AFTER THE BALL IS OVER.

An Appropriate Ditty for Russia and France.

Fetes in Honor of the Russian Visitors Ended.

The Ordeal of Kissing, Embracing and Feasting Is Over.

Scandalous Incongruity of France's Manifestations of Friendship for Her Despotism Ally—Europe May Yet Be Cossacked.

Copyrighted Oct. 28, 1893, by Associated Press.
PARIS, Oct. 28.—The Russian fetes, which kept all the main thoroughfares of this city congested, and the people who thronged them wildly joyful, were prolonged from Lyons to Toulon. Before starting for Toulon, President Carnot was visited by the czar's brothers, Grand Dukes Sergius, governor of Moscow, and Paul. The grand dukes were instructed by a telegram from the czar to come to Paris and express to the president the heartfelt thanks of the czar and Czarina at the magnificent and cordial reception given the Russian squadron and its officers.

Grand Duke Sergius, in thanking President Carnot, said: "Russia and France are now indissolubly united in a current of sympathy the strongest, the two great nations have ever known."

CARNOT'S JOYFUL RESPONSE.
President Carnot responded with transparent joy, and called on the grand dukes as soon as they had returned to their hotels, and then started for Toulon, taking with him the foreign, land and navy ministers, with M. Humbert, president of the municipal council, who 20 years ago was in the Toulon jail, convicted as a communist, with iron chains riveted on his legs. But Humbert, now president of the town council of Paris, is aware of his own importance and lost no chance to show himself a courtier of the potentate of Siberia. Most of Humbert's fellow town councilors kept pace with him and poured out public merriment like water on the civic festivities made at the cost of the taxpayers.

KISSING AND EMBRACING.
Handsome gifts were made to Admiral Avellan and officers at the ball previous to their departure from Paris, which was the final effort of festivity. It is admitted that ladies, moved by patriotic ardor, came in order to let the Russian officers kiss and embrace them. The Russians, while being driven through Paris, had to kiss infants by the scores while the mothers, handing up the wee things, began with an embrace, showing the indissolubility of the union. In Toulon, where the people universally smell of garlic, the kissing and embracing ordeal was much more trying than in Paris.

JUST AFTER THE BALL.
An hour after the visit of Admiral Avellan is at an end, and he goes up the Mediterranean on a cruise. The great throngs of Paris look like a ball room, just deserted and into which the light of dawn has come. One only sees wearied eyes and pallid or congested faces. Those who were off as the Russian visitors, they being surfeited with banqueting and rounds of pleasure.

THE KAISER'S INDISCRETION.
The indiscretion of Emperor William helped to swell the Russian triumph. He says and does foolish things. His having entertained the prince of Italy at the Metz review made the French back bite and the blood of Frenchmen boil, so the mob is not blamed for crying "Vive le Czar!" The French want an ally against Germany and want to wrest Alsace and Lorraine from German dominion, but their statements play more than a dangerous game. Europe may at any time be cossacked through republican France.

DISGRACEFUL ENTERTAINMENT.
Eiffel, who was convicted of swindling the Panama shareholders out of about $10,000,000, was asked to take Admiral Avellan up his tower. Arthur Meyer of Le Gaulois, ex-secretary of Blanche Antigny, the original of Anna, was charged to organize a gala representation at the opera. He invited all the theatrical demi monde. Mme. Melba, mistress of the duke of Orleans, was invited to participate. Princess de Chantres, whose theater name is Mme. Malba, was also invited, along with Yvette Guilbert, famous for her snuff songs; Miss Judic, noted for her innuendo; Irma Pochon, noted for her cannibal style; Emilienne Leoncen, reputed for her pagan vices, were present and exited in the highest degree. The state box at the opera was filled with duchesses and other grand ladies to keep Baroness von Mohrenheim and Mme. Carnot, wife of the president, in countenance.

SCANDALOUS INCONGRUITY.
What power can a nation showing such scandalous incongruity exert in controlling the forces which it has been rashly unloosening? It has enormous military strength, but wants moral backbone. Everyone professes to want peace, but with popular emotion to lead, knives wanting great military contracts, may easily be helped by irresponsible politicians in parliament, to land France in war. In any case, Russia will be the ruling and directing party. The Germans claim to believe France has not yet been allowed to see all her ally's drift, which is that of Ignatieff of 1896. I doubt whether the French understand what they are doing. In any case Europe has entered into a new phase of historical evolution.

EMILY CRAWFORD.

THE ORGIE IS OVER.

The Visiting Russian Fleet Departs from French Waters.

Toulon, Oct. 28.—The great series of fetes in honor of the visiting Russian sailors is at an end, and they carry away with them as mementoes presents to the value of half a million dollars, and as the Russian ships are preparing to turn their prow seaward, it may safely be said that nowhere in the history of any other nation has there been such a demonstration of sympathy and universal enthusiasm as was displayed here, in Paris, Lyons and Marseilles upon the occasion of the visits of the guests of the nation.

President Carnot received the following message from the czar: "At the moment of the departure of the Russian squadron from France I am particularly desirous of expressing to you how deeply touched and gratified I am at the warm and splendid reception my sailors have met with in all parts while on French soil. This is evidence of the keen sympathy which has once more been displayed with so much eloquence, and will add a fresh link to those uniting the two countries, and will, I hope, contribute to the strengthening of the general peace, the object of their most constant endeavors and wishes."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—When the senate convened at 11 a. m. today there were 52 senators present. The urgency deficiency bill was taken up and passed; also Callom's joint resolution transferring the model battleship at the world's fair to the state of Illinois for an armory for the state naval militia.

