HERE IS REAL AMERICANISM, MR. WILSON

was couched in more vigorous terms than any he has heretofore employed. "The administration asks for a vote of confidence," he said, "but its defects are certainly about as prominent when its record is critically examined. When its humiliating failure to safeguard American rights is held up to the consideration of the people, it escapes by asserting that its conduct had no alternative but war; that to disapprove its conduct is to favor war."

That Mr. Hughes characterized as an "astounding assertion" which could not avail to "divert attention to serious errors committed."

The administration in its dealings with Mexico were cited to uphold his contention that the country had not been kept out of war, but that it had waged "an ignoble, personal war" against Huerta in the days of his power.

"Has America forgotten Carrizal?" he asked. "What was that, peace or war?"

"We have not been kept out of war," Mr. Hughes repeated. "We have intermittently peace without honor, and we have not been kept out of war. We cannot say now," he added, "in what particular sort of mess we shall find things in March next, but this much is certain: that with responsibility we shall be able to have it understood that there will be no meddling in matters which do not concern us, and that we will not simply talk of the rights of other states, but shall observe them, and further, that at all events the lives and property of American citizens shall be protected."

Mr. Hughes passed to the Eupropean war, the outbreak of which, he said, "found us with prestige seriously impaired."

American Prestige Gone. "Again the administration lamentably failed to perform the primary duty to safeguard American lives," the candidate declared. "The administration was not convincing, because many but ineffective, because it was not believed that they would be backed by deeds. Had this movement been of both informal and formal diplomatic opportunities, it is no doubt that when we said 'strict accountability' we meant precisely what we said, and that we should unhesitatingly vindicate that position, an confidence that there would have been no destruction of American lives by the sinking of the Lusitania."

The Republican party proposes to protect American lives on land and sea, Mr. Hughes said, adding that the same duty and property on the same footing, but that the administration had been remiss also with respect to the protection of American property and commerce.

"No American who is exercising only American rights shall be put on any blacklist by any foreign nation," the candidate asserted. "We propose to stand up for the rights of American property and American trade, according to our rights under international law. This is a policy of peace, not of war, and a policy which assures respect to the rights of all nations, and the integrity of international law and the rights of neutral states."

"But we shall achieve nothing in the service of humanity unless we maintain our self-respect and the dignity of American citizenship. That is the true path of national peace and security."

VAST GOLD RESERVE HELD BY GERMANY EXCEEDS ENEMIES

Berlin, Oct. 10.—Recent publications by central banks of issue in belligerent countries show interesting developments since the beginning of the war, says the Overseas View agency.

"At the end of July, 1914, the circulation of bank notes, covered by gold reserves, was 89.2 per cent, by the Russian bank, 82 per cent by the Bank of France, and only 60 per cent by the German Reichsbank. During the war, however, the relation has changed completely."

"While the German gold reserve has increased uninterruptedly, the Russian and French gains have been slower in proportion to the increase in the circulation of notes. Thus the Russian proportion in March, 1915, was only 50 per cent. And since the middle of the war it has been lower than the Reichsbank. At the end of August, 1916, 34.2 per cent of the notes of the Reichsbank were covered by gold, while the Bank of France had only 25.8 per cent and the Russian State bank 22.3 per cent."

"The proportion in the case of the Reichsbank increased further during September, and reached 44 per cent on September 21. The proportion of the Bank of France declined further, and on October 3 was at 24.6 per cent. Germany, although cut off from gold imports, still has a vast gold reserve. The amount of coined gold in circulation is estimated at 500,000,000 marks, in addition to which large quantities are in possession of private citizens."

CARDINAL GIBBONS FOR ARMY TRAINING TO PRESERVE PEACE

New York, Oct. 10.—Cardinal Gibbons placed himself on record as emphatically in favor of military training for the young men of this country.

"I am intimately persuaded that such a training is of vital importance for the welfare and security of the nation," the Cardinal said. "The discipline which the young men will acquire will develop their character and improve their physical condition. The association of the sons of wealth with the sons of poverty, the sons of America with the sons of a foreign land, cannot fail to create a spirit of fraternity among the young men, to weld them together as future citizens of a common country."

"Another advantage is that the discipline will instill into them the spirit of obedience to lawful authority, a virtue too often disregarded in our land of freedom."

"Moreover, I am persuaded that this military preparation will make for peace rather than for war. Another consideration is that the few years of our youth will spend in military discipline will not indefinitely withdraw them from the active and pacific pursuits of life."

East Grand Forks MANY ATTENDED CROOKSTON MEET

Red River Flood Control Measures Were Discussed.

A meeting of the Minnesota Red River Development association was held last night at Crookston for the purpose of discussing an adequate weed law and means for solving the drainage problem affecting the territory. The problem has many ramifications.

A resolution was passed that a committee of one from each Minnesota-North Dakota town in the Red river area investigate and recommend a proper resolution for a preliminary survey for the further dredging of the Red river and the Red Lake river. A comprehensive survey of the Red Lake river from the Red Lake to Grand Forks, in charge of E. J. Duggan, a government engineer representing the department of the interior, is well under way and will be completed during the week. This survey will have much weight this winter, when the state and federal governments will be asked to jointly work out a plan of reclamation, drainage and water control of the entire Red river valley of the north basin.

The survey shows the stage of the water at various points, together with entering ditches, whether wet or dry, bridges, height of banks, obstructions, natural or artificial, and all other necessary information.

The place and date of the next meeting will be announced later. Both Fargo and Breckenridge made strong bids for it. Various committees will be organized to carry out the work.

A recommendation for the passage by the next legislature of an adequate weed law was made, with a clause to compel land owners to cut and dispose of all obnoxious grasses on their premises. At the present time the weed causing the most worry is the sow thistle, which made its appearance during the last two years.
