The Fellow Who Worries. Here's to the fellow who worries. The brother who longs for the strife...

The fellow who worries is never contented to idle and rest. His duties are calling him ever.

Stop the fellow who worries with illness. Restrain him for days on his bed. And he'll think through the dreary night's stillness.

Then here's to the fellow who worries. The fellow of spirit and grit. Who faces life's feverish furies.

WOLCOTTS GATHER IN CHICAGO FOR REUNION. Chicago, Aug. 8.—Wolcotts from nearly every state in the union met in Chicago today to attend the twelfth annual reunion of the Society of Deacons of Henry W. Wolcott of Plymouth in 1830 and to whom more than 5,000 persons trace their ancestry through ten generations.

The American family of Wolcotts trace their name back to Sir John Wolcott, an Englishman who died in 1215 and whose descent through a Welsh line from the tenth century. The ancestral home still stands and the original coat of arms still is being used by members of the family.

Major William Hale Thompson of Chicago is to make the address of welcome at tomorrow's session of the reunion and Eben H. Wolcott of Indianapolis, Ind., president of the society, is to respond. Tomorrow afternoon the Wolcott family in several score automobiles will tour the city and tonight will attend a banquet at the Sherman House where the reunion is being held. Thursday will be devoted to business and Thursday night the reunion will close with a banquet at which it is expected nearly 1,000 members of the family will be present. Today was devoted to registration and to "getting reacquainted."

heard the racy up-and-down Surrey voices coming out from Canadian uniforms. But of course the overword was Canadian pure and forcible and mischievous.

One of the party in our care was a young man, and he had a terrible grilling from these voices. "Have you heard about the war?" "Oh, yes, there's a war on—sure." "Haven't you heard about the war?" So it went on for half an hour. The young man knew about the war, having retired from the army after severe wounds in Gallipoli, and he took it all in good part.

A dorgel song the Canadians were singing was in its way tremendously expressive of the great rally of Britons from all over the earth on the day of the great push:

Hall! Hall! the gang's all here. (What in heck do we care?) What in heck do we care? Hall! Hall! the gang's all here. What in heck do we care now? —London Correspondence Manchester Guardian.

BRAMM'S REQUIEM IN LONDON. We are still at a loss to understand why enemy music should be laid under contribution at the present time, either for amusement or by way of solemnity. Brahms' "German Requiem" to give it the full and formal title, is announced for performance in Southwark Cathedral. This is the composition of one of the most German of German composers. Are we, then, dependent on enemy sources if and when we wish, as presumably is the case, to honor the members of our gallant dead who gave their lives fighting that enemy? In nowhere else among belligerent countries would such an outrage be countenanced.

What will our allies think? Have our resource but Germany? We had of recent years come to think that the Russian school was a potent factor in the musical world. France, also, has played a considerable part in the development of the art. And what shall we say of Italy, with Verdi's splendid "Requiem for Manzoni"? Is not that better fighting that enemy? In nowhere else among belligerent countries would such an outrage be countenanced.
