

Quality Is Everything

NATURALLY, having spent many years in the making of portraits, we have very positive ideas on the subject. To our mind a quality portrait should have distinction and pose, originality of mounting, that virility of delineation which makes the onlooker say to himself: "A perfect likeness," and to our mind a quality portrait should sell at a reasonable price, AS OURS DO.

Broken Pledges Shown By Clark

The splintered planks of the democratic platform of 1912 received the attention of A. E. Clark of Portland, principal speaker at a big republican rally held in Medford Thursday. Mr. Clark quoted the famous sentence from Mr. Wilson's speech at Washington Park, New Jersey: "Our platform is not molasses to catch flies." He then proceeded to show that the party had promised free tolls for American shipping and had violated its pledge, going into some detail to show how serious was the Wilson surrender on the tolls question in connection with the placing of lumber and other coast products on the free list.

The speaker also paid his respects to the democratic platform declaration pledging the return to simplicity and economy in the conduct of government, together with a reduction in the number of useless offices, showing that thirty thousand additional offices had been created, embracing an expense of forty million dollars a year, and that the last congress was the most extravagant in the history of this country.

Mr. Clark also discussed the Mexican situation, the effect of the democratic policies upon the business and prosperity of the country, and pleaded for the election of a republican congress to co-operate with a republican president in bringing the country back to a solid basis of prosperity with peace and national honor.
