Another lot of fresh salmon at Onstott's market.

A chambermaid is advertised for in our New To-Day.

See advertisement of furnished rooms for rent, in our New To-Day.

Dr. W. R. Edwards, of Pasadena, informs us that the orange crop of that section will be large and of fine quality this year.

The Board of Health yesterday instructed the Council to continue to have the streets sprinkled until the rainy season commences.

Council adopted a resolution yesterday afternoon changing the place of meeting from the present chamber to No. 25, Central Block.

Four tramps, arrested for trespass, were examined before Mayor Toberman yesterday and discharged, the evidence being insufficient for their detention.

The first annual message of Mayor Toberman was read in Council yesterday and the several recommendations therein referred to appropriate committees.

We are glad to learn that our young friend Henry Baer, who has purchased Onstott's fish and poultry market, is meeting with most gratifying success in his new business.

The new Council met at Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon but, on being informed by the City Attorney that their action was illegal, they adjourned to the old chamber.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Wm. Slaney, 100 Main street, who offers his stock of boots and shoes at astonishingly low prices during the holidays.

James Johnson, one of the O'Shea robbers and murderers, who was captured by Chief Harris in this city, was sentenced to be hanged, by the Circuit Judge at Portland, Oregon, yesterday.

The mission which commenced at the Catholic church, opposite the Plaza, on Monday last has been attended by large crowds daily. The services will be continued till Monday next, when the mission will close.

The owner of a stray canary bird can reclaim the same by calling upon Wm. Pridham, agent for Wells, Fargo & Co. The bird, which evidently had escaped from its cage, came to the Express office and Pridham secured him.

We are requested to state that additional stoves will be put in the Pavilion to-day and firing commenced at an early hour, in order to have the hall at a comfortable temperature for the evening concert.

Major Truman yesterday brought to our office a cluster of full blown orange blossoms which he plucked from a perfectly healthy tree in his garden. What this premature blossoming may portend we leave to those versed in such matters, to explain.

At last evening's session of Council eight ballots were had for Chief of Police, without result. On the last ballot Gerkins received seven votes, King five, blank two. The struggle is now narrowed down to these two. The friends of King are confident of his election this afternoon.

We had a pleasant call from Col. W. R. Oiden, of Anaheim, yesterday. He is probably one of the best informed men of Southern California in practical matters; and as tells us that, in his opinion, the outlook for the future is good. No damage has been done to the orange trees at Anaheim or Artesia.

Mr. O. H. Bliss tells us that the only injury inflicted upon the orange trees of the city by the frost has been to the very young seedlings. The larger trees have escaped. The frost will have one decided effect. It will enable the deciduous fruit trees, such as the apple and peach, to know that it is winter and come to something this year, a thing they failed to do last year.

We understand that a company has been organized to build a telephone line between this city and San Gabriel. The capital stock consists of 100 shares, 60 of which have already been taken. The line will be built under the supervision of Prof. Oecker, who, our readers will remember, exhibited a phonograph at the Horticultural Fair. The work of putting on the wire will shortly be commenced, and before long our San Gabriel friends will be on speaking terms with their friends in this city.

Yesterday evening, between 5 and 6 o'clock, Mr. P. H. Newbill, who lives below the city, went down to the corner of Los Angeles and Requeena streets to get his horse and buggy, which he had hitched there on coming into town. Not finding them, he commenced to look around, when a negro, who was crossing the street, asked, "What are you looking at me for?" He replied that he was looking for his horse, when she started down the street. He followed in the same direction to continue his search, but had not proceeded far before he was assailed by a negro named William Near, who wanted to know why he had spoken to his wife. Mr. Newbill replied that he was hunting his horse. Near then drew a pistol and fired at him, the ball passing through the back of Mr. Newbill's neck, but without inflicting a serious wound. A complaint was lodged at the police office, on which the negro was arrested and committed to await examination before the Mayor this morning on a charge of assault to murder.

By announcement elsewhere, it will be seen that the Bert Dramatic Company, which gave such general satisfaction by their representations at Tuna-Verein Hall, last week, will re-open at the same place for three nights and one matinee, on Monday next, appearing in "The Octoroon" or "Our Boarding House," and concluding on Wednesday night with the sensational play of "Rose Michel." Mr. Bert's company is one of the most successful ever, rendering all they undertake faithfully and with more than average ability and we trust that they will be received with crowded houses during their stay.

Mr. Grelek, the Main street nurseryman, yesterday presented us with a ripe Japanese persimmon, raised on his place. The fruit is large and luscious looking and is slightly astringent in flavor, but not nearly so much so as its American namesake. The specimen we have is from a young graft, and Mr. Grelek informs us that when the tree reaches full bearing age the fruit loses all astringency and becomes very palatable.

