The Hill City and Health.

EDITORIAL: Yesterday I took a stroll to the park back of the hills.

I wonder if our people know what beautiful sites for healthful homes are lying adjacent to this park?

The gardener told me that two new streets are to be opened from the park leading direct into the upper part of town.

Also that a hill is to be leveled off which will add somewhat to the already charming view.

I have no doubt that persons coming to our town in search of health could procure land along these new streets, sufficient for homes.

The question of water and good water, too, is ensured already on the hill.

In such locations, with proper conditions, fine out of ten invalids coming here may recover.

But never, so long as they persist in shutting themselves up in dark, damp rooms, breathing nothing but impure air.

It is supreme folly to travel thousands of miles, leaving comfortable homes and loving friends in search of climate to restore one to health.

and then stint one's already diseased lungs with a powerful or two of pure sea air, when the Creator has placed a mile deep atmosphere all around this globe.

One stroll to the park, with an interesting book, or accompanied by a pleasant friend, in the pure air of the hills, with the benign rays of the sun adding lustre to the eye, and giving color to the cheek, would be worth more, a thousand fold, than a prescription from each of the one hundred and one M. D.'s in our town.

even though that prescription included "cod liver oil" (how I hate it). Not that we would speak disparagingly of M. D.'s, but nature has great healer and the true physician only an assistant, as he will readily confess.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have spoken in the interest of the race to which I belong—that part of the race called "white," which I meet at the Post-office, in the street cars and on the streets, with hollow eyes and still more hollow cough—and likewise that part of the race in a similar state of health, yet in cold climates, who might come here and be well.

I do not own a foot of land in this county but speak of locations as they seem to one who has passed two years in the climate, the best of these two years in the pure air on the hill.

I do not like to say that I came here an invalid for that would be confessing that I (or my ancestors) had violated nature's laws, but nature is not to be called myself a law-breaker, nor do I wish to impute a like crime to the absent. One thing I hope, if I remain on the hill, I shall be so near heaven that I shall not be obliged to enter by the ordinary ELIJAH.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8th, 1878.

About 11 o'clock last night officer Jerome arrested a Mexican known as Santa Ana for creating a disturbance in Chinatown.

The fellow, who is known to the police, generally carried arms, he searched him but found nothing. The prisoner was quite unruly and when Jerome reached the corner of Aradida and Main streets officer Sands came to his assistance.

As he approached to take the prisoner, Santa Ana drew a bayonet out from some part of his clothes and made a vicious thrust at him. Fortunately there was sufficient light to see the glimmer of the weapon and the officer was able to avoid it.

Santa Ana was disarmed and taken to jail where he was subjected to another search, when a knife was found concealed in the front part of his pantaloons. He is the property of the police, who have attempted to stab officer McAdams a short time ago. He will have a hearing before Judge Peel this morning.

Mr. Jarley made her farewell bow last night before a Los Angeles audience. Turnverein Hall was crowded for the third time.

We do not propose to enter into any detailed note of the performance, which was either amusing or charming throughout.

During the evening Mrs. Caswell sang "Tender and True" with exquisite appreciation and was warmly applauded by the audience.

Dr. Corbett also sang very acceptably. Towards the end of the performance Mrs. Jarley (Miss Kate Smith) appeared in propria persona and addressed much to the attractions of the Chamber of Beauty. She is spirituelle and pretty, and her sallies throughout the evening were witty and sparkling in the extreme.

"Generosity."

[The managers of the Republican having declined to publish the subjoined communication at Mr. McLeellan's request we give it place in the Herald.—EDITOR HERALD.]

AGENCY PACIFIC COAST STEAMSHIP COMPANY. LOS ANGELES, January 7, 1878. EDITOR OF THE REPUBLICAN.

In your issue of the 31st inst., under the head of "Generosity," you make certain statements and complaints based on the withdrawal of the advertisement of this company from your paper.

Please permit me to consider those statements and complaints in their order.

First—"In December" you "published a history of the McFadden movement," etc. My recollection of it is not vivid but I remember nothing offensive in it.

I think I spoke to you in my office correcting the history in some respects. Am sure I expressed no displeasure, and had not referred to it since. Had practically forgotten it.

Second—"For this act" you "incurred the displeasure of the S. P. R. Co." Of this I had no other information than your statement.

Third—"The order has gone forth from San Francisco to withdraw the advertisement of the steamship line from the Republican." Hardly I think that the Railroad Company issued such an order, and have no knowledge of it.

The Steamship Company, I know, has done nothing of the kind, and I do not believe that anybody in San Francisco connected with this company ever read the article referred to or knew of its existence.

I have no cause to think they ever saw the Republican or any extract from it. The simple facts are that after importunate solicitations from the publisher of the Republican, I, against my own judgment, yielded to his requests and caused the advertisement to be inserted.

In accordance with my own judgment and without consultation with any person, and without advice, hint or order from San Francisco or elsewhere, I discontinued it.

