MISTAKE IN THE FRONTIER LINE

Editor Bagg of Tombstone Talks About the Boundary.

He Shows That Port Isabel Should Belong to This Country.

A Curve in the Line Between This Country and Mexico Which Indicates Jobbery—How the Work Is Being Conducted.

Mr. S. C. Bagg, editor of the Tombstone, Arizona Prospector who is now in this city, stated in an interview some important facts relative to the workings of the international boundary commission which is under the direction of Chief Barlow. Mr. Bagg said:

The monuments for the boundary line are being cast at El Paso, Texas, they will be cast iron, about eight feet in height, each weighing about two tons. The present monuments are merely piles of rocks with a wooden post stuck up in the middle. The posts have long since rotted and the rocks are mostly scattered. Some of these so-called stone boundary monuments resemble mining claim stakes. The present survey is to determine exactly where we are.

Had substantial monuments been put up in the first place, the present work would have been avoided, or had the government taken proper care of the monuments about one year's labor would have been saved, also a great expense.

The original survey was made in the early fifties, not long after the Gadsden purchase. The surveying party is now camped at Yuma, and will at once begin working toward the other end of the line, below San Diego, thus taking advantage of the winter weather to work through the Colorado desert. They will reach the end of the line about the 18th of May, after which they will return to Nogales and work to Yuma, thus completing the line. The entire survey will occupy about one year.

While on the subject, you may as well allude to one other point, which has recently been brought to our attention. There being no apparent will, no doubt, assume an international phase. In searching for the landmarks of our boundary line, the commission discovered that it made a curve, or crook, leaving out some important coast line and cutting off Port Isabel, on the Gulf of California. There being no apparent reason for this circuitous survey, especially when a straight line would have been easier, the commission reasoned that something was wrong, that there must be a hidden motive for it.

As has been stated, the original draft of the survey ran about 30 miles below the mouth of the Colorado river, which you will see by the map is on a straight line and includes Port Isabel. After the documents were made out we found that the line ran to a point 30 miles below the mouth of the Gila river, leaving out that part and some valuable coast lands. This fraud can no doubt be proved. Our original drafts should be in existence at Washington, and I have good reasons for believing that the Mexicans also have a copy of the original draft on file at Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora. The reason that this is becoming especially important now is that a Mexican-English syndicate is putting upon the market an immense Mexican grant near our boundary line, and which includes a very large portion of that land which really belongs to our government. So you see there is likely to be trouble over that slip of land and of the designing pens of the shrewd Mexicans.

Scavengers of Conversation.

"Deliver me from what some author has called the 'scavengers of daily conversation,' who gather up the literary refuse on every side to offend the intellectual nostrils of the thoughtful." And Colonel Marcus Bauerman stretched himself in his chair and proceeded to explain. "A dude with a thimbleful of brains won a basket of champagne from me on the bet that q-u-i-r-e meant a band of singers—which it does, though q-u-i-r-e is another way of spelling it—and ten minutes afterward a street car conductor used the word 'transpire' for 'perspire' and won a box of cigars from me on that.

"The latest is the case of a drummer for a Boston shoe house, who is sixty years old if he is a day, and whose gray hairs ought to indicate some faint gleams of intelligence, and yet who soberly asked me the pronunciation and meaning of the word 'backache,' and when I told him I did not know coolly said it was pronounced 'backache,' and meant a pain in the back. Of course such people are afflicted with paresis, but oughtn't they to be restrained in some way?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Three" in Mythology.

In mythology we find the three (3) occupying even a more honorable place than the so-called "mythical No. 7." There were the Three Graces, Cerebus with his three heads, Neptune holding his three tined fork, to say nothing of the Nine Muses, which are made up of three threes, and the third wave, which was thought to bring death and destruction to everything in its path. In nature we have morning, noon and night; fish, flesh and fowl. Hundreds of trees, bushes and grasses have their leaves and blades set in groups of three.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WIFE OF GEORGE BELL COMING BACK TO HER PARTNER.

A police officer assisted the young wife of George Bell aboard the steamer Eureka when that vessel sailed for Los Angeles yesterday morning, says the San Francisco Chronicle of Friday. The young woman was being sent back to the home of her parents. A little over a year ago Mrs. Bell was Lucy Gamble, the bright, 18-year-old daughter of a well-to-do manufacturer of Los Angeles. She fell in love with and married George Bell, a young man who at one time owned a restaurant in the southern metropolis. About nine months ago Bell bought her to San Francisco and they began a life that, for the girl, was unbroken misery and want. Bell proved to be the victim of the morphine habit. In nothing that he undertook was he successful, and when he did earn a little money the greater part of it went to satisfy his terrible appetite. They were driven from their home a few weeks ago, the girl had been taken ill. She was without food, and so great were her sufferings that she did not resist when Bell took all the clothing from her bed and a single quilt and sold it at a second hand store on Howard street, near Second. He returned with 45 cents. For three days the girl lay under a single quilt; then fearing that their theft would be discovered, they slipped out of the house and found lodgings elsewhere.

