

TYPHOID VACCINE CAUSES GUARDS SOME TROUBLE

Several Faint during Parade —Reserve Regiment to be Formed.

Bismarck, N. D., July 3.—The last three companies of the First regiment of the North Dakota National Guard will take the oath of allegiance to the United States today, and the state will be without any military.

A movement already has been started, however, to form a reserve regiment at once.

Typoid vaccine is causing many men to fall out. The captain, second lieutenant and 15 men of Bismarck's company were unable to report this morning. At the dress parade last night, which was viewed by 5,000 people, three fainted, and were carried of the field, in stretchers, and three others were escorted on the arms of two of their fellow soldiers.

The heat is intense, but the sanitary conditions are ideal, and special efforts are being made to give the boys the best of food, with plenty of fruit and green stuff.

PORTUGAL TO ENTER.
Lisbon, via London, July 3.—Premier Almeida, addressing a patriotic demonstration in Lisbon, at which President Machado was present said: "We shall soon be fighting alongside of our gallant and powerful allies."

MOVE HEADQUARTERS.
Denver, July 3.—Headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen will be moved from Peoria, Ill., to Cleveland in accordance with a resolution passed at the organization's biennial convention here today. A $1,000,000 office building will be constructed in the Ohio metropolis by the brotherhood.

IOWA'S CAVALRY IN CAMP.
Des Moines, July 3.—Iowa's first squadron of cavalry was greeted with cheers from 4,000 infantry and artillery when they reached Camp Dodge from Iowa City. There are 225 men in the squadron, 30 met at the last moment remembering their Quaker bringing up and refusing to take the federal oath.

Young Mountsmen Should Think of Hurler Donovan
Some of these young pitchers who are having a tough time finding control enough to help them into the big league will do well to recall the early days of Bill Donovan. In his later years "Wild Bill" became one of the most dependable twirlers in the history of baseball, but when he broke in he was truly horrible. That's why Bill was traded all over the old National league and to several other clubs on the Atlantic coast before he settled down.

Donovan's big debut was for BELL-ANS Absolutely Removes Indigestion. One package proves it. 25c at all druggists.

Washington against the Giants. He entered a wild and woolly fray in the fifth inning. The Giants made five runs in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh, and then the game was called on account of darkness. A short time later Bill was given a chance to work again. This time against Louisville. Donovan walked six men, caved in one of Dummy Hoy's ribs and lost by an overwhelming score. A week later he was started against the famous Baltimore Orioles. They made nine hits, drew seven bases and benefited by three wild pitches. All this was in 1888, and Donovan won but one game that year. Bill captured but one victory the next year, when he pitched for Brooklyn, and in 1890 he was at Hartford for seasoning. In 1911 he came to earth and then soared as a star, winning 25 out of 40 games.

ART INGALLS DIES SUDDENLY

Well Known Young Man Succumbs to Hemorrhage of the Brain.

Arthur Ingalls, aged 36, who for the past 34 years has been a resident of this city, died yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from hemorrhage of the brain after an illness of less than two hours.

Mr. Ingalls was taken suddenly ill in the ball game, but believing that the hot sun had caused his condition, returned to watch the game after a few moments rest in the shade. A second attack followed and together with several friends he started for the city on a street car. When near the Sims garage, corner Third street and University avenue, his condition became more serious and he left the car with the intention of walking the remainder of the distance.

When in front of the Sims building he became unconscious and was carried to the private office and a physician was called, but arrived too late to be of any assistance, as death had already overtaken the unfortunate man.

Mr. Ingalls has been employed for the past 15 years with the W. W. Egan cigar store and has been manager of the retail department for the past few years. He is well known in this city and has made many friends. He was born in Northwood, Iowa, and was the son of the late Colonel Ingalls. The only surviving relative is Miss Mabel Ingalls, Widlund block, this city.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the Eressee undertaking parlors with Rev. A. H. Thompson officiating. Interment will be made in Memorial Park cemetery.

The Wausau, Wis., Record-Herald gives these words of caution: "The narrow escape of two boys and two girls from drowning on Sunday afternoon should be a warning to others not to overload a canoe, and especially not to have temporary seats placed across the gunwales, for passengers. Canoes are tricky, at best, and with the weight above the water line they are almost certain to tip over. Putting boards across for seats is almost as foolish as rocking the boat."

WORTH KNOWING.
If vegetables have burned in the kettle put in soda and a little water, boil a while and the kettle is easily cleaned.
Sprinkle soda on the grease spots on the floor, then wash with lukewarm water and the result is fine.
Soda is good to clean the bowls and tubs in the bathroom.

EAST GRAND FORKS

SUIT-CASE THIEF GETS 90 DAYS

Caught in Act of Going Through Contents of Stolen Article.

A man giving his name as Wallace Galloway was sentenced this morning in police court to 90 days at hard labor for stealing a suit case Sunday morning.

The owner of the suit case, Oscar Christianson, stopped off in East Grand Forks yesterday morning, and put his case in the telephone booth of the station. Upon returning in a few minutes he found that his property had disappeared. He immediately informed Officer Nelson of the disappearance and a search was made.

The searchers found Galloway in a box car with the suit case before him. The officers were unable for a time to locate a suit which had been placed in the case before it was taken. The mystery was cleared up at the station when it was found that the suspect had put the clothes on, drawing his overalls over them.

At the trial the alleged thief pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of three months in the county jail.

BOOZE PARTY ENDS IN JAIL

Five Men and a Woman are Nabbed —Had Party Near Farmers' Elevator.