Fourth—"The Steamship Company is so mean and tyrannical that it is determined to control the utterances of the press." Indeed, even from your premises, which I have shown to be false, isn't it a long and not very pleasant way to your conclusion? Will you not state very explicitly just when and how the company has manifested a determination to undertake so vast a course to "control the utterances of the press"?

It has been to control the utterances of even the Republican, not to say that "stagnant organ of public opinion, the press?" Wasn't the publication of the payment of ten dollars per copy of the paper, a matter of space only, such an effort? Such a thought never entered my mind when I issued the order. I should have shrunk appalled from so enormous an undertaking.

Fifth—"It is fair and right to patronize a corporation that refuses to grant us equal rights and justice." The inference is irresistible that you consider that "equal rights and justice" are to be granted by the S. P. R. Co. advertise in your paper. Is then, that company bound to advertise in all the papers on the coast? If not, in what ones? Why in the Republican especially? Or, if in our paper, why not in the other papers? Is it not as if I were to say "Do not do this or that" to a man who is not doing it? "Should be conducted," when it decides just where it shall advertise?

Sixth—"The managers of this paper have never asked a favor of the P. C. S. Co." The present managers have not, I believe, seen long in the position.

Seventh—"The action on the part of the merchant to discriminate against us and in favor of other newspapers is base, contemptible meanness." Do you really mean to say that it is "meanness"—yes, "base, contemptible meanness" on the part of the merchant to "discriminate" as to the papers in which it shall advertise, or only that such language applies to discriminating against the Republican and in favor of other papers? Either of these is a serious charge.

Let us look at the facts calmly, if it is possible for you to do so, as soon after the shock to your nerves caused by losing ten dollars a month. How is the S. P. R. Co. to be benefited by the advertisement? Any man who can buy a ship can compete with it. It is composed of men who have invested their capital in the business of furnishing transportation as others are in selling merchandise, and others in selling newspapers. It has just the same rights, privileges and duties as they, no more, no less. It has no special privileges, nor the duty of doing so. It is a claim for itself, what is conceded to the merchant and the publisher, the right to determine how it will transact its business, and the mediums through which it will do so. It is not bound to advertise in any particular way or in any one or more papers, but is free to select as the merchant is.

An advertiser may be considered free to do as he pleases. The fact is a mere matter of business, the object of the advertiser being to secure custom by making his business favorably known through that means. If he fails, he would be free to try another view. The fact is a mere matter of business, the object of the advertiser being to secure custom by making his business favorably known through that means.

It is not bound to advertise in any particular way or in any one or more papers, but is free to select as the merchant is.

merit or penning a pauper. Such a view alone could inspire the articles that have appeared in the Republican in relation to the withdrawal of the advertisement of the steamship company, and suggest the heading "Generosity" which I prefer to take this view; I always had entertained the other.

As to the statement in your article of the 5th, that the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroad and the Pacific Coast Steamship Company had determined to pay $50,000 rather than give the Republican the benefit of their advertising, you surely cannot be ignorant that, as applied to the S. P. R. Co., it was an electioneering story told during the last campaign to injure a certain candidate.

What possible authority can you have in reviving it, or for adding the P. C. S. Co.? And, as to the probability of the story, I think that you would be willing to sell out the Republican, type, cases, press, good will and all, including the crown of martyrdom just placed upon your brow by the sacrifice of 10 cents a mile, for so very much less than $50,000 that the mere mention of such a sum in connection with your paper borders on the absurd. If the Republican appears to those corporations as a much important, or a firm, established and so very valuable that that "triple headed" monster held a joint meeting to consider its course, and in fear of its influence to expend so large a sum rather than advertise in it, it quite reasonable to suppose that it could imagine that the "utterances" of the "Independent Journal" could be "suppressed" by the withdrawal of the insignificant stipend of only one quarter of a cent per line for each insertion of a half column advertisement? On mature reflection, do you think that these two stories work well in double company?

To conclude this subject, the P. C. S. Co. has not attempted to influence in any degree the course of the Republican. On the other hand, that company will be governed by its own judgment in managing its own affairs, and will advertise just where and to what extent it deems best, acknowledging no claim on the part of any paper to a contribution to its support, and considering its action in that, as in every other line, simply a matter of business.

H. McLELLAN, Agent.

District Deputy Horace Burdick, assisted by Past Grand Marxsen, Spalding, Pernot and Neitzke, installed the following officers for Angello Lodge, No. 195, I. O. O. F., at Massachusetts, and growing worse and becoming unable to attend to his business, I returned home and consulted physicians and tried many remedies, but obtained no relief and daily grew worse. I had a terrible cough and raised a good deal of blood. Had profuse night sweats and severe pain in my side. I continued in this state for months, and became so weak that it was with great difficulty I could walk, when I was advised to try WILSON'S BALM OF WILD CHERRY, and to my great joy I found that this remedy had arrested the disease, and I continued to use the Balm to the extent of five bottles and have since experienced perfect health and believe the Balm saved my life and I shall ever hold it in high esteem.

Yours truly, LEWIS PHELPS.
