POSTAL BANK FAVORED

New England States the postoffice averages only about 15 miles from the savings bank, the distance in the Middle States averages 25 miles, the Southern States 33 miles, and the States west of the Rockies 55 miles. It is believed that postal savings banks would be a great accommodation and an incentive to the great mass of people who have not the proper facilities near their homes for placing their savings in safe-keeping.

"From a study of the system which is working so satisfactorily in Canada it is believed that practically no additional clerk hire is required in the various postoffices, the entries being made by the money-order clerk. That the postal savings bank business can be handled with safety is best attested by the results in Canada, where in thirty-nine years $463,000,000 have been received and disbursed, with a loss to the government of not more than $25,000. The total deposits in postal savings banks there at present aggregate $50,000,000.

"It is recommended that the postmaster-general be given authority to designate all money-order postoffices, and such other postoffices as may be deemed necessary, to receive deposits of money for savings; deposits to be accepted in even dollars, with $1 as a minimum; postmasters to be required to receipt for such deposits in the pass books of the depositors and to make daily reports thereof to the postmaster-general, who will acknowledge receipt of the deposits direct to the patrons; money deposited in the postal savings bank not to be liable to demand, seizure, or detention under legal processes against the depositor. Withdrawals may be made at any time subject to certain regulations.

"On deposits made in postal savings banks a rate of interest of 2 per cent per annum is suggested, the deposits to be limited to $500 by any one person; any individual in the United States 10 years old or more to be permitted to open an account in his own name and deposit to his credit an amount not in excess of $500. A child under 10 years of age to have an account opened in his name by a parent or guardian, but withdrawals are not to be made until the child attains the age of 10.

"That the money deposited in the postal savings banks may return to the channels of trade, authority is asked to place it in the national banks which are government depositories in the states where the money is deposited in the postoffices. In consultation with a number of presidents of national banks in various parts of the country I have been assured that on special deposits of this character from the postoffice department they would allow a rate of interest of 2 1/2 per cent. As the postoffice departments (government) is a preferred creditor, it would not demand collateral from the banks in the way of bonds. There would be the safeguard of having the Comptroller of the Currency report regularly on the standing of the banks that are used as depositories and the double liability of the stockholders of the national banks would be an additional assurance of the security of the deposits. Thus the principal object of the savings banks will be to encourage habits of economy, not only among our own men and women, as well as children of 10 years of age or over, who live in places remote from any bank, but also to encourage the foreign settler to deposit his earnings in this country, because after he has accumulated a few hundred dollars he will not be content to receive merely 2 per cent interest, but will possibly seek to purchase a home, and the moment he acquires real property here he becomes a more conservative citizen, is actively interested in the affairs of the nation and at the same time places himself and his dependents beyond the likelihood of becoming public charges. Should, however, his earnings remain in the postal savings banks the fact that he has an interest in the government and something at stake will tend to make him a more desirable citizen."

Public speakers are frequently interrupted by people coughing. This would not happen if Foley's Honey and Tar were taken, as it cures coughs and colds and prevents pneumonia and consumption. The genuine has no opiates and is in a yellow package. Sold by T. F. Laurin Owl Drug Store.

Down at Fort Stevens—

Colonel Roessler was an official visitor at Fort Stevens and the jetty yesterday, and found all things to his liking in the matter of public works thereabout. During his stay, a fire-alarm was turned in at the post, for drill purposes, and the boys acquitted themselves most admirably in the evolution.
