A letter has been received by a gentleman in this city from a brother whose beautiful home and surroundings, barns, granaries, crops, fencings, everything, were swept away by the fires in Clackamas. He says the home that he and his wife had been 24 years in making has been swept away in a few moments.

W. F. Halderman, the agent at Warrenton, had the misfortune to lose his English pointer, Max, on Thursday last. The dog was struck by a passing train and killed instantly. Max was well known to local hunters and dog fanciers, was three ears old, and was recognized as a very valuable animal. Mr. Halderman had refused $200 for him.

Residents in the southwestern section of this city are mourning the loss of rare plants and flowers by the havoc created by a bovine, presumably the cow that jumped over the moon, as several aerial flights seem to testify, among them a leap from the high terrace of the Spittle residence, clambering up and down the steps of Max Young's home and other daring feats. This aesthetic animal prefers asters and chrysanthemums for straight diet, with morning-glory desert. As she has not been heard of for a few days, it is thought she must be circulating the nocturnal luminary, so the pound master must wait for her return before attempting to place her in captivity.

If every timber cruiser during the past few weeks had been as watchful as Maxwell Young of this city, many of the disastrous fires that devastated so much country would probably never have occurred. Mr. Young, in the course of his forest touring, makes it his business to ferret out and extinguish the little fires left by hunters and thoughtless persons. Hundreds of incipient conflagrations have been choked in this way.

Office of Q. C. M., Vancouver Barracks, Wash., Sept. 12, 1902. Sealed proposals, in triplicate, will be received at depot quartermaster's office, Portland, Oregon, until 12 noon of September 25, 1902, for delivery at Portland, Oregon, of three thousand tons of oats and two thousand tons of hay with privilege of increase of 25 per cent if desired. Oats to be double-sacked and hay to be compressed to the closest density. Information furnished here or by depot quartermaster Portland, Oregon. U. S. reserves right to reject or accept any or all proposals or any part thereof. Envelopes containing proposals should be marked: "Proposals for Forage at Portland, Oregon," addressed F. H. Hathaway, Q. C. M.

C. C. Clark, the Seaside logger, has secured a new engine to take the place of the one recently wrecked by an explosion and has made an order for two others, which are now on their way to the camp and upon their arrival will at once be put to work. When the camp is running full blast it will mean the employment of 100 men and an output of 100,000 feet per month. The Necanicum Spruce Lumber Company receives Mr. Clark's logs, and the works, under the new order of things will tax the camp to its fullest capacity. Later there is expected to be a call for 20,000,000 feet a year and Mr. Clark will, in all probability, increase his business to meet the demand. If not the company will organize a new camp, and the two together will fill the bill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Johnson, of Oregon City, passed through this city en route to their Sea View cottage. They spent a day or two here visiting their son, the genial and popular agent of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

CLAM CANNERY GOES.

Eight Years in Warrenton—Will Move to Grays Harbor.

P. F. Halferty, proprietor of the Sea Beach Packing Works, who for some time has been negotiating for a cannery site on Grays Harbor, recently closed a deal with Edmund Croft, at Markham station, 12 miles from Hoquiam, on the John River, by which he secured 400 acres well stocked.

On this Mr. Halferty will erect his packing house and engage both in stock raising and the canning of clams. Razor clams are very plentiful, both at Westport and North Beach and at these points Mr. Halferty proposes to secure them. A launch will be used to transport the article from the beaches to the cannery, a distance of about four miles. The cannery will be able to run the year round, nine months with the razors and the balance of the time mud clams will be packed, the latter under a different brand.

Mr. Halferty located at Warrenton in the spring of 1894 and has run his business continuously ever since. The first season a brick oven, wash boiler and sausage grinder constituted the outfit, and 25 cases were put up. The next season the cannery equipment was improved upon and 200 cases were the result. From that time on the pack increased rapidly until it attained from between 8000 and 10,000 cases. Over 20 diggers and between 40 and 50 people in the cannery were employed. The diggers were paid $1 per 100 for clams, but in July demanded $1.50 an increase of 50 per cent. Mr. Halferty believes the men were entitled to an increase, but considering the clams and the irregularity of securing them in any quantity, thereby entailing short runs, thinks the price asked was somewhat exorbitant. But circumstances were such that a compromise could not be effected. A perfect good feeling exists between the proprietor and the men, their respective positions being well understood and appreciated.

