Will not the city authorities make search and find a heart, or something in the semblance of such an organ? Has Los Angeles no compassion for her suffering brethren? Shall this be the only city to send no aid to Charleston?

A TELEGRAM on the first page of the Herald to-day indicates that the Democratic administration is taking hold of the matter of a new navy in proper form.

Next Saturday evening the Democracy of Los Angeles will hold a rousing ratification meeting for the State and Congressional tickets.

The Oakland Enquirer, a Republican paper, has the following: "Wagstaff, of the Modesto Herald, says that Hart, the unpledged candidate for Attorney-General in the Republican Convention, was carried on a wave of excitement created by Tom Fitch in the sublime recital of a story in a silver web of eloquence based upon a magnificent conceit."

One of the disgruntled Republican delegates in this city said after the nomination was made that the "Missionary Ridge story was a—lie."

The "America" cup stays again where it belongs. The Mayflower wins in two straight races. American shipbuilders long ago taught Britania to build steamships. It begins to look as if she will have to follow our lead in yachts, and build on the broad-board, center-board plan and discard her knife-edge.

How passing humorous it is to those who know the men to hear the organs grind out the set campaign tune that Swift is a magnetic man, and that Bartlett is cold.

It is that grand galaxy of bright particular stars nominated by the Democracy at the recent Convention in San Francisco there are none that shine with greater or purer brilliancy than the candidate for the very responsible office of Secretary of State.

An exchange gives the following brief biography of the man: William C. Hendricks, the candidate for the suffrages of the Democracy of this State for the responsible office of Secretary of State, is a pioneer citizen and comes of a distinguished family in national politics.

He was born in Pennsylvania, but his parents moved to Indiana when he was quite young, and the latter State is claimed by him as his own. He received a mercantile training and early started for himself. In 1849 he joined the Argonauts and sailed for the northern part of the State, and finally settled at Oroville, Butte county, as a hydraulic miner on an extensive scale.

He was the leading owner in the Oroville Mining Company, whose expenditures were enormous in bringing water from the mountains to develop their rich mines. He was a member of the legislature in carrying a flume along the face of a steep bluff was a marvel of daring enterprise.

Just about the time the work was completed and the company in a fair way to reap a rich harvest, the legislature passed an act suspending operations by reason of the legislation against hydraulic mining, and since then Mr. Hendricks has lived quietly in Butte county. During the years 1873-74 and 1875-76 he was State Senator, and for the past two years he has been a member of the Board of State Prison Commissioners.

In this position Mr. Hendricks has been actively engaged in the study of the penology, and was sent East to study the workings of different State reformatory institutions. Mr. Hendricks is a cousin of the late Thomas A. Hendricks, Vice-President of the United States.

During his incumbency of this office of Prison Commissioner Hendricks has developed that rare faculty which has characterized all his undertakings. He has gone to work in the most practical way, made thorough investigation of penology in the best interests of the country, come back with these men higher rents, and in all ways extravagance at last reaches the pockets of poor men. Thousands of poor men own their house in the city, or their little farm in the country. Low taxes, lightens their expense of living. Those who rent their houses in the city or country at length pay the taxes imposed on property. These are facts the people know and they will not be misled.

The machine Republican papers in San Francisco are busy making a great ado about Mayor Bartlett's economical administration of the city government. It is, of course, not sincere, but to make a bit of cheap political capital among the least intelligent and honest portion of the voters.

open fire on the corrupt Republican Supervisors, who have appointed six extra regency clerks, all Republicans, to put the names on the great register. It is estimated that these clerks will be called upon to register the enormous sum of fifteen names per diem each. The total cost to the city will be $600 to $10,000.

Some of the party organs are trying to console themselves in that they will have to vote for Swift instead of some more popular man, with the "flattering unctious" that he is not a common thief.

Among these is the Modesto Herald, which says: "The party organs are trying to console themselves in that they will have to vote for Swift instead of some more popular man, with the 'flattering unctious' that he is not a common thief."

It is more than honest in outward acts. Like Caesar's wife he should "be above suspicion," not merely of highway robbery, but of political jobbery.

Mr. Swift's one term of trust to one hands of the people was used to pay a bill to pay himself $25,000 through the State Legislature. It is far from settled that he had any just claim to that money.

His cold, selfish nature, his frequent political instability which always bore the look of self-seeking are poor guarantees that he will be clear in his great office. Swift is never been a man that man has put implicit political trust in. He has always been looked upon as the extreme of selfishness, and self-seeking. His opponent is a man long tried and in no instance ever found wanting in one of its integrity, personal honesty, or political integrity. Bartlett is a man true to the core. He has never failed in any trust.

It is a phase of national politics which every Democrat may contemplate with the greatest satisfaction that now, in the second year of President Cleveland's administration, the Republican party can find nothing in it to "view with apprehension" but the unqualified confidence which it displays abroad and its economy at home.

Each State Convention of the party of "great moral ideas" roars its hell in a vain endeavor to howl its successful aspects down by more force of wind and bitterness of grief.

They have one and all signally failed to make a single material allegation against the really brilliant man in which the government is being handed by this hard-working, sound business-like President. The same facts are as noteworthy in the person of that sterling man of business habits and honest methods who has for four years governed the metropolis of this State.

The only point on which his adversaries can attack Mayor Bartlett is that for which the people of San Francisco have twice elected him Mayor. As Cleveland handles the national government so does Bartlett the municipal.

The method is simply the same, which an careful business man manages any successful venture for himself—economy and sound financial principles. The people have had enough of reckless extravagance in public affairs; they said so at the polls and they have not changed their minds.

In Bartlett the people of California know they will have a most capable and a most careful executive at the head of the State government, and they will put him there for these very qualities. If they wanted an orator they would have selected Gen. Barnes or some of the other political Romagers who regard the office of Secretary of State as a mere matter of such brilliant flights of oratory in Mt. Hall, at the recent Republican Convention. By the way, those who think Bartlett is incapable of a most sensible, analytical and really rousing campaign speech are mistaken, as they will find out before the campaign is over.

Twin Foes to Life

Are Indigestion and Constipation. Their primary symptoms are among the most distressing of minor ailments, and a host of diseases, speedily resulting from them, mutually aggravate each other and result in a general debility of the system.
