NO SYMPATHY SHOWN I. W.'S

Wasson Tells How Gang is Broken up and How Three Men Are Jailed.

How the ranks of the I. W. W.'s were broken by gun play and law enforcement and how Kensal was pitched into a pit of excitement by the appearance of the "wobblers" is pictured by W. T. Wasson in an article in the Kensal Progress of which he is editor.

Excitement High.

"On Monday night local excitement ran high and the ranks of the Industrial Workers of the World were broken and scattered while three of the ring-leaders boarded over night at the village battle," writes Wasson. "While Constable Brady was at supper, two of the I. W. W.'s tried to get a farm laborer into joining their organization. The interview attracted some attention. It became necessary for the proselyters to use a gun on their prospect and the fellow objected.

Posse Rounds Up Men.

"The result was that when evening set in, Constable Brady got some reinforcements and the posse rounded up the men in the jungles while looking for the two I. W. W. hold-up artists.

"Excitement grew intense when through the grass and the tuffard grove, Mr. Brady found it necessary to shoot, emptying his gun twice, though the darkness hindered his doing effective work.

Three Men Jailed.

"As the result of the round-up, three men were put in jail. In the morning the constable single-handed, lined up and searched the denizens of the jungles and secured one shooting iron. It seems probable that the three are shrewd enough when trouble is brewing to hide their guns until they are ready to board an outgoing train."

Relief From Diabetes

Notwithstanding the advance of medical science during the past century, diabetes still continues to baffle the most learned medical men. ## RAY ANNUAL FAIR DRAWS BIG CROWD

Williston, N. D., Aug. 15.—The first day of Ray's annual grain palace and fair, found the streets of that hustling city packed with people from the farms and surrounding towns.

The streets were gaily decorated and many booths had been erected for the vending of wares always attracting to holiday crowds. A commodious pavilion served for band concerts, speaking and dancing. The palace or exhibit hall contained some fine samples of grain, vegetables and fruit. The woman's department was crowded full of samples of splendidly done art needle work.

The exhibits of horses and cattle were of unusual number and excellence. These were judged by E. A. Chamberlain, a member of the Dakota Farmer staff.

Mr. Chamberlain gave an interesting and instructive address at the pavilion in the afternoon, devoting most of his time to a discussion of the value of a balanced system of diversified farming and the folly of putting all one's eggs in one basket.

The big entertainment feature of the day was the Cando-Williston ball game. Saturday's program was entirely destroyed by the rain.

THE TEST OF PROGRESSIVISM

New York Times: If principles mean anything, the Progressive party was anything more than an expression and vehicle of Mr. Roosevelt's political hatreds and a choir to hymn his worship, the mass of Progressives who believed in 1912 that the Republican party was reactionary cannot now be herded back into that party unchanged, unrepentant, bossed by the same old bosses, devoid of any issue save the noble one of "beating Wilson" and getting the offices.

WEATHER TAKES TURN AND MERCURY MOUNTS

Thermometer Registered 90 Degrees Tuesday After Period of Cool Weather—Lowest Was 59.

The thermograph at the university weather station yesterday registered a rise of over 22 degrees in temperature in six hours. At 7 o'clock in the morning the reading was 58 degrees, at 2 o'clock a maximum of 90.4 degrees had been reached.

The maximum yesterday was the greatest this month with the exception of that reached on the 3rd. It follows a period of cool weather which has been a relief after the exceedingly hot weather prevailing during the latter part of July. At one time the mercury fell to just seven degrees above freezing temperature, reaching a minimum of 59. The average of the maximum readings for the first half of August is 80.5 degrees, and the average for the minimum is 63.6 degrees.

INFANT MORTALITY IS DECREASING IN STATE

Report of State Board of Health Shows Less Children Dying—Births Exceed Deaths.

According to the quarterly report of the state board of health, which has just been issued, infant mortality is on the decrease in the state. The number of deaths of children under the age of one year was 148 for the second period of 1914, as compared with 184 a year ago.

The total number of deaths in the state for the quarter was 80, as compared with 718 for the same period last year. Two died from homicide, and six from suicide. Nine died from suicide during the corresponding three months in 1915.