THE DETECTIVES DILLON AND CROCKETT FINALLY DISCOVERED THEM.

When Detectives Dillon and Crockett finally discovered them, on Wednesday evening, Bell was taken into custody. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Fay was induced to swear out a warrant charging him with petit larceny. He admitted having taken the bed clothing, and his wife directed the detectives to the place where he hid them.

To the officers the girl admitted that she could not lead an honest life if left to her own resources, and she gladly consented to go back to her parents.

Thirteen Athletic Club Young Men and Their Trip.

With tooting of horns thirteen young men left the Athletic club rooms for the cross country run to Wilson's peak Saturday night and with yells and blowing of horns they returned yesterday afternoon from a successful and jolly trip.

Saturday night they were driven in a tally-ho to the foot of the old Wilson's peak trail, starting the climb at 2:30 a. m. The usual amount of fun and joking incident to the presence of a crowd of young fellows out for a good time was had.

The peak was reached a little before 6 a. m., James Ryan being the first man up according to some reports. From the peak they soon made the quarter mile where the people were just preparing breakfast. A snow storm had been encountered towards the top of the mountain, and as the boys were half frozen, they soon found a house where a big fire was blazing. Most of them were tired, and lying down they soon fell asleep. For exactly five minutes they slept. At the end of that time a man appeared at the door and whispered the magnetic word, "Breakfast." Instantly all of the 13 men were trying to get out of the door at the same time. After breakfast the crowd visited some of the interesting points about the place, and towards noon made the descent by way of the new road. They were met at the foot by the tally-ho, reaching here about 1:30 p. m. No damage was done on the trip except that immediately after breakfast at Strain's camp. A train of burros was sent down the trail for a fresh supply of grub.

The party was: T. Hamilton Adams, Newton Moore, Art Guthrie, W. M. Jenkins, Lester Prager, Walter S. Williams, J. Sanders, W. Cochran, Walter McStay, Phil Marks, James Ryan, Ed Germain, Charley Williams.

Getting the Most Out of the Horse.

The art of getting the most out of horse flesh on the line of march is one which needs study and practice to every whit the same extent as to race riding or the haute école, and as therefore feats of endurance should form part of an officer's education as well as those upon the tan or between the flags.

To cover many miles with success a man must, first of all, study his own condition, and while he makes his charger fit must not forget to render himself so too. He should carefully watch how his horse takes its food and vary the amount of it, the time of feeding and the nature of forage, so as to insure that the animal derives the maximum amount of benefit from the nourishment it takes.

Then he should endeavor by experiment to discover the pace which suits its conformation best and the most judicious manner of varying it, so as to afford relief to the muscles and yet get over the particular pace that best suits the animal having been arrived at, it should be trained to go at that pace evenly and methodically and with the regularity of a machine. And care should be taken never to stretch the bow to the utmost, or the subsequent reaction will more than counterbalance the present gain.—London Saturday Review.

WHAT AN ASS AM I!

The ass thought himself as fine looking as his neighbor, the horse, until he, one day, saw himself in the looking-glass, when he said "What an ass am I!"

Are there not scores of people who cannot see themselves as others see them? They have had blood, pimples, blotches, eruptions, and other kindred disfigurements. All these annoying things could be entirely eradicated, and the skin restored to "illicy whiteness," if that world-famed remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, were given a fair trial.

It cures all humors, from the ordinary blotch, pimple or eruption to the worst scurf, or the most inveterate blood-taints, no matter what their nature, or whether they be inherited or acquired. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only blood-purifier guaranteed to do just what it is recommended to, or money refunded.

A MAN'S FOOT.

Whalen Fell Over It and Had His Watch Taken.

B. A. Whalen of Santa Barbara was out on First street last evening and inadvertently dropped into a saloon. In going out a man stood at the door and threw out his big foot, when Whalen fell to the ground. Four roughs, who loitered in the vicinity, rushed forward to assist Whalen to his feet.

When he regained his footing he found that his watch had been stolen. Thomas Martin, H. Lawrence, William Allen and George Ellis were arrested on suspicion and taken to the central police station. The other man, who is supposed to have taken the watch, made his escape. The watch is a lady's gold watch valued at about $40.

A Finnish Crime.

PARIS, Tex., Jan. 29.—Last night Henry Smith (colored) saw the 4-year-old daughter of Henry Vance playing on the sidewalk. He picked her up and carried her to the woods. When the child was missed a search resulted in finding her body torn and bleeding and giving indubitable evidence of having been brutally outraged. A posse of citizens is searching for the brute to lynch him.

A Pleasant Reflection

—the fact that easy washing has been made safe. Until Pearline came, it was dangerous. Pearline takes away the danger as it takes away the work. There is no scouring and scrubbing to wear things out; there is no trouble in keeping things clean. Pearline is better than soap. With soap, you need hard work; for easy work, you need Pearline.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "This is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back.
