Let Me Live.
Let me not moan of life
Shall break me on its wheel;
Let me rejoice that I
May share the things that I
The ecstasy of pain,
The woe of bitter night,
The clinging hand of fear,
The groping for a light.

If I be spared the knife
Of pain, I have not known
Or shared the life of Him
Who prayed at night alone
In dark Gethsemane;
Then let me joy that I
Have found the worthiness
To stand beneath a sky
That threatens me with ill
And still wait, unafraid.

The coming of the dawn
Though it be long delayed;
Then may I say I live,
I drink the cup I lose,
Yet in the losing gain
The heights. This do I choose.

—Flora Shufelt Rivola.

Yankton, S. D.
Mrs. Charles E. Hughes of New York city, is accompanying her husband and his party on his speaking tour across the United States, and she was a guest in the city for a few hours this morning at the Hotel Dacota.

MRS. O'SHAUGHNESSY WRITES OF MEXICO

Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy.

The recent publication of "A Diplomat's wife in Mexico" by Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, wife of the former American charge d'affaires in Mexico City, gives a new interest to the endless discussion of the Mexican problem. Mrs. O'Shaughnessy brings a new point of view. And as her husband's administration was at the time of Huerta's rule she had opportunities of studying Huerta and his rule.

All through her book Mrs. O'Shaughnessy is most awfully a Huerta partisan. Huerta could scarcely have pleaded for himself more heartily. The volume is in the form of letters from the writer to her mother.

"Huerta," says this admirer of the old dictator, "is a strong and astute man, and if the United States were not on his back he might eventually bring peace to his country."

They say the more he drinks the clearer his brain becomes." Mrs. O'Shaughnessy doubts whether she has the inclination or takes the time for an undue amount of grating. Just what a due amount of grating might be she fails to say.

On the occasion of a meeting with him at an official function Mrs. O'Shaughnessy describes him as "a short, broad-shouldered man of strong Indian type, with an expression at once serious, amiable and penetrating; he has restless, vigilant eyes and behind large glasses, and shows no signs of being afflicted with alcoholism. Instead, he looked like a total abstainer."

"Huerta," she declares, "has never governed himself and there is no reason to suppose that he can read a part of the 88 per cent that could fill his head at least learned to spell out a few words of the English language and pledged rights of man, voting and abiding by the results, are known and as long as Mexico is Mexico, unknowable."

As the guest of Miss Lenora McMahon and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hullek, the Ladies Aid society of the Zion Lutheran church held its regular meeting in the church parlors yesterday afternoon. The afternoon was given over to the reading of the reports from the dining hall at the fair grounds, and it was found that the ladies had taken in the sum of $1,600. The expenses amounted to something over $900 and so the ladies will have the sum of $700 to add to their treasury as a result of their work. After the business was completed, a social time was enjoyed and luncheon was served by Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Mrs. Jacob Asrud and Mrs. H. Johnson.

As Mr. and Mrs. William Mason Stone (Laura Deveraux) were leaving the city on their wedding trip last evening, Mrs. Stone tossed her bridal bouquet among the crowd and it was caught by Miss Hazel Fink.

Mrs. J. P. Lester and daughter, Geraldine, returned to their home at Lakota this morning, after spending a few days here at the home of Mrs. Lester came to the city to attend the wedding of her sister, Miss Laura Deveraux, at the home of Miss Stone of Crookston, which took place last evening.

Mrs. A. C. Politzkie of Ojata, who was also a guest at the wedding, returned home this morning.

Mrs. R. A. Wolfe and children, Gayle and Paul, of Minneapolis, who have been the guests of Mrs. Wolfe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burton, 324 South Third street for the summer months, returned to her home last evening.

Miss Hazel Fink presided at the piano and played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party, unattended, entered the room and took their places under a large white wedding veil, which was suspended from a bowler of smilax adorned with sweet peas. Quantities of smilax forming a pretty background. Before the ceremony Loy Benson sang, "The Hour That Gave Me You," by Schmidt, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. Miss Fink played soft-

Every mother values health for her children, and many neglect the right care of the mother's teeth, which make for health and good looks. The right start in life is your business. Give plenty of care to her teeth. If you are uncertain what should be done take the child to a dentist, and he will give you the best advice you can secure.—Adv.
