UNSPORTSMANLIKE

This is the Ruling at Astoria Against Mr. Horan.

FOR HIS TACTICS SATURDAY

Game Was Finely Played on Both Sides and Its Morale Spoiled by One Man's Bluster and Insidious Afterplay.

The friends of the Astoria football team, which played a clean and gallant game on the Multnomah field on Saturday last, are deeply incensed at the double-dealing of Manager Horan of the club-team. In his invidious rulings and remarks on the field, directed at Dr. Thomas Ross, of the Astorians, and his shabby write-up of the game in the columns of the Portland Journal of Sunday, in which he lent the added emphasis of public circulation to his strictures against Dr. Ross, and used his dual role of manager and reporter to the disadvantage of the Astorians and to his own lasting discredit.

The following is the formal statement of an Astorian present at the game, and deeply interested, not so much in an Astorian victory, as in the real cleanliness of the game: In Portland, Saturday, on the Multnomah field, Astoria's light team put up a great exhibition of football.

Outweighed thirteen pounds to the man—Gammal, Cooper, Hoover and Minard out of the game and unable to play—Astoria's light men played the clubmen off their feet. If the god of fortune, will ever remove her arms from around these same clubmen, Astoria will certainly show them the game and how it is played. Multnomahs scores last Saturday were all made on fluke plays. When straight ball was played Astoria was playing rings around them big enough to drive a bearse through.

Time and time again the Astoria backs shot over Pratt and Horan for big gains. With the new ten-yard rule Astoria made first down fourteen times to the clubmen's eight; with a dry ball and fast field the Astoria team would have run their heavier opponents off the field.

Astoria should be, and is, proud of the team that represents her. Every man played hard, fast, snappy football—in fact, they all played star ball. The Multnomah team played clean ball—cleaner than they ever did before, with the one exception of Horan, their right tackle, manager and acting captain. His bullying, blustering tactics that mared the best game that both teams were playing and brought cries of censure from every corner and side of the sea of spectators. Time after time the side lines echoed with cries of "Play ball." "Take your medicine like a man," while he was trying to bulldoze the officials. The big, good natured crowd that braved the rain made the side lines ring with cheers for Astoria, inspired by the visitor's plucky fight and the questionable tactics and unfair treatment they were receiving from the hands of Multnomah's manager, Horan.

As the aftermath of the game, Horan, hiding behind his pen at his secluded desk in the sporting office of the Evening Journal, still acting as manager of Multnomah's team, but conveying the false impression to the public and his readers that his article was merely the composition of a journalistic representative at the game, and a true version of a spectator, stooped to the low, despicable act of attacking Dr. Thomas Ross of this city, through the columns of the paper he represents, former guard of the Columbia university, and who so successfully coached the Astoria team. This unsportsmanlike act of Horan's should be viewed by his club-mates with extreme disapproval. In view of the past services rendered by Dr. Ross to the Multnomah club, the Board of Directors of the institution should demand an apology from Mr. Horan on behalf of Dr. Ross.

The columns of both the Oregonian and Telegram were extended to Dr. Ross through which to answer the muckerish article published in the last Sunday's Journal at the instigation of, and composed by, this man Horan. Dr. Ross refused to answer, as he had no desire to muck-rake the almost forgotten unsportsmanlike past of the now sporting editor of the Portland Evening Journal.

Gives Satisfaction—That a petition generally signed by his fellow citizens in Ward No. 3, asking him to run again for councilman, should have been affirmatively received by Councilman L. O. Belland, has given an immense satisfaction, not only to his ward constituents, but to the citizenry of Astoria in general. He is an honest and valuable man, there, or in any other capacity.

For Lawyers Only—The annual meeting of the Oregon State Bar Association occurs in Portland, November 20. Attorneys from all over the state, whether members or not of the association, are invited to attend and take advantage of the reduced railroad rates offered by all the railroads and of the general good time offered. It is necessary that only 50 persons attending buy railway tickets in order to get advantage of the special rates offered by the railroads and provision is being made for at least twice that number. Senator Will G. Graves, one of the leading attorneys of Spokane, will deliver the principal address and other attorneys of this state will deliver short addresses upon certain proposed legislation of interest to attorneys. The afternoon session will be followed by a stirring dollar banquet at the Commercial club and among the after dinner five minute speakers will be leading attorneys from all parts of the state. Outside attorneys should at once notify Robert T. Platt, Secretary, Commercial Block, Portland, Ore., of their intention to attend, so that banquet reservations may be made.

