A SIDE SHOW.

The Citizens Reform Meeting Ends Its Labors.

THE PLEDGE THAT WAS TAKEN.

The Republican Ticket Endorsed By the Anti-Liberal Movement.

The Republican sideshow, which has been for some time trying to pass itself off as an independent affair, under the high sounding title of "Citizens' Reform Movement," opened its doors to the public last night, by the nomination of a ticket for the coming municipal election.

It will be remembered that this movement started out with the professed intention of nominating a non-partisan ticket. A manifesto, published a few days ago, contains the following which will now be contemplated with a good deal of amusement.

To the carrying out of these ends [that is the reforming of everything] it has resolved: First, to put into the field at the coming municipal election to represent this citizens' movement.

Second, if either of the existing parties were the men who will stand upon the basis represented by this movement, and who will agree to the appended declaration, it prefers to place such nominees upon its own ticket, instead of making a rival nomination.

Third, to enable it to do this, party tickets will have to be in the field five days before the date of election, as its own ticket must be before the public, whose scrutiny it seeks, at least that long before the date of vote.

I agree, if elected, to use every lawful means within my power to in every possible way restrict, and as soon as possible to suppress, the slot, the gambling house, the saloon, the brothel, and in every way to further the ends of good, clean, efficient government.

Since the nominations the men who constituted the Executive Committee of the movement were seen trotting about the streets like so many old ladies at a church tea, hunting up the candidates and asking what they were going to do about the "pledge." The Democrats uniformly returned the same answer: "The platform of the party was good enough for them. What the Republicans said was to be made known later, and it came at the 'mass' meeting last night in the shape of the nomination of almost the whole Republican ticket as a 'Citizens' Reform' ticket."

The meeting was called for half-past 7 o'clock, but it was 8 before Dr. Widney stepped to the front of the stage and called it to order. About five hundred people, men, women and children, were present, and before the meeting opened they signified their impatience from time to time by vigorous stamping of feet.

Dr. Fay opened the meeting, with prayer, asking that the Lord should bless the great work which they were about to undertake in behalf of morality, intelligence and religion.

"It is not necessary," said Dr. Widney, when the prayer ended, "to announce the object of this meeting to-night. It is especially aimed at four great evils: The saloon evil, the great corrupting element in our politics. Another evil is the gambling house; another the opium den; and the last the house of prostitution."

This movement was taken without any consideration of the various party lines. We have preferred not to organize a new party. We have no aspirations in the way of office. We simply try to find men to fill these offices who will battle with evil. We asked the political parties to stay out of the field. They refused. Then we said if you will accept a declaration which we will draw up, we will put up a separate ticket. Such a declaration was drawn up and with it we went to the parties. The ticket which we will offer you to-night will be made up of members of both tickets. In some cases we offer no name, but have simply a blank as both are good men. In some cases we could not put the name of either nominee on our ticket and we have substituted a new one.

Rev. W. B. Stratley was then introduced and said: "The question which comes before us now in this contest is of more importance to each one of us than the question of who shall become President of the United States. There is not quite as much enthusiasm shown here to-night as I should like to see, nor such numbers. The saloon-keepers interfere with the peace and dignity and good order of the community. From both the tickets we should select good Councilmen. We can see to it that they are elected."

W. E. Spencer said that he was very heartily in sympathy with the aims of the meeting. "There ought to be something done to tone up the moral sentiment of the community. As good men we need to lay aside our preferences and our case and do something to improve the morals of this community. We must be on our guard. I am a Republican but I will support this movement."

Dr. Cantine said: "We are here to learn what the Executive Committee has done and to stand by the nominees of this organization. We are making a great deal of effort to have a good head to our ticket. I want to say that I am a Republican, I have been one from away back, and I shall vote that ticket as long as I can, but I shall not vote for corruption in any form."

Dr. Fay said: "The chief battle will be next Monday, and it may be supposed that those who are staying away to-night are preparing for the battle. I am amazed that there can be two sides to this question. Is there a man who will dare say that the saloon is a good institution? Why is it necessary to call this meeting here to-night? Because many men, otherwise good, entertain hostile ideas toward this movement for political reasons. It has been said that we are too exacting; that we ought to be contented with the good reputation of a candidate. But we want it in black and white. [Applause.] We want to have men in our employ who will do what we want done. Now we mean business. We are going on with this work. If we fail this year, we will be none the less ready for work next year. We want to make this a city that we need not blush for. Now we can't carry on this campaign without money. We need it for legitimate expenses. We must raise enough here to-night to carry us through the campaign."

Mr. A. M. Hough, whom Dr. Fay had recommended as a good man at beginning, spoke for a few minutes. He said that although everybody was doubtless very impatient to learn who were on the ticket, the names should not be read until the collection was taken up. This had the effect of restraining a large part of the audience who had begun to reach for their hats. The amount needed according to Mr. Hough would be about $350. This was to be turned over to the Executive Committee, who were men that could be trusted to use it wisely. He then called for subscriptions of $10, of which a half-dozen were secured, and then for bids of $5, of which only one was obtained. Somebody in the back of the room yelled, pass the hat, and a small amount was thus realized.

Up to this time no one on the platform, not even those who had spoken, with the exception of Dr. Widney and Mr. Hough, knew what the much-talked-of ticket was to be. Much anxiety was plainly manifested by the audience, which was solidly Republican, but some wicked Democrat might have strayed into the fold.

As he unrolled the sheet of paper on which the names were written Dr. Widney said: "Before I read this I must tell you how it was made up. A nominating committee was appointed by the Executive committee. It consisted of two Republicans, two Democrats and two Prohibitionists. These gentlemen saw the candidates and conferred with them and decided upon the ticket. For Mayor we nominate D. E. Miles. At this there was a burst of applause, the first evidence of enthusiasm which had appeared during the evening.

"For City Auditor, Charles H. McFarland; for City Assessor neither of the nominees are quite satisfactory and we have put up a third man, W. R. Hazlip; he is a Democrat, but a very good man." The other names thus far had been applauded, but the nomination of the unwelcome Democrat fell flat and the Doctor hurried on to the rest of the ticket.

"For Treasurer, M. D. Johnson; for Tax Collector we are not yet decided, upon a man; for the Board of Education, A. E. Pomeroy and E. P. Johnson; for the Council, First ward, C. M. Earl and Geo. O. Ford; Second ward, J. M. Frew, and for the second place we are as yet undecided; Third ward, J. H. Book (great applause); Fourth ward, Fred J. Teale and James C. Brown; Fifth ward, A. E. Shaker."
