Good Catches Being Made—

Considerable improvement is shown in the run of fish of late. Silversides are showing in increased numbers and some good catches are being made. The outlook for the fall season is much better than at any time since fall fishing commenced.

Meeting of Women's Club—

A new president, to succeed Mrs. S. K. Diebel, who resigned on account of leaving the city, will be elected, at the first meeting of the Women's Club, for the winter. This meeting will be held at the Red Men's Hall this afternoon and several matters of importance will come up. The attendance of the club has not been very active and there may be difficulty in finding an officer to preside for this year. Considerable money is now in the club's treasury which may determine whether the club disbands.

Placed Under Bonds—

Andrew Dooney, of Svenson, who was arrested on a charge of threatening to kill, appeared before Justice of the Peace Goodman, yesterday afternoon. From the testimony given, it appears that Dooney threatened the life of Mrs. Dooney and to set fire to their dwelling, on their ranch, near Svenson. It is a family quarrel over property matters, and Dooney promised not to molest any of the family nor annoy them in the future. Judge Goodman advised him to keep his promise and placed him under $250 bonds to keep the peace.

News From Captain Parker—

This office is in receipt of a letter from Capt. E. P. Parker, which states that he was at the Walton Hotel, in Philadelphia, on October 6th, and on the 7th he left for Boston. Joe Brown, who left here with Capt. Parker, left him at Montreal, but they will meet again before their return.

Has a Captain's License—

First Officer Chas. H. Johnson, first officer of the Costa Rica, successfully passed examination for a captain's license, at San Francisco. He will remain in his present position, for the present, but it is expected that he will soon be assigned to the command of a vessel. He was born and raised in Astoria, and his many friends will be pleased to hear of his success.

Family Row—

A family row occurred on Duane street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, about 8:30 last night, that aroused the neighborhood for awhile. Irva Hegmen got into an altercation with his wife, and, it is claimed, struck her. Seizing a bottle of carbolic acid she threatened to drink the deadly poison. She poured it into a glass, and her husband, in taking it away from her, severely cut his forefinger. The police, on their arrival, found things quieted down and made no arrests.

LAW SPOPS HUSTLING IN ASTORIA

POLICEMAN BRAVELY STOPS RUNNING "MURDERER" ON COMMERCIAL STREET—DON'T GO FASTER THAN A WALK; IT'S AGAINST THE LAW.

It developed last night that nobody can go faster than a walk in Astoria. Whether this is for the purpose of keeping in time with the progress is not known, but at any rate one young man was threatened with arrest if he did not stop running. It happened this way:

A reporter for the Astorian was anxious to secure the sensational news sent to the Western Union office by the Associated Press. He saw that if a cannon was fired down the main street it would not have hit anybody, and feeling pretty good over the fact that he was going to leave the city in a couple of days, he started on a run to the telegraph office, just to stretch his limbs.

Instantly several saloon doors flew open and much rubbernecking ensued. "Was somebody killed? Was the murderer escaping? Or was it the thunder of his big feet which were waking the sleeping city into life."

When the runner was nearly opposite Madison's cigar store, one of Astoria's most wideawake policemen came to the rescue in short order. Buttoning his coat and preparing for a desperate struggle he crossed the street and stopping the running reporter in commanding tones and demanded what the trouble was.

"Just taking a little exercise," was the astonished answer.

"Well, you can't run in Astoria," was the reply.

"Is there an ordinance against it?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply, showing how well the local officers keep in touch with the city laws.

Fearing that he might disturb the peaceful atmosphere of the town, not wishing to be hit with a club, and seeing that he was violating one of the sacred laws of the city—by hustling—the reporter went on his chagrined way at the regulation gait.

"What officer was that?" the reporter asked a citizen.

"Aims to hold 'em," was the reply.

"Ah," hissed the villain, in tones of relief. "I thought so."

HAS WRONG IDEA OF HARBOR

ARKANSAS BUSINESS MAN WRITES TO KNOW IF VESSELS CAN COME INTO HARBOR HERE—HAS A BAD STEER FROM SOMEBODY.

A prominent business man of one of Arkansas largest cities has addressed the Chamber of Commerce seeking information as to the reasons why Astoria should become an important deep-sea port if there are any such reasons for this distinction. He states that from information received he is lead to believe that the mouth of the Columbia River is about one mile wide and that it is impossible for any light draft vessels to enter the Columbia River Bar, also that the government work on the bar only improves this condition in a measure.

The Conditions on the Columbia River have either been grossly misrepresented, or else the informant is obviously ignorant of the situation. Mr Whyte is asking the inquirer for the source of
