The Democratic Meeting at Cooper Institute.
After great puffing and blowing the Democracy of New York had a "grand turnout" at Cooper Institute on Wednesday evening. The World's account of it is a curiosity, showing up, as it does, the desperate fortunes of this decaying and desperate party. The meeting is the latest and rarest exhibition of Democratic impudence. Claiming that the Democracy has controlled New York City in these matters, they adopted an address, declaring that they "faithfully supported the Government in all just measures," and the loyal defenders of the Government the strongest and merging all minor issues in the supreme consideration of the safety of the Republic, has never wavered in its support of the war for the overthrow of the rebellion and the restoration of National Unity. "Whenever in the dark days of defeat and disaster it was necessary to rally the country, or whenever any crisis of success or failure was at hand, the Democracy was fitting to raise still higher the standard of victory, the great metropolis has furnished the greatest demonstration of confidence in the sublime cause for which the brave soldiers of the Union were fighting, and has given those soldiers that encouragement and enthusiasm without which no armies could have sustained so severe and protracted a contest." Infilling and loyal defenders of the Government during the war, will wonder to what extent these patriotic uprisings of the great metropolis have been promoted by the Copperhead party! Were the Woods, Belmont, Barlow, and others whose illustrious names figure in this marvelous account, at the head of these patriotic movements?

They then proceed to "emphatically approve and adopt the admirable resolutions" of the Albany Convention—whom our readers will recollect are full of pompous declarations of loyalty and overdone praises of President Johnson, (which were told by their author were put in against the advice of Marble and Cassidy and declared "Copperhead figments.") Once at this brazen face and villany of representing the Chicago platform and endorsing other public or private expressions of their sentiments, there is no depth too miserable for them. And they go on to declare themselves the "only original" war men, the unwavering adherents and bleeding defenders of our "blessed country," the pillars of the Constitution, and their success "the last best hope of the country." Through long familiarity with the stupendous jokes of this timblebragg party, we confess that this last specimen of unparalleled brassiness is almost a stunner. We were prepared for almost anything from a party whose leaders are political gamblers and whose masses are "stark mad" over the astonishing "bugles of war" which they hear, but this indeed, the "Hymn of Fraternity," the stime-sickening address spawned upon President Johnson, who is pronounced "ALL A PATRIOT—THE MOST EMINENT STATESMAN OF THE AGE, is natural enough. It is the Democratic stock in trade, just now, to bespatter the President with epithets, to praise, that they may divert him from loyalty and seduce him from honor. They may tyrannize his administration, grab the rich gifts of his patronage, and seek vengeance on the radicals, but their falsehoods without shame, and mouth their falsehoods without remorse.

It is interesting to see that this boisterous assemblage of "untiered" patriots was addressed by Sargent Co. General Slocum, John Van Buren, and Montgomery Blair. "What a motley set! How mighty is "the cohesive power of public plunder!"

In the list of Vice Presidents of the New York Democratic Convention, "the gathering" of near men—the names of Charles O'Connor, the most distinguished champion of slavery and apologist for the South at the New York bar, and the senior counsel for Jeff. Davis; George Ticknor Curtis, the recent son of New England, whose frigid conservatism drove him away from the shadow of Banker Hill; and William J. Foster, a special pet of the News office; and A. Oakley Hall and Mantou Marble, late renegades from the Republican party, whose zeal as new converts drives them to the farthest extreme of dogmatic "loyalty." Thomas C. Fields, the New York pettifogger, who spouts treason in the Legislature, and a great number of other kindred spirits. Truly a beautiful and appropriate list to adorn the proceedings of a war meeting of the loyal friends of the Administration and the Union! What sort of a "cat in the meal" is this? O, superlative impudence, thy name is Democracy!

Loss More Than One Million of Dollars
We extract from the Detroit Tribune the following account of the great fire which occurred in that city on Wednesday:
The most destructive conflagration that ever afflicted our city occurred last evening at an early hour, causing a loss, the enormous amount of which will reach, not only in the amount of property destroyed, but in the loss of business, the sum of $1,000,000. The fire broke out at the corner of the Central railroad, stored with valuable commodities, representing capital of all people of the country, and was first discovered by the firemen of the Wick street, destroyed, crippling the powers of one of the most important and enterprising corporations of the West, and inflicting losses amounting to the millions, will seriously retard their development.

ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.
A train of cars was being loaded with freight in the second section, or room, of the depot, devoted exclusively to goods going to Chicago and further west. Four or five cars were already filled, and another had been partially filled, when it was discovered that a half barrel of varnish had been broken in one of the cars. The work of loading the freight, to prevent its damage by the varnish, was at once commenced, and the men were ordered to take care of the varnish, and in an instant the whole car was filled with smoke and flames. The fire spread with dreadful rapidity, so that all efforts to stay its progress by the means at hand were utterly futile. In the excitement of the moment, the burning car, with those aboard of it on the track, was run from where it was being loaded—near the Third street end of the depot—to the westerly end of the structure into the open air. The burning material dropped from the car as it passed, thus setting the building at numerous points at once.

Attacked by Highwaymen.
The stage coach, Lebanon, Tennessee, Wednesday, was attacked by highwaymen. Several soldiers were fired, no damage.

From Fortress Monroe.
The steamer Island Queen, from New York for Savannah, with a general cargo, arrived at Fort Monroe, Virginia, on Wednesday. The captain of the Island Queen reports that he fell in with the rebel privateer, the "Enterprise," on the twenty-five miles northeast of Cape Henry, with all her sails blown away, during the night of the 19th. The Enterprise was a crew of all sick with the fever and ague, and thought them, with the schooner, into the harbor. The Enterprise was from Bonaventure, N. C., bound to New Haven, Conn., with timber, and was previously taken in by the steamer "Enterprise," but the harbor patrol, and the Enterprise had been drifting at sea until the Island Queen fell in with her.
