

JAMESTOWN

POPULATION 3,500

Jamestown, the metropolis and trade center of the upper James River Valley, is the county seat of Stutsman county. It is equidistant from Fargo and Bismarck, about one hundred miles from each, and is located on the most beautiful site along the banks of the Northern Pacific Railroad, between the bluffs and the banks of the James River. The machine and repair shops and headquarters of the Dakota division of the Northern Pacific, and of the Jamestown & Northern railroads, are located here and it is the shipping and distributing point for the vast scope of country to the northwest reached by the latter railroad.

It has now direct connection with Southern Dakota and southern and eastern Minnesota by the Jamestown & Oakes branch of the Northern Pacific railroad, and the Chicago & North Western Extension. The St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul from the south to Jamestown, are in process of completion. The inevitable entrance of several trunk lines, its central location in Northern Dakota and the vast unoccupied stretches of fertile soil whose products are naturally valuable give Jamestown a future certainty of commercial importance, second to no city in the Northwest.

Jamestown has a graded public school, including a high school course, occupying two large school buildings and employing eleven teachers. Jamestown College, an institution of the highest class of instruction, liberally endowed, is now in its first year. The city contains six handsome church edifices, and its population, numbering 3,500, is made up from the best and most enterprising classes of the northeastern and northwestern states. It is surrounded for fifty miles in every direction by the world-famed wheat lands of the James River Valley, which furnish an immense and inexhaustible support to every department of industry and commerce. Its hotel accommodations, business blocks, mercantile and commercial enterprises are not surpassed by any city in the territory.

Considerable wheat has been marketed at the mill of late. It is said that the receipts at that establishment have been greater during the past two or three weeks, than at any corresponding time during the last three years. The one cent above market price seems to be an inducement this year.

Gregory of Minot, and Mr. Newman of Fargo, for applicant, and Geo. W. DAKOTA STOCK BREEDERS.

The annual meeting of the Stock Breeders for North Dakota, was called to order this afternoon by Dr. Alloway, territorial veterinarian, in the absence of President Kennedy. Secretary Johnson was present from Montrose, and stated that he expected a number of members of the association on tonight's train; that a delay in trains had probably prevented their arrival. Owing to the small attendance this afternoon, no regular routine work was accomplished. It was announced by Mr. Wade, that tomorrow night there will be a banquet and reception for the stockmen, and acting president, Dr. Alloway, made a few remarks upon the stock growing industry; its importance as a territorial factor and present prospects.

James A. Buchanan of Rio, and Gerald Pierce of Bismarck, were admitted as members of the association. A large attendance will no doubt be present, and the discussion of the regular program proceeded with at tomorrow's meeting.

Several of the visitors were driven to Wade's stock farm this morning, and inspected his herd of Holsteins. A number also intend to visit the asylum before returning home.

Among those noticed from abroad, are Dr. C. J. Alloway, territorial veterinarian; Hon. H. P. Rucker Grand Forks; John Ink, Wahpeton; James Buchanan, Rio, Gerald Pierce, Bismarck; Secretary H. O. Johnson, Montrose; E. E. Cuddeback and James M. Patton, Frederick; H. M. Kimball editor of the Northwestern Farmer, Fargo; F. P. Williams, of the Aberdeen Republican. Gen. Allen, Fargo is also looking on as well as Judge McHugh of Carrington.

Their Second Day in Convention—A Number of Interesting Papers Read and Followed by Animated Discussions by the Delegates.

The attendant delegates at the Fine Stock Breeder's convention were reinforced last night by the arrival of a number of gentlemen prominent in the stock and agricultural interests of the territory. Among them were President Lewis McLouth, of Brookings agricultural college, who is down for an article on "The principles of hereditary or selection breeding," and Geo. W. Hill, editor of the St. Paul Farmer.

An evening session was held last night, at which an informal discussion of pertinent topics was indulged in by the delegates present, and this morning's session was called to order at 9 o'clock by acting president, Dr. Alloway. The attendance shows an increase over that of yesterday, and what is lacked in numbers is made up in interest. An able and instructive article on contagious diseases was read by territorial veterinarian Dr. C. J. Alloway of Grand Forks, who related some of the valuable experiences which have come under his observation in his official capacity. On the subject of glanders, the doctor gave some important information. "This disease," he said, "is more prevalent than is generally supposed, and is found where least expected." Since the creation of his office, last April, he had traveled all over the territory, and cases of glanders from the Black Hills to Canada, and during these few months had killed 300 animals, some thirty of them at or near Bismarck. At the conclusion of the doctor's address, a general discussion of the topic occurred, participated in by Gerald Pierce, H. P. Rucker, Commissioner Buchanan and others, and interrogatories from the delegates called out more facts and observation from the territorial veterinarian on the burial of diseased animals, etc., etc. In response to a question in regard to its communication to human beings, Dr. Alloway related the circumstances of the death of a young man named Martin at Big Stone City, and of another party at Grand Forks—both of whom exhibited unmistakable symptoms of glanders. The case of the young man Martin was a sad one, the doctor said. He had been attending a glandered horse, and the front of his coat was glossy with the discharge from the animal's nostrils. Although repeatedly admonished, the young man disregarded his warnings, and two weeks after the death of the animal, died himself a loathsome and horrible death, evidently from glanders communicated to him from the animal he had been attending.

At the close of the discussion of the paper on contagious diseases, M. J. Briggs of Chicago, was called upon and read a paper upon "Our dairy interests." Mr. Briggs spoke of the remarkable nutrition found in Dakota grasses, and treated at length the various subjects pertaining to the development and ultimate success of the dairy interests. Mr. Briggs' views were discussed by the convention, new and untouched points brought out and others more fully discussed and diagnosed.

A number of delegates visited the asylum this afternoon, and were shown through the various buildings. All were loud in expressions of praise of Dr. Archibald's management.

Dakota Good Enough.

Several parties who have visited the Pacific coast in search of employment and speculative opportunities have recently returned to Dakota satisfied with this territory compared with the localities visited in Oregon or Washington. Rain falls uncessantly most of the time, the towns are over run with tramps and men who are dead broke. Town lots at Seattle are at exorbitant figures. Tacoma is not the booming place it is said to be, while Spokane Falls business is almost over done. Dakota is good enough compared to the coast for them.

Going Ahead.

The arrival of Contractor Kruse of Milwaukee, will accelerate the steam heating operations at the asylum and Gladstone hotel, now under way. Mr. Kruse, wife and child are at the Gladstone and will remain five or six weeks. The poles for the electric light plant have arrived and the boilers for this plant and the hotel are also here. The dynamo and other electric light machinery will be here in time to go in without delay after necessary preparations are ready. Supt. Carr's force of men are taking measurements and doing inside work for wires and lamps.
