A Rural Nocturne.

Oh! the cricket
And the frog
In the grass and
In the bog!
How their rippling music soothes one!
How their gladness chorus smooths
one!
To salute the night garbed skies!
Just the cricket
And the frog
In the grass and
In the bog!

We will have no cares to burden
While the things of nature sing.
But a holy quiet rests us
Where the night birds softly wing
In and out of the sleeping verdure
Of the hedges and the trees,
And the sacred theme is wafted
In to lull us on the breeze.

There the kine in slumber huddle
And the fowl have gone to rest—
Mother Nature seems to nourish
All things living at her breast;
Strong, full throated comes the music
From the trees and from the bog,
And the leaders in the chorus
Are the cricket and the frog.

Oh! the cricket
And the frog
In the grass and
In the bog!
How their rippling music soothes one!
How their gladness chorus smooths
one!
How the unions arise
To salute the night garbed skies!
Just the cricket
And the frog
In the grass and
In the bog!

London, July 19.—Playing tunes on mouth organs under heavy fire figures in the recent award of two distinguished conduct medals.

HEROISM OF BRITISH TOLD

London "Gazette" Records Deeds of Those Getting the D. C. Medal.

London, July 19.—More than five hundred stories of deeds of heroism in France and Flanders are contained in a special supplement of the official London Gazette issued today. This supplement, which comprises twenty-seven pages, records acts of men who have been rewarded by the distinguished conduct medal.

There were many instances of bravery in connection with bombing exploits. The pluck and promptitude of Private P. Harrigan of the Fifth Royal Scots Fusiliers saved several casualties. Picking up a lighted bomb and hurling it out of the trench the bomb burst as it left his hand, seriously wounding him.

Sapper H. Proctor of the Ninety-seventh field company, royal engineers, carried a charge of high explosive into the enemy's trench and remained there alone for some time. Later, when ordered to fire the charge, he coolly replaced a defective fuse with a new one, and so averted a dangerous work in exposed positions," the record adds.

Corporal T. S. Askin of the Third West Riding battery, royal field artillery, furnishes an industrial example. During operations he was mending wires for fifty consecutive hours under shell fire.

A longer period of duty is credited to Quartermaster Sergt. R. C. Blair of the royal army medical corps. During operations he remained on duty ninety-six consecutive hours and on several occasions he showed marked bravery.

During mining operations Sergt. A. Ross of the 17th tunnelling company, royal engineers, worked for eighteen hours in a gallery two-thirds full of water without either food or rest to lay a charge at a critical period.

Appeals which come from the trenches for mouth organs and other humble instruments find eloquent justification in the following incident. At a critical moment Company Quartermaster Sergeant and Lance Corporal Vickersy, Seventh battalion, Seaforth Highlanders, steadied the men by playing tunes on a mouth organ, although exposed to heavy fire.

New Post Toasties are ready to eat direct from the package. They have a fine new flavor—self-developed by a new patented process. It's the rare, true flavor of prime, white Indian corn itself, and these New Toasties are the first corn flakes that do not depend on cream and sugar for palatability.

The proof of this superior flavour is found by eating some from the package dry. They're deliciously good that way, but of course are usually served with cream or good milk.

Examine the New Post Toasties flakes. The quick, fierce heat of the new process of manufacture, not only raises the distinguishing little bubbles on each flake, but gives a body and firmness that makes the New Toasties a more substantial food than ordinary "corn flakes."

New Post Toasties do not "chaff" or crumble in the package, and they don't mush down when cream is added. They come to you untouched by hand, and in moisture-proof packages that preserve their delightful oven-crispness until served at your table.

Well worth trying—these
