

SHE MUST STAY ON HER BED, Or Else She Will Lose the Use of Her Legs.

A Strange Story from San Gabriel in the Courts.

A Young Woman Who Thinks She Will Die if She Does Not Keep Her Heels Higher Than Her Head.

One of the oddest cases Judge Clark has had before him for some time was partially heard in his department yesterday morning.

It was in connection with a petition by Mrs. Kellogg of Claremont to be appointed guardian of her daughter, Miss Lottie Kellogg, who has been residing for two years past at San Gabriel at the house of Mrs. Maggie V. Plummer.

About three weeks ago the HERALD published an account of an ineffectual attempt by Felix F. Vick to procure a marriage license from the county clerk's office for himself and Miss Kellogg. The office had been notified by Deputy District Attorney Satterwhite not to issue any license, because the petition to have the lady declared an incompetent had been filed.

Mr. Vick was very much chagrined at the turn affairs took, but was obliged to submit to the inevitable and go home without the necessary document authorizing him to make his lady love his own.

The hearing upon the petition came up yesterday, and all persons interested except Miss Lottie Kellogg herself were present and gave testimony which, although presented in a quiet, unemotional sort of a way, revealed one of the queerest mental conditions that can be imagined on the part of the young woman.

She has been afflicted with a belief, real or imaginary the court has not yet decided, that her life depends upon her remaining in bed with her legs elevated higher than her head. She gives this belief a scientific name, sometimes calling it muscular sclerosis and at other times muscular atrophy.

Under this belief she has succeeded for two or three years past in spending nearly all her time in bed, although in all respects save this hallucination she has been ostensibly as well as anybody.

At first her mother attempted to control her daughter's ideas in respect to lying in bed, by urging her to take exercise. This did not suit the young lady, however, and she underwent the simple treatment prescribed by her mother in high dudgeon. She followed her orders with much groaning of spirit, and it required constant watchfulness to keep her out of bed.

Finally one day Miss Kellogg asserted her determination to go to bed, by going away from home and taking up her quarters with some friends, where she calmly announced it necessary for the preservation of her life to go to bed for two months. She carried her purpose by storm, and no inducements could prevail upon her during that time to get up, and she even moved about in bed very little.

At the expiration of the attack she was persuaded to go home, but after a time went to Mrs. Plummer's residence at San Gabriel, where she has remained until the present time, about two years. During that time she has been following her peculiar ideas much to her own satisfaction.

These facts all came out yesterday in the examination of the various witnesses, and there were several on each side. The mother and her witnesses were clearly of the opinion that Miss Kellogg is demented, and Mrs. Plummer and others that she is in her right mind.

Miss Kellogg, while not present in person, being wedded too closely to her bed, sent a carefully worded letter to Judge Clark, transcribed in a fair, round hand. Under ordinary circumstances the letter would be deemed unusually lucid and sensible, but taken in conjunction with the extraordinary actions of the lady it becomes quite a curiosity. It is as follows:

SAN GABRIEL, June 19, 1893. HON. W. H. CLARK—DEAR SIR: Please excuse pencil, as the ink will not flow while I am in a recumbent position.

I am tired to appear before you in the matter of a petition filed in your court alleging that I am an incompetent and need a guardian.

I admit that I am physically unable to care for myself, but I positively deny that I am mentally incompetent. I have had this disease twice before, and never recovered except by getting wholly free from mother's authority in regard to exercise.

The first time I recovered at home, after the physicians advised me to stop using any exercise measure in regard to anything. The other two times I was obliged to get wholly free from home and not hear from them. The first physician consulted was Dr. Wakefield, Hutchinson, Minn., who coincided with mother. The next was Dr. E. S. Sals of Philadelphia, who has practiced in the city for 30 years, pronounced it atrophy, a very serious, obscure disease, and difficult to overcome.

The third, Dr. E. C. Bolles of Brownston, Minn., pronounced muscular atrophy. Dr. Bartlette, head of the state insane asylum at St. Peter, Minn., pronounced muscular atrophy. Dr. A. H. Steen, St. Paul, Minn., said spinal sclerosis, a form of muscular atrophy. I hope you will give me time to write to these gentlemen if the suit goes against me, before allowing me to be moved.