In Grand Forks county the total number of deaths was 60, while 108 were born during the period. In Grand Forks city the deaths lead the births, there being 54 of the former and 53 of the latter. It is quite probable, however, that the full number of births has not as yet been reported by physicians, many reports not being sent in for several months after the births occur.

KING GEORGE VISITS SOMME FRONT

body called for three cheers for the king which were given with a will. Made Out Own Program.

Sir Douglas Haig, as the king's host, told him what was well worth seeing during his visit and then the king laid out his own program yesterday. This allowed him to have a look at the town which had been shelled recently by guns of big caliber. As he and the prince went about the city examining the enormous craters in the square and the ruins of the old town hall, his attendants were considering what might happen if another crater was made where the occupant and heir of the throne were standing.

Etiquette did not permit them to tell royalty to move on, but they suggested it politely. Royalty, however, persisted in remaining in the square until curiosity was satisfied.

Saw Work of All Troops.

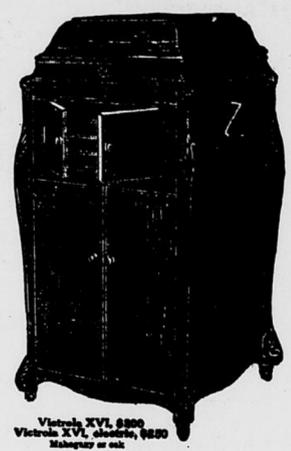

When the king visited the men of the Scottish division which has seen such desperate fighting at Delville or "Devil's Wood," the survivors of the South Africans gave him the Zulu war cry. He managed to see something of all kind of the serious fighting under the British flag, from the Scotch, English and Irish troops from overseas. A machine company of the anshires in quarters on a front farm was the most surprised of all by his visit. Leading the way he walked into a barn with its crooked beams and plaster walls and litter of straw on which the men were lying after their turn on the firing line. The most amazed of the company was one soldier with a healthy snore which was the last of those asleep to awaken. Blinking and rubbing his eyes, he looked up to see the face of the king. At first he refused to believe that some trick was not being played on him, and then convinced he scrambled to his feet while the king broke out laughing.

More than once the king's car had to draw on one side of the road as a battery of guns swept close to its panels or a marching battalion passed by. When Private Proctor of the Liverpool regiment was told the king himself was going to pin a Victoria cross upon him, Proctor confessed to being scared.

When Private Proctor of the Liverpool regiment was told the king himself was going to pin a Victoria cross upon him, Proctor confessed to being scared.

But you were not scared when you fought the Germans," he was told.

"No, I know how to act when I meet Germans, but not when in the presence of kings."

"I believe I have found my youngest soldier," exclaimed the king when he saw a 12-year-old boy among the Northampton. But little Joseph Le-fevre was not English. He is the son of a dead Belgian soldier and was found wandering about under shell fire at Ypres, adopted by the battalion and placed on its rolls.

He told his story in French to the king and said: "They will not let me go up to fight, but keep me back with the transport."

The king said: "As I was going to suggest and, being a soldier, you will have to obey orders."

Informal Review.

If there could be said to be any review, it was an informal one. When the king went to call on General Bird-wood, he met a battalion of Austrians who were just coming out of the trenches after taking Poitiers ridge. With their steel helmets back on their heads, their shirts open at the neck, their skins tanned as Indiana, their clothes rent and streaked with earth stains, they lined the road and gave him an Austrian cheer.

General Joffre came over from his headquarters and President Poincare came from Paris to take lunch with King George and Sir Douglas Haig. On Sunday King George lunched with King Albert of the Belgians. Throughout the week a moving picture man was doing his best to keep up with the king, while the diffident Prince of Wales was noticeably efficient in slipping out of the picture just as the operator began turning the crank. Not the least of many scenes with dramatic appeal during the king's visit was that on the quay when the king landed. He was received by a guard of honor from a battalion of the king's Royal Rifles, 75 per cent of whom had been wounded.

SCARCITY.

"True friendship is scarce," said the man who frowns.

"It only seems so," replied the man who smiles, "to those who do not know how to deserve it."
