The Convention of Loyal Southerners.
On Monday next, September 1st, the Union men of the South assemble in convention at Philadelphia. The call for the convention makes no distinction between those Southern loyalists who support and those who condemn Andrew Johnson's policy, but, as the out-and-out Union men of the South are as unanimous against that policy as the malignant secessionists are in favor of it, we do not apprehend that there will be any difference of opinion in regard to this question in that body. The Hon. Charles T. Casper, Henry Brewster, Foster, Maynard, Johnston, Stokes, Hill, Gantt, Hamiltons and Paschall who will be present or represented in that convention are far more earnest than any Northern man, if that be possible, in denouncing the President's treachery, and combating his usurpation; for they have felt the bitter effects of both in their own persons, and have witnessed them with their own eyes. The policy of Andrew Johnson, which has nurtured and ripened the mob at Memphis and the massacre at New Orleans which has stimulated, fomented, and developed the old secession spirit throughout the South, and given new vigor, new hope, new courage to the leading traitors, which has depressed all Southern Unionists, and, leading them to a bitter cry for their protection, has left them naked to their enemies—this policy may be opposed at the North, but not with that hatred and loathing which the Union men of the South feel against it. It is this that will give significance to the coming Convention. Andrew Johnson was formerly numbered among those who were named highest on the list of illustrious Southerners who stood by the flag and the country. It was especially in honor of the Southern Unionists that he was taken from among them and made Vice President. The selection of Andrew Johnson was significant of the determination of the Union party to reward and protect the Union men of the South, and has proven false to his party, and falls in an especial manner to the class of whom he was made the peculiar representative. Instead of making treason odious he has given traitors power. Instead of rewarding loyalty he has placed traitors to rule over loyal men. Instead of protecting Unionists his policy exposes them, and leaves to the mercy of malignant foes. This Convention meets to consider and act upon this treachery. It meets also to refute the slander that the Congressional policy makes no account of loyalty in the South; for the testimony of this Southern convention will be that under Mr. Johnson's policy traitors are rewarded their boldness and malignity, while the conduct of the Congressional plan will be unanimous and hearty. The recital by these men of the outrage heaped upon Unionists through the South under Mr. Johnson's sanction will open the eyes of thousands of Northern men. Thus the assembling of this convention of loyal Southerners is in every way important, and will be highly significant as to the unanimity and enthusiasm in support of Johnson manifested by the rebel convention in the same city three weeks before.

It is proposed that this Southern convention be welcomed to Philadelphia by delegations of the true and loyal men from every Northern State, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Indiana and other States have already done so. The Southern Unionists among the Massachusetts delegation bring brightly illustrated the names of her Governor, her entire delegation in Congress, and such distinguished writers and statesmen as Benjamin F. Butler, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Wadsworth, Thoreau, Parsons, Oliver Wendell Holmes, John A. Andrew, John G. Whitier, James Russell Lowell, Paul A. Bourne, E. P. Whipple, Anna Walker, among the Pennsylvanians are Curtis, Stevens, Kelly, Williams, Cameron, Forney and Kelly. Indiana sends her Lane, her Morton and others like him. Connecticut sends her present Governor and three noble and distinguished ex-Governors, besides other leading citizens. From New York, among others, comes the eloquent and gifted orator, Frederick Douglass, and he will be greeted heartily by the Southern Unionists whom he will meet at Philadelphia. The Union State Central Committee of Ohio meet at Columbus on Wednesday to consider the propriety of sending delegates from that State. We hope they will nominate a full delegation of our best and noblest men. The gathering at Philadelphia next week should be such a one as to make the Copperhead-rebel coarseness of a fortnight ago sink into insignificance in comparison with it. Let Ohio be fully represented at the Grand Gathering of loyal men next week!

Andrew Johnson's reply to Edward Johnson's speech was twenty-one minutes long. In that time, he alluded to himself one hundred and twenty-seven times, or six times every minute, or once every ten seconds. It has been estimated that he would have returned around himself six times a minute.

A Union meeting was held at Sandusky on Saturday, and addresses were made by Colonel W. P. Gibson and by General Beckland and Sprague.

Mr. Vallandigham made a great mistake at Philadelphia in the latter day when he said that while he represented 1,400,000 democratic votes in the third district, Mr. Campbell only represented 100,000 Republican votes. Mr. Campbell does not represent 100,000 votes in the third district, but he represents 1,400,000 votes in support of Andrew Johnson. Leaving out such a large number of votes, and announcing his retirement from public life, it is twenty-eight years since Mr. Grimes first entered office as a member of the first Iowa Territorial Legislature. Long John Wentworth, talking about the politics of Secretary McCulloch, said Mr. Lincoln told him: "I think I've got Secretary to suit you. I'm tired of politicians, and I've taken a banker from Indiana; I don't think he knows anything else."

