

PROGRAM FOR CELEBRATION IS ANNOUNCED

Labor Unions to Stage Contests in East Grand Forks Park on Monday.

Rev. Father William Klinkhammer to be Principal Speaker of the Day.

Business houses, banks, the post-office and the majority of offices in Grand Forks will be locked to the public on Monday afternoon when the labor unions will stage a program in the East Grand Forks city park in recognition of Labor day.

Many of the local business men stated this afternoon that they would close shop in order to give the clerks and other employes an opportunity to attend the Labor day program. The postoffice will be closed all day, with the exception of one hour during the morning when the general delivery window will be open. The banks will be closed all day.

Rev. Father William Klinkhammer, pastor of the East Grand Forks Catholic church will be the principal speaker of the day and will deliver an address during the afternoon in the park.

Many sport events have been scheduled and at present over 100 prizes have been contributed by business men to be used as awards for the various races and other contests. Valuable articles will be offered to the winners and it is expected that the competition in each event will be unusually keen. An entertainment program of no little merit has also been provided.

Many visitors are expected in the city for the occasion and it is believed that the accommodations will be taxed to capacity unless weather conditions are unfavorable.

CIVIL WAR VETS GIVEN PRAISE

Lauded for Returning to Pursuits of Peace After Struggle.

Kansas City, Sept. 2.—Praise for the soldiers of the civil war, for their return to the pursuits of peace at the conflict's end instead of establishing a military power was sounded by Capt. E. R. Monfort, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., at its annual encampment here today.

"May we counsel prevail, and may fraternity, charity and loyalty control our deliberations in every detail of our work," said Capt. Monfort.

"Fifty years have come and gone since our association was founded, and we have gathered in this beautiful city to honor our golden anniversary. The record of a half century since the civil war has no parallel in the world's history. The progress and development in education, in science, in art, in literature, in inventions and in industrial and commercial activities have been marvelous. Our population has increased, our numbers have multiplied, until we are the richest and take rank among the foremost nations of the world.

"The moral domain has been richly fertilized with the blood of freemen. You, my comrades, have contributed more to this end than any other class because of your labors and sacrifices for the benefit of the nation. In this service you confirmed the guarantees of our constitution. You broke the shackles on the limbs of five millions of bondsmen. You taught other nations that in this country all men are born free and equal before the law, entitled to labor and receive the reward of their labor.

"You did not seek to establish a military power, for when the bugle notes of victory were sounded you turned from war to peace. The world marveled at this sudden transformation. The people of other lands did not understand the educational processes that had developed the vigor and manliness of American character that could make a man a soldier in war and a quiet citizen in time of peace.

"Let us rejoice that you, my comrades, were able to subdue the passions of war by your return to the pursuits of peace and begin at once to build on the foundations you had so well laid. I congratulate you that so many are yet living to see and enjoy the unparalleled development of the nation you have saved from disruption. You planted and have cultivated the tree of peace, the harvest is greater than the planting.

"My comrades, is it not inspiring to know and feel that each and every one of us are a part of that moral force that brought about these glorious results? Though our heads may be silvered and our steps tottering, let us keep the flag flying and lift up our voices with the rest of the world for national unity, for equal rights for all men, and for honesty and purity in the state and in the home.

Swedish Navy, Despite Extra Precautions, Unable to Keep Warring Craft From its Shore

SUBMARINES HAVE SLIPPED WITHIN THREE-MILE LIMIT AND CARRIED AWAY PRIZES—NORTH SEA OPERATIONS PUT SERIOUS STRAIN ON COUNTRY'S NEUTRALITY.

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 20.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The fear expressed in government circles here that belligerent naval operations in the Baltic this summer would place a heavy burden upon the neutrality of Sweden seems to have been amply justified by the events of the past few weeks. The Swedish navy, small but efficient, has worked night and day to keep the territorial waters free of infringement, but despite this vigilance submarines and stealthy destroyers of the warring powers have slipped into the three-mile limit and stolen away with a prize crew.

Germany has been the chief offender of late, but the Russians also guilty of poaching earlier in the summer and still hold two German steamers taken within the three-mile limit despite the protests of the Swedish government. The Germans seem to have adopted the practice of capturing a ship, taking off such supplies as they need, and then releasing the vessel with a polite apology. Recently a Swedish ship, the Oscar II.—not the ark of peace but a tiny little white steamer belonging to a coast trader—was captured by German destroyer and taken to a German Baltic port. There every bit of lubricating oil was removed from the steamer and the crew allowed to purchase the merchandise naturally expressed their willingness to pay for the oil. They would pay a fortune to anyone who could run a cargo of oil past the British blockade.

The incidents of sunk or captured ships have been many, but there have been far more unheeded instances where raids have been prevented by the presence of Swedish cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats. It is no easy task to patrol a coast line which stretches from the northern crescent of the Gulf of Bothnia down through the entire length of the Baltic and out into the Carian sea. It is always possible to "chaperone" the merchant ships flying belligerent flags and seeking the neutral shelter of the three-mile limit. It is no strange sight along the coast to see a German or a Russian "lubber" churning the waters side by side, or to see a German and an English ship pass in the night without the slightest sign of recognition. And it is always safe to assume that somewhere along this jagged rock coast there is lurking a spider-like destroyer, ready to pounce upon the steamer the moment it may stray "outside" or sometimes through over-eagerness to step into the line and "persuade" the richly laden tramp to "step a little wider" of the dangerous coast.

