The weather, for the past few days, has been lowering and cool. Such a disposition is by no means disagreeable to man and is highly favorable to the crops.

All the intelligence that reaches us from Vanderbilt points to the creation there of an exceedingly lively mining town. In fact, it is no misnomer to call it a city, at least it won't be in the near future.

The people of New York, when they allowed the world's fair to be carried off by Chicago, scarcely realized what they were losing.

will be simply annihilated. In addition to this legal sharping, there will be great danger of actual, downright robbery in the crowded hotels, where the sneak-thief's pocket will make himself exceedingly active.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE.

There has never been as much travel into California as during the past fall, winter and spring, the latter of course not completed. It is the duty of a newspaper published in a growing country to make a note of such facts.

Will there be a boom? Undoubtedly, but it will be a boom based on production. There will be no more cutting up of fine residence and orchard properties into lots 25x150 feet.

With these regions opened up to the settler we ought to see a great population springing up in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles. Settlement and development towards the east and north have been all that could be desired, and they have extended clear to the Sierra Nevada.

The fact ought to be borne in mind that Los Angeles, while it is highly desirable that her immediate tributary territory should be developed, is by no means exclusively dependent on it.

The mining developments which are about to take place in the region which is traversed by the Nevada Southern railway will, we firmly believe, be the greatest known for years in the United States.

No wonder people pour in multitudes into a country with such possibilities. The wonder would be if they did not. The coming fall and winter will, of course, witness the greatest immigration, but it will be large during the summer.

figures immensely. The boom transactions bid fair to be exceeded, but there will be no flimsy corner lots sold on terms transformed into cities on paper, in fact, no more.

FRUIT AND ITS FRUITS.

The convention of orange-growers in this city yesterday was a remarkable body, an aggregate of about one hundred men, who, being of almost every nationality and political complexion, remained in session about six hours and never once resorted to any sort of demagoguery or clap-trap.

The main object of the meeting was the enfranchisement of the primary producer from the domination of the middleman in business; or, in other words, to save the enormous amounts disbursed annually in iron-clad contracts in which one man makes the bargain for both, have secured a fortune in marketing the orange crop of Southern California without the risk of a single failure.

Mr. Chamblin of Riverside said that notwithstanding the cry of "no market for California oranges" from the eastern cities, he could show positive proof where choice navel oranges had sold in eastern cities for as high as seventy-five cents per dozen at retail.

Some time ago a gentleman of Pomona received a letter from a produce house in St. Paul, Minn., in which they wrote: "Our market now ranges from $4 to $5 for fancy navel, $2.50 to $3 for strictly choice seedlings; and cabbage 3 cents per pound.

On the strength of this letter the gentleman referred to, shipped a carload of choice navel which should have realized an average of at least $4 per box, according to the terms of the letter above quoted.

It is abuses of the sort given above that have led up to the meeting which convened in Los Angeles yesterday, for the case mentioned is far from being an isolated one.

LOS ANGELES THEATRE.—The giving of The Mighty Dollar last evening was far from an inspiring performance.

Mr. Howard Coveny was entirely out of class in the once famous part of Bardwell Slot, and his work often verges on the absurd, as well as being most depressing to theater-goers who remember the creator of the role.

The Los Angeles Theatre.—Of the celebrated violins in the world, Edvard Remenyi probably has the largest collection, some 60 in all.

THE NAVAJO TROUBLE.

The Indians are quiet and the murderer arrested. The Navajo Indian trouble seems to have subsided. The detachment of cavalry ordered from Fort Wingate has arrived at the scene of the disturbance, and everything, according to the reports received thus far, has been amicably settled.

This is the first report of any kind that has been received at the army headquarters from Colonel Hunt, now at Fort Huachuca, N. M.

The murderer referred to in the dispatch is the Indian who recently killed a reputable white man near the reservation at Liebenau, Pinal county, Arizona.

SIMPSON CHARGED WITH FRACTURING COMMANDMENT SEVEN. His Second Trial Commenced Yesterday. Not Much of a Case Made Out by the Prosecution.