The difficulty of securing clams at Ocean beach, Mr. Halferty believes, is owing to the jetty, it being so situated that the sand washed from the channel is deposited on the beach, thereby concealing the clam holes. By the season after the jetty is completed and things become a fixture the clams will doubtless be secured as plentifully as ever.

Mr. Halferty expresses the keenest regret at going away, believing as he does, that the encouragement and kindly feeling ever extended toward him entered largely into his measure of success.

CITY COUNCIL.

The regular meeting of the council was held last night and a goodly amount of business was pushed through.

The minutes were read and confirmed.

A letter was read asking for the use of a small portion of an unused street. Judge Bowby appeared and explained to the council exactly what was wanted. Councilman Trullinger proposed that it be left to the street committee and the city attorney. The mayor suggested that action be taken immediately. The city attorney explained that an ordinance was necessary and that Mr. Trullinger's motion would not delay the matter and the council then approved of the motion to send the question to the streets committee.

Liquor licenses were granted to Ed Stegerstrom and L. Larson.

A communication was received from the water commissioners asking the council to expend $200 on the rebuilding of three small bridges. The matter was referred to a committee.

Accounts against different committees were passed as follows:

- A. Leberman, $75. Budget (several accounts), $110. J. S. Dellinger, $5. Griffin & Reed, $7.50. Fisher Brothers, $15.10. Astoria Electric Company, $245. S. H. Willet, $5.60. L. Lebeck, $10. Chris Johnson, $7.50. J. C. Clinton, $8.50. J. C. Clinton, $25. Sherman Transfer Company, $4. Board of Assessors, $45. Astoria Box Company, $25.66. Astoria Box Company, $8.60. Astoria Box Company, $14.40. Astoria Box Company, $2.90. Olaf Peterson, $4.50. Mrs. Thiel, $10.50. Sherman Transfer Company, $10.50. G. P. McIver, $120. Fisher Brothers, $66.99. Eagle Drug Store, $3.95. Astoria Electric Company, $5. Board of Assessors, $45. The matters relating to grades was taken up and also that of two drains in Uppertown. The details of streets on which improvements were intended were ordered advertised in the Daily Budget.

An ordinance confirming assessment for improving Astor street was read and confirmed, also an ordinance for the betterment of Commercial street from Sixth to Third.

An ordinance was passed to pay C. G. Palmberg $1182.89 for improvements on Fifteenth from Commercial to Exchange.

SHIPPING NEWS

Clear Weather Brings a Large Number of Arrivals.

The British ship Angora will pass here to load at Portland for Europe.

The Harry Morse leaves this morning for Portland. Captain Rannels may pass one night in Clifton.

After having experienced the misfortune of being twice stranded the steamer Columbia got up to Portland.

Among the arrivals in port yesterday were the Quikstep, the Lafayette, the F. E. Saunders and the O. J. Olsen.

The British steamer Indravelli, after being smoke and fog-bound for two or three days, passed out at 11 a. m. Sunday.

The four-masted American schooner Transit passed out for Hilo, Hawaiian island, Sunday. She took a cargo of lumber.

The barkentine Addenda got on fire in Honolulu while alongside the wharf. The fire was extinguished, but not without considerable damage.

The British bark Morven, 87 days out from Fremantle, Westralia, arrived in port yesterday. She is in ballast and will load wheat at Portland for European ports.

The coasting steamer Lakine arrived at 10:30 a. m. Sunday morning and discharged a load of redwood from Eureka. She left for Portland at 1 p. m. and got through safely.

After all the fogs and smoke it cleared up somewhat on Sunday morning and gave an impetus to the shipping business. Several vessels that had been moving yesterday made extensive voyages today.

The opera house was packed last night to witness "Thelma." The scenery of the Land of the Midnight Sun was really fine. The general verdict was that the performance was one of the best that Mr. Selig has brought here.

The oil steamer Prentiss got in at 4 p. m. Sunday and left up the river at 6:30. The Prentiss carried 275 cords of tanning bark, her decks being stacked about eight feet high. In addition to this dead cargo Captain Ahlstrom had his wife on board and his lively little boy.

The schooner Antelope got in yesterday with 600 cases of salmon on board. The run from Nushagak was made in slightly under 20 days, but the fogs were so dense that no entrance could be made. She drifted away down to Tillamook Rock and found another schooner in the same plight. After nine days' hanging round she finally got in. During the trip she lost her jib-boom and presents a forlorn appearance.

