The Republican County Committee has taken particular pains to transport to this burg a missionary named Morehouse. He addressed the men and brethren last night. On the posters around town he was billed as "late Democratic member of Assembly from Fresno county." Fresno county has not been represented in the Legislature by any man named Morehouse within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. There is, however, a party named H. V. Morehouse, a resident of Salinas City, Monterey county, a prominent member of the Patriotic Order of the Sons of America—who was a member of the Democratic State Central Committee until compelled to resign for betrayal of pledges made to his constituents. Mr. Morehouse has probably discovered channels in which he may be useful—and does not propose to be a dead-head in the Republican campaign—especially since he has become a "dead duck" in the Democratic party and has been, as we have been informed, ignominiously kicked out of it.

We have been a little amused at the idea of a number of our readers here of the matter published in a newspaper. For instance, the reading matter of the Herald was formerly printed in brevity. It is now, with the exception of the editorial department, set up in nonpareil, just as the New York Herald, San Francisco Chronicle and other metropolitan papers are. We are now giving about a third more reading matter than ever before; while, by the employment of small type, it fills a less space than our former somewhat cramped reading matter did. One column of solid nonpareil contains very nearly as many words as two of the old-time brevier columns. The change has necessitated a considerable increase of the force of compositors in this office. We make these remarks because there are some people in Los Angeles who actually think the Herald, with its new dress, has reduced the quantity of reading matter published daily in these pages. If the doubter will take the trouble to notice how long it takes him to read a column of solid nonpareil, he will soon know the difference.

The occasional appearances of Mr. Tilden upon the public stage, whether in the shape of a letter or in propria persona, affords the Republican press an opportunity of showing their undying enmity to the man who was chosen by Republicans out of the office to which the people had elected him. Again and again do we find explications of the triple old adage that men never forgive those whom they have wronged. It would add greatly to the Republican delight, no doubt, if Mr. Tilden, in addition to being old and infirm, were poor and in rags. Their hatred would then be sated. Fortunately for the sake of grammarian Park, however, he can buy and sell the whole lot of small fry politicians who are trying to belittle him, and he did not steal his money from the plethoric coffers of the United States, either. He made it in the lines of a sagacious private citizen, and not a dollar of it can be traced to any of the monumental public spoliation engineers by the Republican press. No taint of Credit Mobilier or Star Route infamy clings to his skirts. He never, in his whole lifetime, received a dollar from a public office with the exception of his salary as the Reform Governor of New York, and his contributions to the Democratic campaign funds during the past twenty years have amounted to twenty times that sum. Rich, honored, surrounded by troops of friends, a statesman and a gentleman, Samuel J. Tilden tells his countrymen wholesome truths and Republican malignity falls back from the crystal gazing of his record like water from a duck's back. We can fancy that we see this matchless old man smile serenely at the writings of the men whom his trenchant logic has impaled. Never was there a more impotent spectacle than the attempt to smirch the untraced patriotism of Samuel J. Tilden. The whole power of the government of the United States was for years engaged in that attempt, with all its machinery of Federal District Attorneys and Marshals, and a monumental failure was the result. What a contrast to Blaine, who has to be popping up every now and then to offer some explanation of a career which remarkably resembles that of a Coney Island "capper," and who has to lie so variously and so desperately that he is being tripped up at every turn.

NEW TO-DAY.

There may be times when figures won't lie, but this is certainly not the case in a Presidential campaign. In a late issue of our esteemed contemporary, the San Francisco Chronicle, there is in the editorial columns an extraordinary medley of figures. The writer coolly assumes that the whole six California Congressional districts are likely to return Republican representatives this year. It is true that he is gracious enough to admit that there may be some doubt about the Fourth District; but, after floundering around with figures to his heart's content, he finally elects Morrow over Hastings, thus settling the matter. It is perhaps fortunate for the Democracy of California that elections are not held on paper, or they would not have a leg left to stand upon. What the Chronicle scribe knows of the subject he discusses so openly is shown by his statement that neither the election of 1882, when Stoneham was elected Governor by a plurality of 23,000, nor that of 1883, when, according to our contemporary, the Democratic Congressmen-at-Large were elected by a majority of 13,000, are to be taken as criteria for the present contest. "What light a writer who does not know that our two California Congressmen-at-Large were elected at the same election with Governor Stoneham can shed upon this or any other election, we leave to our readers to imagine. The gentleman who has made this extraordinary discovery next proceeds to carry the State for Blaine by from 15,000 to 25,000 majority. To do so he ingeniously assumes that two out of the three men who voted for William F. White in the celebrated triangular gubernatorial election will vote for Blaine on account of the tariff issue. A more ridiculous non sequitur he never had to find. If the Chronicle's figures were exactly reversed as to the supporters of White there would be some sense in the proposition. Figures, in the hands of a man who does not even know when or under what conditions the Congressmen from his own State were elected, are valueless indices indeed. Our esteemed contemporary may prepare itself betimes to see at least four of the six Congressmen Democratic; and, if it were not that we do not wish to scare it out of its propriety, we would claim the whole six. The State which gave Stoneham the largest plurality and majority ever received by a California Governor, stands admirably affected toward the Democratic party.

