She's First Woman Attorney General in United States

Miss Clara Ruth Mozzer.

Denver, Dec. 18.—Clara Ruth Mozzer, Denver attorney and former newspaper girl, has been appointed as assistant attorney general by the attorney general-elect, Leslie E. Hubbard, by express desire of women's organizations throughout the state. She was admitted to the bar in 1910.

Miss Mozzer has lived in Denver since early childhood, and was educated here, being graduated from East Denver high school, took her B. A. degree at Denver university, and graduated in law from the University of Colorado. She was playground instructor in the public schools for three years, and also lectured on the subject at teachers' institutes. During one summer she lectured under the auspices of the Midland Chautauqua association. She was also a reporter and feature writer on various Denver papers.

In announcing her appointment, Mr. Hubbard said: "This appointment is made pursuant to the united request of the Democratic women of Colorado and is in recognition of their splendid loyalty to the Democracy. Today man holds no monopoly of the patriotism and brains of the nation. The voice of reason dictates the recognition of woman to an important place in the councils of the state."

White House Social Program Announced

Washington, Dec. 18.—The program for the White House winter social season has been announced and, as was generally expected, it omits the colorful diplomatic reception, because of the war, and also the time-honored New Year's reception for the public, in accordance with the custom President Wilson set when coming into office.

In place of the diplomatic reception there will be two diplomatic dinners. The entire diplomats and all neutrals will be entertained at the first, and the diplomats and all neutrals will be guests at the second. The embarrassments which would be caused by inviting the representatives of the warring powers to rub elbows at the same reception may be more imaginary than actual, but they are regarded by the social managers as having possibilities, notwithstanding that it is said the ambassador from one of the principal entente allies and the ambassador from one of the principal Teutonic powers always exchange courteous greetings when they pass the street. However, the program has been arranged to keep the warring diplomats apart.

The social events all come on Tuesday instead of Thursday, as formerly, the season begins earlier and ends in February instead of March, probably due to the fact that the White House wants it over by inauguration time. This is the program as officially announced.

- Dec. 12—Cabinet Dinner, 8 p. m.
Dec. 13—Judicial Reception, 9 p. m.
Jan. 9—Diplomatic Dinner, 8 p. m.
Jan. 16—Diplomatic Dinner, 8 p. m.
Jan. 23—Congressional Reception, 9 p. m.
Jan. 30—Supreme Court Dinner, 8 p. m.
Feb. 6—Army and Navy Reception, 9 p. m.
Feb. 13—Speakers Dinner, 8 p. m.

Before the war the diplomatic reception was the social show of the winter. Invitations were sought so eagerly by those who were not quite sure to be invited that the president set the rule of placing an arbitrary limit on the number, outside of the diplomatic corps, who were to be invited without his personal approval. In form the reception differed little from those to congress, the army or navy, or the judiciary. In fact it had a distinctly different atmosphere. The brilliant uniforms of the diplomats and their aides, the distinctly foreign manners of many, and the ceremony with which custom surrounds a diplomat when he is out in full dress uniform made the reception distinctive from the others.

In a general way, all receptions are conducted alike. A few special guests are permitted to enter the main door of the executive mansion but most enter at the east entrance and after leaving outer garments in the lower corridors of the White House form in long lines leading up the marble staircase to the first floor and into the Blue Room where the president and Mrs. Wilson, aided by members of the cabinet and their wives with army and navy aides in full dress, receive them.

The introductions are made by an aide; a brief word of greeting is spoken, followed by a hasty handclasp and the guest passes along to the end of the receiving line to spend the remainder of the evening moving about or chatting with friends in the crowd. Even to personal friends the president or his wife cannot say more than a word because to each of the receptions come between 1,500 and 2,000 persons and things have to move on time. In the state dining room the guests usually find a buffet luncheon and in opposite ends of the main corridor two sections of the Marine band play almost continuously.
