MAN MILLINER'S JOB

Doubt as to How Trade Should be Classified.

CALLED A "HOT HOUSE PLANT"

Alexander Was Popular With Girls and Four of Them Walked Out With Him When Mrs. Potts Fired Alexander For "Endearing Terms."

CHICAGO, April 4.—A jury in the municipal court today yesterday virtually decided that one of the "perquisites" of the man milliner's job the privilege of addressing his subordinates as well as the customers of his employer with such familiar terms as "honey," "dearie" and "girlie."

And if the man milliner happens out walking with a girl wearing an out of date hat, he takes up into the employer's establishment and makes her one of those "French importations," it does not matter either.

The only thing that there appeared to be any doubt about was how the trade should be classified. The attorney opposed to the man milliner referred to him as a "peculiar species" and a "hot house plant," but the artist's own counsel resented this, and said he was the same as a "tailor or a teamster."

This all cropped out before Judge Houston in the suit of E. Ralph Alexander, now in business for himself against "Jack" Potts and his wife, Effie H. Potts, conducting a millinery establishment under the name of "Madame Jacques."

Mrs. Potts testified that she "fired" Alexander because of endearing terms to his customers. She was much offended; but Alexander was popular with the girls and four of them walked out with him. Alexander and Miss Caroline Munson sued the Potts couple for breach of contract, and the young woman, now associated in business with Mr. Alexander, on Thursday, was awarded $90, while Alexander yesterday was awarded $219.50 the full amount of his claim.