With most earnest pleadings, I remain, yours respectfully, LOTTIE C. KELLOGG.

Dr. C. N. Pepper, a well-known physician of this city, who had been attending Miss Kellogg, testified that the nature of her trouble is hysteria, and that all her fancies about dying if she moves are the result of this, and that they are clearly hallucinations. He found at one time that she thought about the same thing with reference to speaking; that if she did so it would be dangerous to her health.

He was followed by Edward Liken and E. J. Plummer, who both thought the lady needed a guardian.

On the part of Miss Plummer there testified Walter Foster, D. W. Fales, Miss Emma Rich and Mrs. Maggie

Plummer, who all thought she was perfectly sane, and that she is really afflicted by an obscure disease that can be cured by proper treatment.

One of the peculiar features of the case is the exceeding fondness which Mrs. Plummer has developed for her strange guest, and Miss Kellogg for her. She does not wish her to be taken from her home, and cheerfully cares for her. They appear to have become absolutely in love with each other, and Mrs. Plummer does not desire any one to think of taking Miss Kellogg from her.

After hearing all the testimony Judge Clark said that he would not decide the petition until hearing further testimony about Miss Kellogg's condition, and the hearing was continued.

STILL CLEARING UP.

The Suspended Banks Getting in Fine Shape.

The financial situation yesterday was about the same as the day before. Examiner Wightman was hard at work on the securities of the First National bank, and was finding everything in good condition as he proceeded.

President Elliott said they were waiting now the result of his efforts and the sanction of the comptroller of the currency to reopen.

"We hope to open some time next week," said he, "but it depends upon how soon we will be allowed to by the authorities at Washington. The plan for the reorganization of the bank is progressing nicely, and we will have plenty of coin and backing when our doors open again."

At the University bank collections were still coming in, and it is the intention of the management to open just as soon as they have a sufficient amount of money on hand. "We don't intend to open," said one of the officials yesterday, "until we have enough money on hand to meet all demands, whether there is a run or not."

The officers of the Southern California bank are patiently waiting to hear from Washington, which it is hoped will be next Monday. They stated there was every probability that they would open on the following Tuesday. Everything is in readiness, and they have lots of coin.

At the Los Angeles National everything was quiet and the deposits are increasing as each day rolls on.

Major Bonebrake is still receiving congratulations on the pick and ingenuity with which he managed the late run. J. E. Fishburn, the assistant cashier of the First National bank of San Diego, is in the city and said yesterday that the closing of the First National was directly due to the shutting down of the Consolidated, which took them by surprise and transferred the run to their bank. "The simple trouble was," he said, "that we had not coin enough to meet the demand made on us. We can't get it, and all claims now held against us will be open again for business within three days from this time."

BROMWELL'S BOTTLE.

HE USED IT TO SLUG JONES OF LOS ANGELES.

The Angel City Man Got a Nasty Cut Over the Head Which is Liable to Mark Him for Life.

San Francisco Evening Post, Tuesday: A serious quarrel between two men, well known in local railroad and insurance circles, occurred Saturday night in a saloon on Montgomery street, which, but for prompt medical attendance, might have resulted in the death of one. As it is the man who was injured will be marked for life by the scars of the wounds which his antagonist inflicted with a whisky bottle.

About 7 o'clock on the evening mentioned W. W. Jones, who is well known in Los Angeles, where his family resides, and L. L. Bromwell, the insurance broker, engaged in a heated discussion in Gaudier & Hink's saloon on Montgomery street, near the city street.

Just what provoked the trouble there is a conflict of statements, but at any rate the row ended in Bromwell striking Jones over the head with a bottle, from which they had been imbibing.

All those concerned in the affair, including the proprietors of the saloon and the respective friends of both men, have been trying to keep the matter quiet, although yesterday Jones' friends were talking of getting a warrant out for the arrest of his assailant, and it was found Jones was going to die.

One story is that Bromwell and W. H. Sneadaker, of the Rio Grande and Western railway were shaking dice in the saloon when Jones entered.

Sneadaker, who is a friend of both men, called upon Jones to decide some question, and it is said the heated discussion ending in the assault followed.

