TUESDAY, JUNE 13, 1893. AN INDEX TO YESTERDAY.

BY TELEGRAPH—Evans and Sontag fight their last battle. Sontag a prisoner in Visalia, badly wounded. Evans wounded and surrounded by officers.

LOCAL—Proceedings of the city council. Amateur baseball. Court matters. Young testifies in his own behalf in trial for murder.

NEIGHBORING TOWNS. SANTA MONICA—Preparations for the Fourth.

POINTS FOR TODAY. PARK THEATER—An Actor's Romance.

The Chronicle says there is one man in San Francisco who can go out and capture or kill Evans and Sontag. Why don't he go out? It is evident that there is nobody in Tulare county, from the sheriff down, who is spoiling to come within gunshot of the bandits.

The Fourth of July committee have struck an original and suggestive idea to add interest to the parade. It is to invite each town of this section to prepare a representative float emblematic of the chief feature of its interest.

The frequency with which railroad trains are held up and the treasure car robbed suggests that these cars should be made bullet and burglar proof.

Is there anybody who wishes to be two hundred years old? If there be, William Kinneer, in the North American Review for June, tells him how to do it. The process is a simple one.

in-law that he held was an infallible recipe for producing male children. Its efficacy was somewhat doubted when that gentleman presented the marquis with thirteen blooming granddaughters, and had never a son to his name.

THEIR CRIMINAL CAREER ENDED. For several months the train robbers and murderers, Evans and Sontag, have defied the whole power of the state from their fastnesses in the mountains back of Visalia.

They have at last, however, come to the end of their lawless career. A party of officers, led by Marshal Gard of this city, has brought them to grief.

This is the culmination of another of the extraordinary criminal episodes which have occurred in California's history. The first noted highwayman and desperado was Joaquin Murietta, who in the early fifties ranged the mountain towns for two or three years, and with his band committed robberies and atrocities in every camp in the southern mines, until at last he ran up against Harry Love's avenging bullet.

The notorious Jack Powers was another terror who robbed and murdered for several years before he was driven out of the state. This outlaw was one of the smoothest and most cold-blooded ruffians that ever infested the state.

The notorious Jack Powers was another terror who robbed and murdered for several years before he was driven out of the state. This outlaw was one of the smoothest and most cold-blooded ruffians that ever infested the state.

Thurco's Vaquez's career as a bandit was brought to an end about four miles out of town, at Greek George's house in the Caluenga foothills. A party organized by Sheriff Rowland traced him to that house and captured him, after a fight in which he was severely wounded.

Evans and Sontag are the only ones who in recent years have held the authorities at bay for any length of time. Their boldness has been the theme of public discussion ever since they robbed the train over a year ago near Collins.

The history of all the noted outlaws of this state has always had the same finale. They have all braved the authorities for a time; but they have all at last been brought to grief.

There can be very little doubt of the fact that the special session of congress will be a very exciting and quite eventful convocation of that body. It will be concerned by issues of absorbing interest, notably the silver and Chinese questions.

groping about blindly on this most important question cannot be disputed. For the first time in the history of the country a law solemnly enacted by congress, signed by the president, and confirmed by the supreme court, of the United States, has been permitted to remain a dead letter.

We do not enjoy the role of Cassandra. But we cannot forbear telling what will surely happen if this express law of congress is not enforced. It will have been the first time in the history of the United States that one of its laws duly enacted and conforming to the constitution by the decision of our highest court of last resort has not been enforced.

If this Gray law is not enforced there will be trouble. There is no occasion for mincing our words, as we desire to avoid a great catastrophe instead of inciting it. If the authorities neglect their duty in the premises there will be bloodshed.

As to the silver question, another grave duty will devolve on congress. The goldbug conspiracy has taken on overshadowing proportions. It is assumed that the wishes of Wall street will absolutely dominate the whole matter, and that silver will be offered up as an innocent victim of capitalist greed.

The special session of the fifty-third congress will also have the tariff to deal with. Fortunately on this momentous issue there are now no differences of opinion amongst Democrats. From president down to the humblest citizen they are all in favor of the repeal of the McKinley bill and its replacement by a moderate and well considered measure, which will involve material reductions in customs duties, with, as its guiding inspiration, free raw material and heavy imposts on luxuries.

The great blast at Catalina island on Sunday was a decided success. It rent the cliff asunder and brought it in fragments down to the water's edge, leaving thousands of tons of rock ready to be handily placed in the lighters and carried to the mainland.