The trial of George B. Simpson on the charge of adultery was commenced before Justice Seaman yesterday, but was not concluded. This is the second trial of Simpson, who is charged with living in open and notorious cohabitation and adultery with a daughter of Mrs. Jack Skinner named Grace Thompson.

The first witness placed on the stand was Mrs. Penning, who keeps a lodging house in East Los Angeles. She swore that Simpson and Miss Thompson had rented a room of her and had lived therein two days and nights as man and wife.

Mrs. Colby, keeper of the Hotel Norwood, at Sixth and Hill streets, swore that Simpson and Miss Thompson had two rooms at her house in January and that they lived there as man and wife.

Mrs. Skinner, the mother of the girl Thompson, swore as to the circumstances under which Simpson met her, how he had paid attentions to Grace, and how she finally packed up and left the house. Mrs. Skinner swore that she warned the girl (Grace) against Simpson, but to no avail.

At the afternoon session the cross-examination of Mrs. Skinner was resumed. She admitted that she was anxious to break up a match which Miss Thompson was about to make and had suggested that she go with Simpson. At this time, though, she had not seen Simpson. Later she had told Simpson that she knew Simpson and Miss Thompson.

E. G. Colby is the proprietor of the Norwood hotel, at the corner of Sixth and Hill streets. The defendant and Grace Thompson had rooms 11 and 12 in his house for 25 or 26 days during January and February of this year.

Mrs. Julia Buttner, keeper of a lodging house at 234 South Hill street, swore that she knew Simpson and Miss Thompson. They occupied room 14 at her house in February. She had gone up to the room and had seen the defendant, Simpson, in bed. The couple acted out as if they were man and wife.

J. K. Skinner, ex-chief of police, testified that he had had a conversation with Simpson about three months ago. The witness asked Simpson where Grace was, and he said that it was none of his business. Simpson said that he intended to marry the girl as soon as he could get a divorce from his wife.

The prosecution rested and the defense placed Mrs. Baswitz on the stand. She swore that Mrs. Skinner had told her that she considered Simpson a good catch for Grace.

Henry Baswitz, the husband of the preceding witness, swore that the defendant and Miss Thompson were both rooming at his house now.

Miss Grace Thompson was called next. She swore that her father lived at Tustin, Orange county. She denied positively that she ever had illicit intercourse with Simpson or any other man. She had a room at Mrs. Buttner's in February.

A ROARING FARCE.

Department No. 1 the Scene of a Kindergarten Trial Yesterday. There was a kindergarten school in department No. 1 of the superior court yesterday, in which the wheels of justice revolved around a Congressional minister from Avalon, Catalina island, his wife and four small boys, of the staircase order.

The family sat bunched together near their attorney, Will Gould, while Deputy District Attorney Conkling endeavored to convince the jury that the tallest boy, Albert H. Morris, about 14 years old, was a hardened and vicious criminal for whom the portals of San Quentin yawned with an insatiable yawn.

He was charged with burglary, and had been held to answer by Justice J. P. Sheets, one of those remarkable figures who turn up every once in a while as country justices of the peace.

Judge McKinley's benevolent features opened up at fresh points as the trial progressed, and if ever an expression of disgust was pictured on the face of a court, it was as he realized how the expensive process of the law had been invoked to try so frivolous a cause.

The testimony for the prosecution showed that the boys left their home very early one morning last December, with their father's permission to go down rowing. As they were coming back home the elder boys ran ahead and tried to hide from the little one as a lark.

While seeking some place to get out of sight, they slipped into the notion store of a Mr. Elms, which had been there for a few months. While there some one who thought their actions suspicious followed them in and asked them what they were doing.

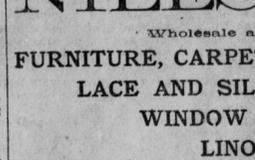

They had taken nothing, and told about hiding from their brother. But the matter was reported to Justice Sheets, he had the boys arrested, a deputy district attorney was sent over to Catalina, and an examination was held, the three little fellows being gravely charged with burglary, the youngest being about 8 years old.

When the prosecution closed a motion was made by the defense that the jury be instructed to acquit, and Judge McKinley stood not upon the order of doing it but did it at once.
