

Clever Thoughts Out of The Mouths of Babies

MAMMA—Tommy, what is the baby crying for? Tommy—Cause he doesn't know things. I had to take his cake and show him how to eat it.

Teacher—Can you tell me what an aristocrat is, Johnny? Johnny—Yes, ma'am. An aristocrat is a poor person who boasts of his rich relations.

First Little Girl—My papa says your papa hates work. Second Little Girl—Oh, no; he doesn't. He likes work, but he hates to do it.

Visitor—Well, my little man, I suppose you take after your father, do you not? Little Man (aged five)—No, sir, but he takes after me with a stick some times.

Margie (aged four)—Is your papa a woman? Elsie (aged five)—No, 'course not. Margie—Well, I heard my papa say he had a dress suit on at the theatre the other night.

Little Elmer—My mamma can tell things by lookin' at people's hands. Visitor—Indeed! Is she a palmist? Little Elmer—I dunno. Every time she looks at my hands she tells me to go and wash 'em.—Chicago News.

Sisters in Moderation.

Tommy is a lonely little boy who has no brothers or sisters. He is very fond of three little girls named Ethel, Maud and May. One evening his mother was listening to him say his prayers, and she was rather surprised to hear him add to his petitions, "Dear Lord, please send me an Ethel, a Maud and a May."

After he had finished his mother tried to explain to him that they were too poor to have a large family like that. Tommy listened attentively and then without a word fopped down on his knees again and offered up this supplementary petition:

"Dear Lord, mother says we can't afford an Ethel and a Maud and a May, so don't send 'em in a bunch. Just send us an Ethel, and when we can afford the rest I'll let you know."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Satisfaction.

"Life insurance," said the man of plattitudes, "is a game in which you have to die to win."

"Not exactly," replied the man of harsh ideas. "But you often have the satisfaction of knowing that when the policy is paid you won't care whether you won or not."—Washington Star.

Patched Up.

It might be worse when Cupid's dart His list of woo increases. A girl may have a broken heart And still may save the pieces. —Minneapolis Journal.

A Heartless Speech.

Hewitt—I heard a mean thing said today when I was visiting that hospital for nervous troubles.

Jewett—What was it? Hewitt—A fresh fellow shouted, "Take your partners for the St. Vitus' dance!"—New York Press.

The Brute.

"I early became wedded to art," boasted the prima donna who had just done a sample warble for the hard hearted manager.

"Yes? And how long, pray, have you been a widow?"—Judge.

Ornithological.

Pearl—I wonder why that Mrs. Fisher is going around telling every one she got married just for a lark.

Ruby—Perhaps because she married a jay.—Detroit Tribune.

Helas!

There was a little child I used to know, Who never dreamed whose eyes were blue, Who saw the world as through a roseate glow And sang with merriment the whole day through, Who loved the sunshine as wild roes do—

A glad, gay pagan, jubilant and free, Ah, well, I knew her when her world was new—

The merry little child that once was me; And once I knew a certain little maid, Half child, half woman, who with dancing eyes

Looked at the primrose path before he laid, Too happy hearted to be wholly wise; Who never dreamed a day might come when sighs

Might follow laughter, but who happily Looked in Life's face and smiled without surprise—

The certain little maid that once was me. Of course you thought that in this verse I would

Sigh for the days sad hearts may not forget And harp upon the word misunderstood And how the promise of my youth had set.

I really meant to do it all, and yet

I hate to disappoint, but, anyhow, Although those days were nice, I quite regret

And blush to own I'm just as happy now —Theodosia Garrison in Judge.

Nowadays.

Nurse (to fond mother of celebrated musical prodigy)—Please, mum, is Master Willy to 'ave 'is morning sleep or go on wiv 'is sixteenth symphony?—Pick-Me-Up.

Power exercised with violence has seldom been of long duration, but temper and moderation generally produce permanence in all things.—Seneca.