Record for November—James Jones the official in charge of the local office of the U. S. Weather Bureau, at North Head, has compiled the averages of conditions, temperature, precipitation, clouds, and winds for the last four Novembers, from which the following salient features are taken, not, however, as a forecast for the present month in any particular: Mean temperature, 49 degrees; warmest month, 1904, average, 54 degrees; coldest, average, 1902, 48 degrees; highest, 71 degrees, November 9, 1904; lowest, November 27, 1902; precipitation, average, 7.76 inches; greatest, 9.63, in 1903; least, 3.27, in 1905; greatest precipitation in 24 hours, November 19-20, 1904, 2.59 inches; winds, prevailing from southeast, average velocity, 21 miles; greatest, 90 miles, from southeast, on November 8, 1902.

Chamber of Commerce—The Astoria Chamber of Commerce failed to hold in a working quorum again last night, probably on account of the tempestuous weather. Secretary C. E. Higgins has quite an accumulation of important matters on his hands and it is hoped nothing may prevent the gathering of a large share of the membership two weeks hence. Among other interesting propositions pending is that to send a special invitation to Civil Engineer Eugene Semple, to come from Portland, meet the chamber and exemplify the merits of his ocean-river canal, via Seaside; a proposition that has merit and interest in it.

Landslide—On account of the soapstone foundation, there was a landslide of land in Uniontown Sunday night, owing to the recent heavy rains. Alameda avenue, which has just been opened and improved is covered with the sliding earth. A number of slides are reported west of there, extending to Smith's point.

Address Astorian.

For Thursday Night—In view of Major W. S. Roessler's answer to the letter of Mayor Herman Wise, in relation to the desired improvements in and about the harbor of Astoria, the latter gentleman believes it expedient to have a meeting of the citizens interested in this vital matter Thursday evening next, at the city hall, and to obtain, if possible, a concrete and composite expression of public sentiment here and use it later in the urging of congressional recognition upon his important idea and to that end such a meeting will be held at that time and place, and it is hoped it will be largely attended.

Took Him Back—C. A. Jacobson, a deserting sailor from the British bark Invernesshrie, at Portland, was arrested in this port on Sunday by U. S. Deputy Marshal G. A. Busher, and taken from on board the German ship Nereid, lying in the lower harbor, waiting to sail for Europe. This is one of the men on the Invernesshrie who was certified by Federal Quarantine Officer Holt, here, to be afflicted with trachoma, and his old captain is exceedingly anxious to get him back on the British bark, and so avoid the payment of a heavy fine for allowing him to escape. He was taken back to Portland yesterday morning.

Nothing Doing—There was nothing doing either in the police or justice court yesterday. No arrests were made and no cases filed.

Whenever you have any sympathy to bestow, direct it towards the young woman who never used Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. For sale by Frank Hart.

Unintentional Error—In the social columns of the Morning Astorian on Sunday last an error crept in, in the use of the name of Miss Irena Johnson. The lady's name was given as "Parker" by sheer inadvertence and was superinduced by the mention of the name of her respected grandsire, H. B. Parker. The Astorian sincerely regrets the misnomer.

We Are Busy and selling great quantities of goods, but there are lots of fine goods left yet, and we are selling the same at one-half and in many instances at less than one-fourth of the original cost. Come now, don't wait. C. H. Cooper's Great Retiring Sale. 11-1-11

An Error Aboard—It seems, from the statements made at charter-commission headquarters, that the commission had never intended to so amend Section 140 of the city charter, so as to reduce the income of the Astoria Public Library from $75 per month to $25; that it was a misprint and not entitled to the construction put upon it. This is good news to the friends of that institution all over the city, and the Morning Astorian regrets that it should have been led into the error along with very many others.
