The Elmore Hose company gave its initial ball last night in Suomi hall, West Astoria. The hall was profusely decorated with appropriate designs. The Olympia orchestra furnished excellent music for the occasion and the event, attended as it was by an immense throng, passed off in every way to the happiness of everybody.

If the voters of the city register at the rate maintained yesterday, the total number registering for the coming city election will be only a little more than 1900. The normal vote of the city in elections in which keen interest is taken is between 1500 and 1600. Yesterday there were but 35 registrations, but Auditor Nelson considered it a fair starter.

The tanners' strike now on in San Francisco is having far reaching effects. The union in Portland has served the boycott on all leather that comes from unfair tanneries and a delegation has waited upon the different firms in that city to persuade them from receiving such goods. This action is taken out of sympathy for the California strikers.

Friday Judge Hogue of Portland dismissed the charge of assault and battery preferred against "Mysterious" Billy Smith and the White brothers. The defendants were alleged to have boarded the ship Marven and mauled different members of the crew about in a very ungentlemanly way. It came out at the trial that the attack was really made by members of the crew and that the sailor boardinghouse men were not to blame in any respect. So the prisoners were let go on the plea of self defense.

Salvation Army—Captain and Mrs. Hubbard and Captains Stover and Dupertuis who constituted the Salvation Army revival brigade, will hold their last service in Astoria Sunday night. The program of the meeting is as follows: A free stereopticon lecture; special singing by Captains Hubbard and Stover and a word of farewell from each member of the brigade.

Complaint has been made at this office about the heedless action of some jokers on Halloween night who piled a load of wood on the steps of the Swedish Lutheran church on Franklin avenue. Besides this mud was liberally distributed on the doors and walls of the building. This is, of course, too bad, but the authorities of the church can console themselves with the thought that the boys will not do it again—at least not for a year.

The circuit court held a session yesterday morning and transacted the following business: Ida DeRock vs. Peter DeRock, decree of divorce granted; Catherine C. Lighter vs. Thomas M. Lighter, decree of divorce granted; J. E. Higgins, trustee, vs. Geo. Terry, et al., set for December 22 for further hearing; Astoria & Columbia River Railroad company vs. Daniel Kern, argued and taken under advisement. The court adjourned until December 23.

It is very evident a fortunate discovery made at Fort Stevens last Thursday frustrated another attempt to burn the buildings at that post. A quantity of inflammable material consisting of cotton waste well soaked in oil was found in a building formerly used as the canteen, and the indications are that it was placed there for incendiary purposes. Every possible vigilance that can be brought into service to prevent the success of the diabolical scheme to burn the post is used by the officials, but the methods employed by the miscreants are so secretive that suspicion cannot be fastened upon anyone and it looks as though the culprits, whoever they are, will forever escape punishment if they cannot be caught in the very act.

The amusement loving public are hereby informed that the reserved seat sale for the laughable musical farce comedy "Finnigan's Ball" which appears at Fishers opera house Tuesday evening, opens at Griffin & Reed's at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. No doubt there will be a long line of purchasers to secure choice seats, as the performance is a perfect whirlwind of jollity, all the latest songs, clever dancing and several of the most expensive specialty features are only a few of the good things promised. So do not be late in securing your seats to witness that brightly jingling musical Irish farce comedy.

Work on the county road leading to Olney will be discontinued during the winter owing to the rains. With the exception of two points, where grading and bridging will be necessary the road has been planked to Osgood's place, about three miles this side of Olney. Next summer the work will be resumed by the portable saw mill. The mill since it has been in use on the road has cut altogether 600,000 feet of lumber, averaging over 11,000 feet per day. The road is in excellent condition, the planks being firmly laid and with an eye to durability. The good that must of necessity result from this highway can not be over estimated, the benefits being already apparent. Both from a business and pleasure view point it will prove a boon to the county.

The vessel reported to have been outside in distress has turned out to be the British bark Lodore from Acapulco Mexico. The trouble the Lodore encountered off Willapa harbor was occasioned by the heavy under current which prevails with terrific force. As soon as the vessel discovered her dangerous predicament anchors were dropped and distress signals were raised. Later the steam schooner Inqua with lumber from Grays harbor for San Francisco put to her assistance but was unable to render any aid as the heavy seas prevented the right kind of a hawser to be gotten aboard and when a small line was brought into service it immediately broke. While the Inqua was still endeavoring to get the bark away from danger the tug Tatosoh with Bar Pilot Tatton on board arrived on the scene. Pilot Tatton at once boarded the Lodore and the entire situation was placed in his hands. It was necessary to slip an anchor and 75 fathoms of chain, but after that little or no difficulty was experienced. A safe entrance was made yesterday morning by the bark in tow of the Tatosoh. The vessel is in ballast and is 47 days from the Mexican port.

Madame Dierke, wife of the well-known piano instructor of Portland, gave a recital in Tacoma recently that has called forth warm words of praise from the press of that city. A number of local young people have studied under Professor Dierke and they will be interested to read of the furor his talented wife is creating at her concerts. In speaking of the recital the Tacoma Ledger says: "Beatrice Barlow Dierke, whose youth, enthusiasm and strong musical temperament give promise of a future that shall place her name among those of the really great world artists, charmed her audience not only by her playing, but by her winsomeness and simplicity.

She played a program that would tax the powers of any artist, and covered herself with glory. The two Liszt etudes 'Waldesrauschen' and 'Gnomensagen,' brilliant in technical requirement, received their full meed of expression at the supple, dainty, yet powerful hands that made light of their difficulties. In the great Beethoven sonata Mrs. Dierke showed splendid power and high conception, and there was a storm of applause at its conclusion, which called the fair pianist back to bow acknowledgements. Three numbers in succession gave a variety of compositions from grave to gay, from the fanciful, whimsical 'music box' to the sumptuous Chopin 'Scherzo,' in B minor, which was played with splendid understanding and skill. The final number, 'Isolda's Death,' Wagner-Liszt showed the pianist's great power and swept its beautiful theme along tumultuous harmonies until transfiguration seemed the only word to fitly convey its meaning. Two brilliant encores were generously given in response to the frequent recalls received by the artist."

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS OF THE PAST WEEK