No one can have failed to notice how very rosy and encouraging are the accounts of Blaine's movements in Ohio and elsewhere. One would suppose, to read these flattering tales, that an unexampled oration was being extended to the Plumed Knight wherever he chose to put in an appearance. The secret of these peculiar dispatches is doubtless to be sought in the following, which we find in an Eastern paper: Blaine is certainly pulling the strings that set these small-fry Ohio politicians capering. It is a notorious fact that the dispatches of the Western Associated Press, which should be nothing if not non-partisan, are carefully revised by Blaine himself before they are sent to Mr. Devine, a Washington stenographer, accompanying the party as Western Associated Press correspondent. He also acts as Blaine's private secretary, and a way-faring man though a fool, can read his own and flattering reports in this association are inspired. Walker or Blaine suggested to Mr. Will Clemens, of Cleveland, the representative of the United Press, that he might use Devine's report for his association. Mr. Clemens promptly refused.

The man from Maine is a very deft hand at cooking up this kind of bogus enthusiasm. The real facts of his extraordinary swinging around the circle in Ohio are probably truthfully described in the following letter from the Toledo correspondent of the New York World. He says: The great Blaine circus arrived from Cleveland this afternoon. The stereotyped torchlight procession and the usual number of dull speeches were the order of the night. Walker and yet his face wore that strange, livid expression which betokens ill health. The eyes were heavy, and his cheeks under them, and a peculiar puffiness appeared about the under lids. He is certainly suffering from some serious trouble, although his friends are seeking to hide it from the public. Twice during the trip to-day he was given medicine by his son Walker. He wears a weary, restive look.

However, next Tuesday is not far off, and every one will then be as wise as his neighbor as to the exact effect of Blaine's electioneering in the Buckeye State. He started out from his home in Maine under the shadow of the dispiriting fact that every speech-making candidate who ever consented to stump the country was beaten, from Henry Clay and Stephen A. Douglas down to Horatio Seymour and Horace Greeley. Even personal magnetism of such a pronounced character as Blaine possesses may find itself unable to stem the popular tide which calls for the extrusion from power of the Republican party.

THE EVER ACTING AND IMPELLING AMBITION

People's Store AT LAST RESULTS In a Quadruple Overstocking of Fall and Winter Goods!

It was as unexpected to us as it is no doubt to you that a house should commence to slaughter goods before they are unpacked or placed in stock and especially when that stock consists of the

Latest and Most Elegant Novelties

That can be purchased in the largest commercial centers of the country. OUR ORDERING DEPARTMENT

And our buyers in New York and San Francisco are slightly at sea with each other. Each one has purchased double the quantity ordered, and we have a surplus stock of three times the amount of our intended orders for Fall and Winter trade. How it comes we do not know, unless the former duplicated their orders to our respective buyers. But that is neither here nor there, the goods are here and coming, and must be disposed of in some manner. We will start right in and Slaughter the Whole Outfit!

And let it go for what it will bring. It is a pity but cannot be helped. Our buyers for this season will be devoted to the accomplishment of a task almost superhuman and the prices of our new goods will be scandalously low. Ruin stares where fortune should smile.

The sale of these elegant goods will commence MONDAY, the 6th inst., at 10 a. m., without reserve.

We can assure our patrons that both in quantity, quality, price, exquisiteness of pattern and fabric our Fall importations exceed any of our previous attempts. We simply ask an inspection.

Petition in Insolvency. In the Superior Court of Los Angeles County, State of California.

In the matter of Alfred James and Walter James, copartners doing business under the firm name and style of A. James & W. James.

Alfred James and Walter James, copartners doing business under the firm name and style of A. James & W. James, having filed in this Court their petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency by which it appears that they are insolvent debtors, the said Alfred James and Walter James, copartners as aforesaid, are hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Los Angeles is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of said Alfred James and Walter James, and of the partnership of A. James & W. James, debtors, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and to sell the same, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of the estate.

All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvents or either of them, or to deliver any property belonging to them or either of them or to any person, firm or corporation or association for their or either of their use.

The said debtors are hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein provided.

It is further ordered that the creditors of said debtors, or either of them, or of the partnership of A. James & W. James, be and appear before the Honorable V. E. Howay, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court in the City and County of Los Angeles, on the 5th day of November, 1884, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtors.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the Los Angeles Daily Herald, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the city and county of Los Angeles, California, for three consecutive days, the first day of the said publication to be on the 10th day of October, 1884.

It is further ordered that, in the meantime, all proceedings against the said insolvents be stayed.

Dated October 2, 1884. HENRY M. SMITH, Judge of Superior Court.

Richard & White, attorneys for petitioners. oct3-1m