There have been numerous incidents of late wherein the Swedish naval vessels have been in action against belligerent destroyers and submarines, and some of the naval officers here in Stockholm say they have rather a new respect for the "blows" for they have had all the drudgery of war with none of the glory.

One of the newest Swedish torpedo boats, the Castor, is commanded by Prince William, second son of the king and a very popular young man. The prince is in greatest honor in Stockholm but the duties of his coast patrol have kept him away for a long time and his slim little gray vessel has been one of the chief defenders of Swedish neutrality.

An English steamer recently was making her way out of the Baltic when accosted by a German destroyer. Knowing he was in the presence of territorial waters the English captain at first paid no heed. Then the destroyer slipped to the inside of the cargo vessel and in a few minutes English the German commander directed the Englishman to steer south. The order was not answered, but soon the destroyer began to crowd the merchantman so it was necessary for him to alter his course and he was gradually approaching the open and unprotected waters of the Baltic when the Castor, with Prince William at the helm, six feet three, on the bridge, dove in sight. The Castor came dashing to the scene, white spray flying from her clean cut bow.

"What is the matter here?" called out the prince in even better English than the German had employed. The English captain responded to the reply that he was being ordered by the German to steer to the south so that he could be legally captured and taken as a prize to Swinemunde.

"You take orders from no one but me," directed the prince. "Keep to your original course and I will protect you." The German slunk away and the English ship, escorted by the Castor, proceeded in safety.

Within the past week the greatest concern has been caused here by the sinking of several Swedish ships by German submarines. This practice has caused the greatest uneasiness in the Berlin government that foodstuffs shall be considered contraband as well as certain classes of timber, principally pine, used for use in the English coal mines. Other Swedish ships have been captured as prizes. The English captain responded to the reply that he was being ordered by the German to steer to the south so that he could be legally captured and taken as a prize to Swinemunde.

"You take orders from no one but me," directed the prince. "Keep to your original course and I will protect you." The German slunk away and the English ship, escorted by the Castor, proceeded in safety.

phazised in our trinity of principles. Fraternity, charity and loyalty, is love in action. Moved by this impulse, the strong care for the weak, and so they carry joy and hope to those of our number who need a helping hand. As we decline in numbers and strength, we rejoice that our affiliated societies are growing stronger and more active in their tender loving ministrations.

"Memorial day, with its precious memories of heroic service and sacrifice is dear to the hearts of our comrades. The time for mourning has its limitations. Let us rather look upward from the tombs of deceased comrades into the sunlight of the coming day of our reunion. Let us raise our blood-stained banner to full mast and rejoice that our dead have not died in vain. Let the flag symbolize that in laying down their lives they have left rich and lasting legacies for humanity. The celebration of Memorial day is the climax of the purest patriotism. Like pilgrims we gather annually at the sacred mounds that cover the ashes of our heroic comrades. Their graves are the earthy altars where we place our lights and candles of patriotism. As we assemble on these anniversary occasions, let us pause for a few moments, dip our flags and with uncovered heads, drink in an inspiring draught of patriotic devotion to the principles of which they gave their lives, and there, between the living and the dead, have a vision of the journey from mortality to immortality, and, turning from the sacred spot, again resolve that we will renew our allegiance to the cause for which they have died, to the full measure of their devotion."

"Fifty years have come and gone since our association was founded, and we have gathered in this beautiful city to honor our golden anniversary. The record of a half century since the civil war has no parallel in the world's history. The progress and development in education, in science, in art, in literature, in inventions and in industrial and commercial activities have been marvelous. PLAGUE GETS INTO LA CROSSE

Two Pronounced Cases Develop in Down River City.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 1.—Infantile paralysis, against which the city has been waging defensive warfare since the outbreak of the epidemic, has made its appearance in La Crosse. Two cases are today under isolation. Neither of the two children who are affected is in danger of death, but in both cases paralysis of the limbs has occurred.

The signs of the times point toward a busy car shortage of large proportions.

Used Resinol For Bad Skin-Trouble

Considers Her Cure Remarkable.

June 25—"For almost six months I suffered from a severe case of skin trouble on my leg between the ankle and knee. It began by swelling, with severe pains day and night, followed by constant itching. My leg soon became inflamed, and later water blisters and pimply sores broke out on it. At this time my leg was at least one-third above its normal size, and the continual itching and burning sensation was something terrible. I applied many remedies, but gained no relief until I commenced using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap from which I obtained relief by the first application. After a continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the swelling was reduced, the itching and burning were entirely relieved and a complete cure was effected, having used only three jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap. My trouble was so serious, and I consider the cure remarkable." (Signed) Mrs. H. W. Neefus, 825 Pearson St., Greensboro, N. C.

Man and Wife Wanted on Farm

Dozens of farmers are seeking just such a combination for the winter—the man to do the general outside work and his wife to assist with housework.

The Grand Forks Herald goes into the farm homes in North Dakota, Northern Minnesota and Montana.

Men and women who seek places on these farms can get in touch with just the kind of jobs they desire by using a Herald Want Ad a few days.

For a penny a word a day you can describe the kind of place you wish. Nearly 75,000 readers will see your little ad—and somewhere among that number someone will require your services.