Another story, and one that appears pretty correct, is that Bromwell and Jones were under the influence of liquor and that Jones provoked the quarrel and was only assaulted after having roundly abused Bromwell.

In a second after he was hit the blood was streaming down his face and saturating his clothing until he presented a hideous appearance.

Mr. Sneadaker, who had unfortunately been drawn into the affair through his acquaintance with both men and his presence in the saloon, at once realized that Jones was pretty badly hurt and hastened his way to Dr. J. R. Davidson's office, 121 Montgomery street.

A hurried examination showed that an artery had been severed on the right side of Jones' head, where there was a terrible gash several inches long, and the flesh was so jagged that it was with considerable difficulty that Dr. Davidson, after he had caught up the artery, could stitch up the wound.

There was also another gash on the cheek, between the nose and the ear, another on the forehead and still another one over the right eye.

On Sunday morning Dr. Davidson, fearing that Jones' wounds might result fatally, notified some of his friends, who began to investigate the affair.

Dr. Davidson said this morning that Jones would probably recover, although he would be scarred for life.

That the affair has been kept such a secret is only explained by the fact of the prominence of the two men and that the assault was only witnessed by friends who exerted every influence possible to shield Bromwell.

Jones had just arrived from the south and was stopping at the Grand hotel.

Some Criminal Matters: CAINAHAN AND FRYE UP ON A CHARGE OF BURGLARY.

The Former a Young Man of Good Family and Education—Church's Story—Minor Cases Under Consideration.

W. M. Carnahan and Edward Frye appeared before Justice Seaman yesterday for examination on a charge of burglary.

The complaining witness in the case is a German named Ehrlich, who testified yesterday to the effect that June 11th he went to the St. Charles hotel on North Main street and secured a room.

On retiring for the night he placed his clothes on a chair in the room and went to sleep. In his coat was a purse containing $100 in greenbacks. When he awoke next morning, his clothes were scattered around on the floor and his money gone.

Detective Goodman testified to being detailed on the affair and arresting Carnahan. Carnahan, after being lodged in jail, roke down and confessed to the theft; he also stated that he had a partner named Frye, who had assisted in the robbery. The witness arrested Frye and recovered all the money with the exception of $30, which Frye acknowledged having spent.

After hearing the testimony Justice Seaman held both men to answer to the charge in the superior court, and fixed their bail at $1000 each.

The defendant Carnahan is a man of education and refinement. His father is General Carnahan, who has charge of the Soldiers' home in Illinois.

A short time ago Carnahan married a daughter of the former secretary to Abraham Lincoln. Drink is said to be the cause of his downfall. He is being defended by Judge Manday.

MINOR CASES. The examination of Tom Ward, charged with the manslaughter of ex-Police Officer Rinkenbach, was continued by Justice Seaman until this morning at 9 o'clock. Ward is represented by a formidable array of counsel, being defended by C. C. Stephens, Marion Brooks and Attorney Ling.

John Donna was fined $5 yesterday by Justice Seaman for disturbing the peace on Sunday last in the neighborhood of the Hoffman house.

Joquin Espor was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon, and was fined $10 by the same justice.

Charge of battery against Dan McMahon, David Wilson and Ed Fay were continued by Justice Seaman until June 30th.

ROBERT HARLOW GUILTY.

A Jury Reduces His Crime to Petty Larceny.

Robert Harlow, informed against as Richard Harlan, was tried yesterday in Judge Smith's court upon a charge of embezzling $58 from Green & Fisher's saloon on North Main street, where he worked. The trial lasted all day and it was shown beyond dispute that Harlow took the amount mentioned with him when he left the saloon at night. He looked upon the wind when it was read, and when found the next morning sleeping on a stairway had only $5 left. It was shown for his defense that he was intoxicated, that he had previously borne a good reputation for honesty, and that the firm owed him about $40 at the time he took the $58. The jury went out about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and did not agree until last night at 8 o'clock. At that time they returned a verdict of guilty, and that the defendant had taken $15 which did not belong to him. This makes the crime petty larceny and will result in a county jail sentence, which will be administered this morning.