The agreement of August of 1890 with the Yellowstone Park association for the lease of the Fountain, which will soon be carried out, but their request for transportation facilities in connection therewith is denied.

In regard to the superintendence of repairs and construction of roads in the park, the matter will be referred back to the present for action by congress.

YOUNG AS A WITNESS.

THE DEFENDANT IN A MURDER CASE ON THE STAND. He Tells a Very Pretty Tale of His Movements on the Night of the Crime, and the Attorneys Begin the Arguments.

The Young murder trial was concluded yesterday with the testimony of the defendant, who testified at some length as to his whereabouts on the night of the alleged murder of Irene O'Brien.

He stated that on the night in question he was in Lemmer's saloon at 10 o'clock at night. He stayed there 10 minutes, and going out by the back entrance walked down the gang plank to the alley, then to Main street, where he took a car. He alighted at the corner of First street and walked down to Chambers' saloon. He stayed there 15 minutes, and met his brother, Mr. Dohney and Mr. Chambers. He then went up to Dohney's house and went to bed.

Witness stated that he wanted to be released on bail because he was anxious about Irene, and desired to ascertain how seriously she was injured; he knew nothing as to how the accident occurred. He was not there, and never struck her, threw a lamp or anything else on that night.

ARASTA CANON WATER.

An Opinion by Judge Van Dyke Affecting Its Ownership. The following opinion was rendered yesterday by Judge Van Dyke in the suit of N. M. Melrose vs. Harry Hanson, who prayed for a decree naming him sole owner of all the water flowing in the stream known as the Arasta canon, near Acton, in this county.

It appears that in 1888 plaintiff entered upon the northwest quarter of section 13 and commenced cultivating it. He also built a house and is at present residing on the territory. The defendant has taken up the northwest quarter of section 19, higher up on the same creek. Between defendant's and the plaintiff's places the creek was dammed and water conducted through and down across the premises occupied by plaintiff, by means of flumes and a ditch to an old mining mill just below the plaintiff's premises.

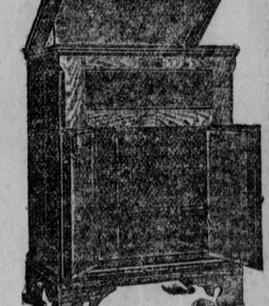

The right on the part of the plaintiff to the use of the water by actual appropriation cannot date earlier than the period when he repaired and enlarged the dam and claimed the use of the water in his own right; prior to that whatever he used was by the permission and license of the other parties, as there is no testimony showing that he encroached on the rights of the other parties by purchase or otherwise.

GOT THIEVES AND MONEY

OFFICER GOODMAN DOES A CLEVER BIT OF WORK. He Runs Down a Couple of Hotel Room Burglars and Recovers the Money They are Charged With Stealing.

Two important arrests were made this week by Officer Goodman, and two burglars were run to ground in short order. They are W. M. Carnahan and Ed. A. Frye. The former was arrested Sunday and Frye, yesterday. Strong cases have been made against them.

Last Sunday morning about 1 o'clock Alfred Ehrlich, a German hailing from Elnorino, walked into the St. Charles hotel on North Main street to procure a room. He was assigned one, and took out his wallet to pay the clerk. It contained a big roll of greenbacks amounting to $190, being in $10 and $20 notes. He returned the change to his pocket, leaving $180 in the wallet. He retired to the room and placed a chair, on which were his clothes, against the door. In the morning when he awoke he discovered that some one had entered the room while he slept and robbed him, as the wallet was lying in the middle of the floor with the money gone. His clothes had not been touched. Ehrlich went to the police station and made known his loss. Officer Goodman was detailed on the affair.

After investigation he concluded that a suspicious character who had been hanging around the hotel and who saw Ehrlich pay for his room, might know something of the affair. Accordingly that man was arrested and proved to be W. M. Carnahan. When questioned by Officer Goodman, Carnahan broke down and confessed to the theft and told the officer where the money was hid. Officer Goodman went to the place and failing to find the booty returned and told the prisoner.

Finally Carnahan said that he had a pal named Ed. A. Frye who had probably taken the money to another place. Frye was at length arrested yesterday and also confessed to being concerned in the robbery. He went with officer Goodman to the hotel and down in the wall of the cellar was found the money. There was $140 recovered which together with the change from the bill robbed by Ehrlich and which the prisoners failed to get makes $155 of the whole sum of $190, accounted for. The prisoner had evidently made away with the balance. The men will be arraigned probably this week.