A party of six persons, consisting of five men and a woman, were arrested by Officer Quigley of the local police force, last evening about a half mile out of town.

It seems that the party had been out of town in an automobile and were coming in to East Grand Forks, but decided to enjoy themselves for a while on the way, so they stopped near the Farmers' elevator. They had not been there long before the police were informed of their presence and Officer Quigley was sent out to make the arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct.

This morning the members of the group were tried before municipal Judge Blair. Three of the men paid fines, while two were given suspended sentences. The woman is still locked up pending the payment of a fine.

BRAKEMAN IS HURT UNDER G. N. TRAIN

Fargo, N. D., July 3.—An accident that nearly cost the life of J. H. Cain, Great Northern brakeman, residing in Moorhead, occurred near the Tenth street crossing in this city.

Some cars were being switched on to the siding at that point. Mr. Cain slipped and fell in front of the moving car.

The cars passed completely over him. He escaped the wheels, but some of the beams caught his body, cutting a large gash in his head and bruising his side.

He was picked up and immediately rushed to a local hospital.

Reports from the hospital indicate that while his injuries are exceedingly painful his early recovery is anticipated unless complications set in.

BOY IS HURT WHILE OPERATING PLOW

Jamestown, N. D., July 3.—Bennie Wolter, 14-year-old son of Paul Wolter, a farmer living near Millerton, was seriously injured in the field. He was driving a plow while his smaller brother was following with the harrow. At the end of the furrow, the team came out without the driver and the little brother investigated.

He found his brother lying in the dirt with his head badly cut above the right eye. Dragging him to the edge of the field he summoned his father and the three made the trip to Jamestown, 20 miles, in their auto, in little over half an hour.

It is a serious accident, however, and the boy has not yet been able to explain what happened.

HETTY GREEN DIES TODAY

sole heiress to a fortune estimated at $5,000,000 and by the death of several aunts several millions more fell to her lot. The possession of so much wealth would have embarrassed most young women, but Hetty had inherited her father's business genius and was equal to the situation. She took personal charge of the management of the large estate, entered actively into business, placing her investments with the shrewdness and farsightedness of a born financier and extending the sphere of her business activity year after year. She bought a country try home at Bellows Falls, Vt., where she spent part of every summer rusticating, and invested largely in real estate in New York, Chicago and other large cities.

In 1867 she married Edward H. Green, who had made a large fortune in China and in South America. Two children were born to them, the first born a son, Edward Howland Robinson Green, who became a railroad man and president of the Texas Midland railroad and lived for many years in Texas, where he gained some political importance, and a daughter, Sylvia Green, who, in 1909 married Matthew Astor Wilks, a somewhat aged but wealthy New York clubman. Hetty Green's husband had the ambition to become a power in Wall street, but his speculations failed and he lost everything. But his wife never allowed him to touch her own fortune.

After his financial failure the two separated. Edward Green retired to the Green home in Bellows Falls and died there in 1902.

Hetty Green, no longer young and pleasure loving, devoted herself altogether to the management of her fortune, which steadily increased at a tremendous rate. Her children attempted several times to induce her to move to New York and live in the style becoming a woman of her wealth, but she preferred the simple life of a business woman and returned to her plain little flat in Hoboken or Jersey City, doing her own house-keeping and steadily increasing her omical in everything was her nature, but it is said that she was really kind hearted and secretly did many acts of charity.

TITANIC HOLOCAUST CONTINUES WITH FURY

for the great offensive and the section of the line where the big push was to be made. For many weeks the work went on, with silence required on the part of all officers, but most of them were so limited to their own areas that they did not know what was happening in the others.

Troops Placed at Night.
At all the messes, including the officers', the subject was barred from discussion, although all knew. The only spoken reference took place at consultations, and the official orders naturally bore on the matter. Battery emplacements were constructed, and batteries placed in position, and troops marched up at night, with no lights. The soldiers and company officers only understood that they were expected to leave their trenches at a certain time with a certain objective.

Before the action, Gen. Sir Douglas Haig moved his temporary headquarters nearer the front, where the chiefs of his department were in call and reports from many sections came promptly by telegraph and telephone, which carried his instructions back to the front, while he was also in touch with French headquarters by telephone.

With the attack beginning at 7:30 in the morning, by 8 o'clock the staff had reports as to whether the different units had already held the first line of German trenches or were advancing beyond. So it was known how far each had carried out the part assigned to it. Difficulty in keeping up communications through the curtains of shell fire and making observations through the smoke were not the smallest items of the preparations.

During the bombardment, the Associated Press correspondent made a most picturesque journey, working his way forward through transport and reserves on the march to a high point, and had a view of the shelling in the darkness, which was probably the most terrible display of fireworks in all times.

Far in the distance, these scenes in quick succession are the French IV's on the hills above the Somme. Other flashes of the same kind far to the north are the British field guns. Nearby, the small caliber machine guns flash sharp flashes from their muzzles, and the big caliber larger ones, as the missiles go swishing through the dewy night air and burst balls of expanding flame.

A flaming shot is laid across a ridge, and that is the barrage fire of the German guns anticipating a British attack. A long billowing glow as of phosphorescent mist—and that is the spray of high explosives from the mortars sent from behind the British onto the German trenches. Sheets and chains of man-made lightning a how trees and buildings or ruined walls, in weird silhouettes. As set pieces, the German flares slowly rise with dependable, steady illumination between the trenches. Green and red and other signal lights add to their variety until the eye aches and sensations are numbed with the thought of the struggle that is proceeding.

Now the Arabs are going to war against Turkey. The Turks are getting calamity in large measure.
