Arranging for Astoria Day.

B. D. Strauhl, the traveling representative of the Lewis and Clark exposition, was in the city yesterday making arrangements with Mayor Surprenant to secure a large delegation of Astorians at the fair on Astoria day. Mr. Strauhl states that many of the cities in Oregon will have special editions of the newspapers printed various sections, and was surprised that there would be none from Astoria.

President, Eunice DeYo Barnes. Vice President, May E. Kuetner. Recording Secretary, Almira Ferguson.

Treasurer, Lulu Henderson. Corresponding Secretary, Ora Baker. Directors, Gertrude M. Finch, May E. Callaway, Lill Foard, Mary H. Elmore, Francis Maddock, Freda Gratke.

The above were the officers elected at the annual meeting of the Astoria Women's Club held yesterday afternoon. The retiring president, Gertrude M. Finch, delivered her annual address as follows:

Officers and Members of the Woman's Club:

In accordance with custom and the laws of this organization I submit my annual report.

I would not be true to myself nor the society which I represent if I reported that the work for the year had fulfilled my expectations. At the beginning of the year, I realized how much there was to be done and how much might be accomplished with our large membership. I had high ideals and regret that we have not been able to realize them more fully. If all the members enrolled had worked as earnestly as the faithful few have done, we would have many fine things to show for our year of effort.

I believe it is true of every organization, that after three or four years of experience, the work devolves upon the few who are really in earnest. This, at least, has been true of the Woman's Club. Taking into consideration the number who have stood the test and have remained true to their desire to improve their town, their neighbors and themselves, I feel that the work of the past year has been successful in many respects. Our open meetings and the social side of our work has been successful to a gratifying degree. The attendance has been large and the entertainment offered on those occasions has undoubtedly been appreciated. The ladies in that line of work have every reason to feel proud of their success. The thoroughness with which they carried out their plans is most commendable. Whether this attractive side of the club life will result in an increased membership remains to be seen.

My greatest disappointment have been the lack of interest in the lectures and the small attendance at our regular meetings. We have had some of the best of Oregon talent at our disposal and a variety of subjects to claim our interest. Those who have been instrumental in arranging our lecture course have reason to feel satisfied that they have supplied Astoria with material of highest educational value in spite of the apparent lack of appreciation on the part of our people. The programs offered by our club members and local friends have been instructive and exciting and those who failed to improve the opportunities to enjoy them are losers indeed.

I have reason to feel delighted with the work of the study class this year. The membership has been smaller than I had anticipated but the interest and enthusiasm of the members has more than compensated for the small number. They have developed a promptness and regularity in attendance which is worthy of note. They have shown an interest in the study of Russia and Japan which has given everything connected with those countries an added value and at the final meeting were unanimous in the opinion that the work of the year had been instructive and interesting in the highest degree. Already plans are made to continue the Bay View course next year. This study class has been to me one of the most gratifying and delightful parts of the club life and the interest of the class members has been an inspiration that cannot be measured.

The work of the traveling library has been quietly progressing this year. The one committee member has rearranged the boxes and sent new collections of books to Svensen and Port Stevens. About 20 new books have been added this year, as a result of the kindness of the Astoria public library association and a few interested friends.

The civic improvement committee has shown an active interest in its department. The committee meetings have been well attended and the members have shown a commendable interest. The failure of the committee to have any large monument to its endeavors is largely due to the fact that the city council has offered to do
