As the statement was written in English, a language that Mrs. Gullick Thompson does not fully understand, and she was surprised to find that the statement translated into Norwegian was such that it gave the impression that she had slandered her daughter-in-law. Mrs. Gullick Thompson is certain that she has never said anything wrong concerning her daughter-in-law, and wishes to announce the same through this paper. The statement made, as it appeared in the advertisement, was not given to be made public, but was given in the hope that it would satisfy Mrs. Knut Thompson and that thereby peace within the family circle might be restored.—Adv.

German Babies Have Full Supply of Milk

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Ambassador Gerard sent to the state department today a report from Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, an attaché of the American embassy at Berlin, saying no German babies were suffering for lack of milk; there was an ample supply of milk and milk powder for infants, only adults feeling the shortage. Dr. Taylor reported that one of the results of the general scarcity of milk had been to prevent its use for producing fats, oils and chemicals for military purposes. He found the property was vested in the state department today, reiterates her refusal to permit Red Cross supplies to enter territory controlled by the public allies unless assigned to Red Cross units. The communication was accepted as virtually closing the negotiations in which the United States has endeavored to get the supplies through despite the recent withdrawal of the Red Cross units.

COFFEE FOR SWEDEN TAKEN BY BRITISH

London, Aug. 1.—Holding coffee to be a foodstuff, Sir Sam Thomas Evans, president of the prize court, condemned today in that court 3,000 bags of coffee shipped from America to Gothenburg on the Swedish steamers Indiska and Syland. The court decided that the cargoes were in reality intended for Germany. Sir Samuel said that the real consignee was Boesch & Co. of Hamburg. He found the property was vested in that concern and that the doctrine of continuous voyage applied to the coffee, which he said was an important element of the relations of the German army.

FORCING RHUBARB IN HOUSE CELLAR

There is a larger demand than one might expect for rhubarb forced in the cellar in winter. J. W. Bemis of Middlesex county, Mass., is reported to have sold nearly half a ton in one winter, all forced in his house cellar. There is nothing difficult about the work, says a writer in Farm and Home, who explains that it is only necessary to get the rhubarb roots in the late fall and allow them to freeze hard, then to plant them close together in boxes in the cellar or on the cellar bottom. Plenty of water must be given. Quicker results are obtained if a layer of fresh horse manure is placed under the clumps, with two or three inches of loam over the manure to prevent burning. Planting may be continued at intervals until the middle of January and two months or more are required for the crop to mature. The collar being kept darkened, the stalks are almost white and carry but little leaf growth. Some growers allow enough light in the cellar to give the stalks a little more color. The flavor is very delicate and even the leaves may be used for salad. Fifteen cents or more a pound has been paid for early shipments by wholesale dealers.

M'VEY ASKS SECRETARY TO RELEASE STUDENTS

President of North Dakota University Fears Great Harm From Holding College Men.

President F. L. McVey of the North Dakota university has written a letter to Secretary of War Baker, urging him to release from duty, all students of universities, high schools and colleges who may belong to the national guard at the border and who will be unable to return when the term opens next September.

The calling of thousands of students to the border will be a big drain on the educational institutions of the country and unless favorable action is taken by the war secretary, it is doubtful if the enrollments in the majority of the larger institutions will equal that of last year.

In his letter to the secretary, President McVey cited the disadvantage to the young man to remain out of school one year or to release them during the middle of the term when it would be difficult for them to be able to make up the work which had been lost.

By forcing the young men to lose one year of education, it is generally believed that interest would be lacking during the following terms and that many would discontinue the studies they had commenced or fail to carry out their intentions of becoming professional men.