The British ship Port Logan, Captain Adams got in yesterday and is lying down the river. She anchored outside the bar last night and in attempting to raise the anchor broke her windlass and was compelled to abandon the anchor and 20 fathoms of cable. The Logan comes in water ballast under charter to load wheat, flour or barley from Portland. When about 47 days out a cook named Antonio Bernich died of consumption. Captain Adams reports Algoa as much improved since his last visit, a fine new post-office being evidence of general progress. The Port Logan is a full-rigged ship with a crew of 28.

NOTABLE SERMONS

Two Noted Divines Visit Us and Are Greeted by a Crowded Church.

Bishop Cranston used as a text, "Ye Holy Ghost is come upon you" and from it, in his own convincing and lucid style and with convincing logic, he sought to prove that the Holy Spirit is the promised and the actual guide and illuminator in all progress and development, and recommended to ministers present a fuller investigation of such doctrine.

He maintained that existing material and spiritual forces have existed from the beginning; that material forces are impossible to thoroughly understand or explain except in regard to the results of their application, and that the same is necessarily true of forces relative to the spiritual life. That the same laws which govern the one also govern the other; that the source of these laws and forces is the creator, and that the third person of the Trinity, of whom it is written, "He will guide you into ALL truth," is He through whom these laws and forces are to be manifested, experienced, and eventually perhaps understood. After portraying evidences illustrative of physical forces, the Bishop commented on the results attending the application of spiritual forces, the wonderful transformation in the lives of great sinners, who became subject to their workings, and of such results which he had witnessed among the Chinese, who, after accepting Christianity, forsook the ancient, unprogressive, superstitious modes of living, and became literally "born again" to higher and nobler lives.

DR. ILIFF.

At the evening service the Rev. Dr. T. C. Iliff addressed a crowded church. It is seldom that any congregation gets such an opportunity of hearing the gospel preached in such a manner as Dr. Iliff handled it. In speaking of church extension the reverend gentleman, in the most modest way, detailed a few of his early experiences. Mingling humor with pathos, his address was a treat. No matter what a man's creed might be, he had an opportunity of hearing an interesting account of early struggles by a man who, in his younger days, took all chances in the interest of his cause. Dr. Iliff has a winning way of telling his story. Where some men would rant and shout, he curbs himself and with suppressed force demands the whole soul of his hearers. His reminiscences of Lincoln, of the Sioux Indians, of Grant and others who helped him in the early days were full of interest. His account of one or two helpers, picked up from practically lost men, was convincing as to what Christianity can do. Dr. Iliff prepared himself for his hard work by picking out an Ohio girl to help him—but then he had not visited Astoria and Mrs. Iliff will not feel hurt if we say that excepting herself we can beat the Ohio girls here in Oregon. Dr. Iliff incidentally emphasized one fact. It was frequently due to the large-heartedness of people outside the church that he was so successful. He looked round for large hearts, he found many men who would help the kind of man the Doctor is when a less broad mind might have alienated them. It was a sermon which plainly said—be charitable. The Church Extension fund does not owe all of its great success to good church members alone, the men who have commended the esteem of all classes by their genuine Christianity, and by their recognition of the fact that hearts sometime beat in a true vein outside a church.

The service was well worth attending and the music deserves a special mention. The anthem was very sweetly rendered, whoever they may be sang with vim and good attack so necessary in leading a congregation. A solo was sung by Miss Rannels. It is no empty compliment to congratulate that young lady on the result of her musical training, for every intonation, every vibration told of her culture.

Miss Mirjah Frederickson played a violin obligato and a special word remains for the lady who officiated at the organ. It is hard to make amateurs understand the proper use of sub-bass stops. The lady who played Miss Rannels' accompaniment is an organist unusually clever and naturally artistic. And music is at its grandest when volunteered to the worship of God.

There was one thing lacking in the service. The writer spent many years in protecting missionaries in uncivilized lands, where thousands of semi-civilized savages are told every Sabbath morning that millions are praying for them every Sunday. They would never believe it possible that a church extension meeting could be held without one word of prayer for those who extend the church with their lives in their hands. Alas, on Sunday night, the men who sometimes must live on a banana or a coconut were forgotten.