"Somewhere in New England."
The Herald is getting a little nervous. As yet it has not published the names of the questions in regard to his position put to him by the Union County Convention and reiterated by the LEADER. Now, seeing that the people are too much in earnest to be bluffed in this way, it argues that Mr. Spalding is "somewhere in New England," and that he cannot hear or answer the questions put to him. The picture of a frail, nervous and quivering man, suggested by this indefinite phrase is really striking. We imagine our learned Representative reclining in some sequestered nook, or in some quiet room, far from such modern and tormenting inventions as mail and telegraph, for the fact that there is such a thing as "my policy" in the land, and hisly ignorant of the questions of constituents, and the course of pretended friends. Happy Arcadia! But Judge Spalding ought to know that in his absence his enemies are doing his fair share of the work. Secretary Browning says he is for Johnson, and his former friends, Col. Senter, Thomas Jones, Jr., John C. Grannis and others are cruelly given a show of foundation to the asseveration going over to Johnson themselves. It is even said that Mr. Spalding went direct from Washington to "some place in New England," in order to avoid just such unimportant questions as the county convention had raised, and some of his slanderers allege that he meant to stay "somewhere in New England," until very near election time, for the same purpose. We want Mr. Spalding that these slanders will gain strength every day that he keeps his lips closed, and we advise him to break his silence at once and put them forever to rest by an unequivocal declaration of hostility to the policy of Andrew Johnson. We also strenuously urge the editor of the Herald, as Mr. Spalding's friend, to seek out, if possible, that gentleman wherever he is, if the rural shades in which he is laboring be accessible by telegraph or mail, to let him know at once what Mr. Secretary Browning says, and what the county convention says.

Forrest Endorses the Philadelphia Convention.
General N. B. Forrest, the rebel guerrilla, whose troops, under his direction, perpetrated the horrible massacre at Fort Pillow, and whose existence at large, as far as made, are as follows:
At Large—John A. Logan.
2d—John F. Parnsworth.
3d—John C. Hart.
4th—C. C. Hardin.
5th—E. C. Loper.
6th—H. P. H. Brownwell.
7th—Shelby W. Cullum.
8th—18th John Baker.
9th—18th John Baker.
10th—18th John Baker.

The Union Congressional nominations, as far as made, are as follows:
At Large—John A. Logan.
2d—John F. Parnsworth.
3d—John C. Hart.
4th—C. C. Hardin.
5th—E. C. Loper.

The following are Republican nominations for Congress:
2d—John L. Thomas.
3d—William J. Albert.
4th—William J. Albert.

POLITICAL.
Judge Phillips was nominated on Friday as Union candidate for the Ohio House of Representatives, in place of O. B. Wilcox, resigned.

The Republican caucus of the state is progressing handsomely. We have already announced a list of mass-meetings to be held in the state. Delano and Edley are holding meetings in every county and township of their districts. Schellinger and Bingham are also actively stirring.

The Linn Gazette states that Dr. W. H. Harper has been appointed postmaster at that place, and T. E. Cunningham District Assessor. The Gazette adds that the whole Johnson element at Linn is now in a ferment.

On Monday next, September 1st, the Union men of the South assemble in convention at Philadelphia. The call for the convention makes no distinction between those Southern loyalists who support and those who condemn Andrew Johnson's policy, but, as the out-and-out Union men of the South are as unanimous against that policy as the malignant secessionists are in favor of it, we do not apprehend that there will be any difference of opinion in regard to this question in that body.

EXECUTIONS.
Hanging of Covert at Lebanon, O., for the Murder of the Roosa Family. He Died Asserting His Innocence.

At 10 o'clock the deputy sheriff went to the cell and announced to Dircks that he must accompany him to the scaffold. He made no reply, but at once followed the sheriff, and passed through the dense crowd, apparently with little concern for them, until he came to the platform, and a prayer was offered by the clergyman. Taking hold of the fatal noose, Dircks said: "Hanging is to die, which is to send me into eternity I declare that I am guilty of the larceny but of the murder I am not. I was not in the company of the man who killed the boy; he replied each time that he did not. The Sheriff then asked him if he was ready to die, and he replied that he was ready to die, and he was placed upon him. The noose was fastened about his neck, and the drop fell. Dircks, struck by the noose, fell violently, and then all was over.

The party will consist, certainly, of the President and Mrs. Johnson, Secretary Seward and his family, the Hon. Charles T. Casper, Henry Brewster, Foster, Maynard, Johnston, Stokes, Hill, Gantt, Hamiltons and Paschall who will be present or represented in that convention are far more earnest than any Northern man, if that be possible, in denouncing the President's treachery, and combating his usurpation; for they have felt the bitter effects of both in their own persons, and have witnessed them with their own eyes.
