It is claimed that the Republican county convention yesterday was one of the most harmonious in the history of the county. Several old timers were seen back in the fold, and they seemed proud to be there, and it is needless to say that their old friends were glad to have them back. The day was fine, the attendance large and there was but little friction in the work of the convention. There are necessarily some disappointments after a convention, but these will soon be healed over and the party will gain an unusually large victory this year.

The regular annual parish meeting of Grace Episcopal Church will be held after evening prayer on Monday, March 21, at 7:30 o'clock. This meeting is for the purpose of hearing reports, and the election of seven vestrymen. Communicants residing for the past six months in the parish and who have communicated in the parish in the past year, and also such other baptized persons of full legal age who have regularly contributed in their own name to the support of the parish, are entitled to vote. It is hoped there will be a full attendance.

William Mills, for 25 years a resident of Bay Center, on Shoalwater Bay, was in the city yesterday in the interest of the oyster business, in which he is engaged. Said Mr. Mills: "The oyster industry is in a very prosperous condition. We are shipping regularly from the bay about 400 sacks every five days, the oysters going to San Francisco by steamer. Each sack is worth 2.25. About 200 men are now working on the beds. This is the season for transplanting. The young growth is topped up from the deep water in the channels, and spread out in shallow water on the beds, where in four years the oysters attain a marketable size. Good oyster grounds of this kind are now worth $100 per acre."

Judge Gray, who was nominated yesterday for county judge, was one of the most elated of the new nominees. He stated that he had not intended to run but upon receiving a petition dated February 16, and signed by 64 voters living in various portions of the county requesting him to run, he decided to do so. Following is a copy of the petition: "We, the undersigned taxpayers and residents of Clatsop county, hearing that you would not again ask the voters of this county for the office of county judge, earnestly request you to reconsider such action, and become a candidate for the office you now hold, at the coming June election. We ask this, because you have shown special and marked interest in the building and improvement of roads and highways, and maintaining the financial credit of the county."

TROUBLE BETWEEN THEM.

It is Claimed That the Westport Tragedy Was Outgrowth of Former Difficulty.

County Coroner Pohl returned from Westport on the night train with the body of E. T. Hogland and the evidences of the tragedy. These consisted in a 22-calibre hammerless revolver with four empty shells and one cartridge in it, and a bullet which the coroner had extracted from the wall. He also had the trinkets found on the person of deceased, consisting of a purse containing $2.75 in coin, a pocket knife, piece of tobacco and some lead pencils.

The coroner completed the inquest yesterday afternoon and received the jury's verdict just before taking the train for home. There were but few facts developed on the trial beyond those stated in yesterday's Astorian in regard to the crime. Deceased had fired four shots instead of three. One of these bullets was found in the wall by the coroner, another had been found by Waud, and Waud and Hogland each have a bullet in their bodies.

While there was no excuse for the crime, yet it is brought out that beyond most any kind of a doubt Hogland shot the man he intended to shoot, and thinking that he had killed him, then took his own life. It is not believed that he was insane at the time, but that he was of a revengeful spirit. It is stated that he and Waud had previously had a difficulty in a saloon, and that Waud is a husky fellow and had pulled Hogland's nose; that Hogland harbored this up against the young man, and had watched his chance to kill him. It is also stated that on the night of the tragedy, as Waud and Adams were going up the stairs, they were talking to deceased, who was in his room. They practically deny this, however Adams saying there was something said but that he does not know what it was.

Coroner Pohl says that it is the consensus of opinion at Westport that the whole matter grew out of the former difficulty, and that it was not the work of a maniac, but the work of a revengeful man who had brooded over the matter until he had made up his mind to kill his enemy and then kill himself. One shot was fired downward, which it is thought was fired at the young man when he was on the floor in order to make sure of his work, and then everything becoming silent the would-be assassin turned the revolver upon himself.

It developed that the deceased had a brother in California. Further than this nothing was learned about his past history. The people of Westport think deceased had money, but besides the $2.75 found on his person and the sum due from the railroad for his services as section boss, the coroner was not able to find any.

Following is the verdict of the jury in the case: "Westport, Ore., March 28, 1902.—We the undersigned jurors, sworn to inquire of the cause of the death of E. T. Hogland, on oath do find; That he came to his death at Westport, Clatsop County, Oregon, on the evening of March 27, 1902, from a gunshot wound in the head which he inflicted himself, for reasons unknown to us. "F. B. GILSON, Foreman. "HENRY JOHNSON. "Y. O. WALKER. "A. R. FOOOTE. "G. E. DWYER. "M. W. A. KAYSON."

The minority Republicans are now reported to be dallying with the Democrats in Portland and it is thought that a citizens' ticket may be formed from this combination and a bitter city fight made by them against the independents who recently swept that city. It is claimed that a conference will be held today in Portland which may result in putting forth the combination ticket.

Ex-Governor Penoyer, who has been an avowed candidate for the justice of the supreme court, it is now stated, may be induced to abandon the race for this office and run for mayor of Portland. When asked about the matter, the ex-governor is reported to have replied that the only office he would consider was that of supreme justice, but it is claimed that he will run for mayor against Williams if he is importuned in the matter, and it is thought that the Democrats will "importune" him.