Mr. R. C. Pearson returned yesterday from a visit to his ranch in San Buena Ventura. On the trip, which was by wagon, a rather serious domestic incident, which is recorded under the head of "Births," occurred.

The First Philharmonic Concert.

A Thorough Programme Satisfactorily Executed—Chorus, Orchestra and Singers Enlisted to the Chorus.

The long announced Philharmonic Concert came off at the Horticultural Pavilion last night. The audience was not such as we expected, or such as the signal merit of the programme and performers should have guaranteed.

What it lacked in numbers, however, it made up in quality. The following programme was gone through with, with the exceptions particularized below:

PART I. 1. Grand Overture.....Rossini. 2. Chorus—"Gallant and Gaily".....Hosley. 3. Solo—serenade.....Gounod. 4. Selections from "M. Trau".....Flotow. 5. Solo and Chorus—"Inflammatus".....Rossini. 6. Chorus—"Farewell to the Forest".....Waldron. 7. Waltz from "Grand Duetsch".....Oberbach.

PART II. 1. Anvil Chorus.....Verdi. 2. Duet (two women)—"Call me Trau".....Contorno. 3. Duet—"A Night in Venice".....Madama Marra and Miss Mamie Perry. 4. Chorus—"Star of Descending Night".....Haydn. 5. Symphony No. 1.....Haydn. 6. Duet—"A Night in Venice".....Mrs. Caswell and Prof. Burke. 7. Chorus—"And the Glory of the Lord".....Mendelssohn.

The Serenade from Gounod, which had been assigned to Madame Marra, was omitted, being replaced by a song from Prof. Burke, which was well received. The Anvil Chorus was omitted because, as Conductor Day said, but half the members of the Los Angeles Guard who were to have acted as blacksmiths were on hand. It was replaced by the chorus "And the Glory of the Lord," the latter being replaced in turn by the Hallelujah Chorus, from the Creation. To compensate for the omission, a song by Miss Mamie White was sandwiched into the programme, the young lady acquitting herself very well.

During the evening Mrs. Skinner and Professor Knell officiated at the organ, Prof. Lindberg and Mesdames Straton and Bent taking charge of the piano. Prof. Contorno acted as leader of the orchestra and Prof. Charles E. Day as general conductor.

It was soon apparent that the large chorus, comprising nearly if not quite a hundred ladies and gentlemen, was under admirable control. We think its success was especially notable in the "Farewell to the Forest" of Mendelssohn, "The Star of Descending Night," by Emerson, and the "Hallelujah" chorus. It reflects great credit upon the conductor of the Philharmonic Society to have been able, in the brief space of time allotted to him, to produce on the stage so many admirably drilled and excellent voices.

The same may be said of Professor Contorno's orchestration. Extreme diligence only could explain the remarkable advance of a band gathered at random in what would generally be considered a provincial town. The Professor's own cornet playing called forth thorough applause.

We confess that the "Inflammatus" of Rossini and the "Quis est Homo" from the Stabat Mater, were to our mind the gems of the evening. In the "Inflammatus" Miss Mamie B. Perry sang the soprano solo, being finely sustained by the chorus. While we should not like to pour such incense on the shrine of this gifted young songstress as would lead her to abate the hard study and work by the aid of which she has already achieved wonders, we listened with delight to the sweetness and completeness with which she sustained her theme in the "Inflammatus." In the "Quis est Homo" the triumph was shared by Madame Marra and her pupil between them, Miss Perry in both acquitting herself capitally of some difficult and complicated trills and of sweet and vigorous vocalization throughout.

The duet, "A Night in Venice," by Mrs. Caswell, and Professor Burke, was sung exquisitely by both and extorted prolonged applause.

We would impress it upon the people of Los Angeles that it is their duty to see that the matinee this afternoon and the concluding performance to-night are well attended. Horticultural Pavilion should be jammed. Prof. Day announced that additional stoves would be provided to-day and that the hall would be made much warmer than last night. An unalloyed pleasure is in store for those who shall crowd up Temple street to the Pavilion this afternoon and to-night. A splendid programme is promised, including the anvil chorus.

Santa Barbara Advertiser: A printer of the name of Fulton is missing. Wednesday night was the last seen of him in town, at which time he was in a state of intoxication. As all his clothes are in town, it is feared that some calamity has befallen him. He was about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches in height, apparently about 47 years age, sharp profile, and was dressed in navy blue coat and pants, and dark flannel shirt, cuffs lined with red.

A grand ball will be given at Turn-Verein Hall, on New Year's eve, under the auspices of the Turn-Verein Germania. Make no other engagement for that evening.
