of the dinner menu, this event is different in other ways. There is no "graft" to it. It is not a money grabbing event. The celebration is for the one day only. There will be nothing for sale on the grounds except probably ice cream, soda, etc., and ammunition for those who wish to participate in the shooting events.

To be brief, the day's program will be about as follows:
All day rifle and shotgun shooting, for cash and merchandise prizes, and silver trophy cups. Rifle shooting, 200 yards off-hand, ordinary hunting rifles only. Trap shooting under association rules.
Demonstrators from all big ammunition and firearms firms will be present to do fancy and expert trick shooting.

The "Rainbow" fish distributing car of the State Game & Fish Commission will be at Riddle, open to the inspection of the public.
At midday the venison feast will be spread. Ten of the biggest bucks the country affords will be barbecued. Besides there will be sliced venison for those who may wish to fry it for themselves over camp fires, and an enormous kettle of famous venison "Mulligan stew." The club will also provide bread, coffee, pickles, and ice water will be on tap. The tables will have a length of several hundred feet. In addition to this feast provided by the Gun Club the ladies of the community load the tables down with all the good things known to a Douglas County picnic dinner. It is all free.

There will be prize contests for baking bread in frying pans over camp fires.
Hon. George W. Riddle, pioneer of 1851, son of the first settler near Riddle, will be orator of the day, and will speak on pioneer subjects relating to game, Indians, etc.
In the evening, William L. Finley, state game department biologist, will give a free lecture illustrated by moving pictures and slides of game animals, birds and fishes. During the day he will also make moving pictures of the barbecue events.

Immediately following the lecture a grand ball will be opened, continuing all night. The usual charge will be made for dance tickets.

Round trip fares of one and one-third, have been granted by the Southern Pacific Railway on all its lines. Get a receipt from your ticket agent and have secretary sign certificate on the ground.

The barbecue is to be held in a beautiful cedar grove on the banks of the river at the edge of town. There will be no transportation to pay after reaching Riddle. Your big day of interest and enjoyment is free after you arrive. There may be those who have never eaten venison. They have never been to the Riddle Barbecue. Those who attended last year had the time of their lives. The Riddle Rod & Gun Club and the city bids you come on Monday, September 7, 1914.

Masked Women.
Upper class Swahili women wear curious masks, which are made of leather and beads in a wooden frame. The mask is derived from the traditional usage of Moslem women, who must keep their faces covered in the presence of men. For several centuries Arab traders have frequented this East African coast, and to their influence are due most of the civilized customs found today among the natives of the district. The clothing worn by these prosperous dames is of silk; their shoes are partly of silver, and they wear much silver jewelry. The Moslems in Zanzibar, by the way, are less fanatically strict about religious usages than their brethren in Morocco and Turkey.—Wide World Magazine.

Peeling or Paring.
Does one peel or pare a potato? There is authority for the contention that raw potatoes are pared, while potatoes boiled with their jackets on may be peeled. It is a fine distinction, but logical. You pare a thing by taking a knife and removing its outer integument, together with some of the substance of the thing itself. But to peel an apple or a potato or a case of sunburn you seize the already loosened integument itself and simply strip it off—it's hard to put it into words, but you see how it is, don't you?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