The repeal bill was then taken up and Wolcott addressed the senate on opposition.

He was followed by Sherman, who spoke of the depleted condition of the treasury, and the invasion of the gold reserve, which he said was reduced to $80,000,000. To rectify this the secretary of the treasury should be authorized to issue bonds. He considered it unwise to offer such an amendment to the present bill, but had read a proposition for the sale of $200,000,000 3 per cent bonds for the method he would suggest for relief.

Sherman was followed by Gorman, who contended that when congress met the Democratic party was hopelessly divided on the silver question, as were the Republicans. There was no majority in favor of an unconditional repeal, he asserted, for many of those who would vote that way wanted some other measure passed in place of the Sherman law. Stewart spoke a few minutes.

Shoup of Idaho took the floor and read a short speech, predicting that disaster would follow repeal.

Stewart offered a substitute for Perkins' amendment, which was practically to the same effect, but differently worded. The substitute was lost—39 to 29.

Perkins' amendment was lost—30 to 41.

Berry of Arkansas offered the Blaud-Alison law as a proviso to the repeal bill, which was lost—33 to 37, the highest vote any amendment received.

Berry said the repeal ought to be a measure which the Democrats could agree upon. He spoke, he said, for the silver Democrats of the south, whose people demanded something for silver. The victory of the northern Democrats over the southern Democrats was obtained under the leadership of the senator from Ohio (Sherman).

Voorhees said many policies had been proposed as amendments to this bill, which would under different circumstances meet his approval. He was agreed with the great responsibility of passing this bill unencumbered and insisted that legislation would not end with the passage of this bill. He would oppose the issue of bonds at this time. He would also oppose Butler's state bank tax repeal bill. He was for it as a separate bill, but not as an amendment to this bill. What Secretary Carlisle, a great lawyer, told him he had authority to issue bonds, he believed it. The senator from Ohio was right in some of his positions. Provision ought to be made for bonds for a shorter date and lower interest.

Stewart offered an amendment for a conference of all the American states to fix upon a uniform silver coinage. When all the countries had agreed upon such coin and opened the mints to free coinage of silver, the United States should do the same.

Rejected—Yeas 32, nays 42.

Allev of Nebraska offered an amendment to coin the bullion in the treasury. Lost—31 to 41.

The vote on the Blackburn amendment, offered some days ago, resulted: Yeas 28; nays 42.

Squire offered his amendment providing for the repeal of the purchasing clause; the coinage of $21,000,000 per month; the treasury to retain seigniorage; issue $300,000,000 3-year, 3 per cent bonds authorizing national banks to issue the full amount of circulation for bonds deposited. He asked a separate vote on the first two sections, which did not provide for bonds. The first two sections were rejected—yeas 30; nays 42.

Yorbees gave notice that he would call for the final vote on the repeal bill at 2 o'clock Monday.

Squire asked to withdraw the remaining sections of his amendment, and the request was granted.

Butler said, after consultation with the senator from Indiana, he would withdraw his amendment for the repeal of the tax on state bank issues.

Peffer offered an amendment for the issue of notes to the amount of $250,000,000, of the same character as the treasury notes under the Sherman law. Lost. Those voting for the Peffer amendment were: Allen, Call, Irby, Kyle, Peffer, Pettigrew and Stewart.

Allen of Nebraska offered an amendment for free silver coinage. Rejected—yeas 28, nays 41.

Peffer offered an amendment declaring every dollar equal to every other dollar. Rejected without roll call.

Harris did not ask a vote on his amendment.

Peffer offered an amendment which was ordered printed, with the understanding that it could be offered Monday.

The senate then went into executive session, at the expiration of which a recess was taken until Monday.

MAYORS' DAY AT THE FAIR.

Carter H. Harrison's Last Appearance in Public.

The exercises began with a fanfare of universal peace by 16 trumpeters in heralds' costume, sounded from the four sides of the court of honor, as the visitors entered the grounds. This was followed by an address of welcome in Music hall, by Mayor Harrison, followed by responses by several visiting mayors and exposition officers and music by a selected chorus. Then the people assembled on the administration plaza and joined in singing patriotic songs, led by a large orchestra, followed by the ringing of the new liberty bell and the booming of cannon.

The women also held exercises in the assembly hall, listening to addresses by well-known members of that sex, and one by Paul B. Duchailu, the famous African explorer.

The Ancient Order of United Workers also held a special celebration in Festival hall, and the Odd Fellows of Chicago gave a prize drill on the government plaza.

The total admissions today were 275,664, of which 240,732 were paid.

A meeting was held today for the purpose of continuing the fair next year, which Carter Harrison advocated in an address before the mayors today. Another meeting to consider the subject will be held tomorrow.

A committee of eight has been appointed to wind up the fair and make a report to the president of the United States. The committee consists of President T. W. Palmer, Commissioners St. Clair, Massey, Lannon, Thatcher, Martin, Tousey and Butler.

THE BRAZILIAN REVOLT.

PRESIDENT PEIXOTO SAYS IT IS PETERING OUT.

The Insurgent Fleet Imprisoned in Rio Bay and Badly Disabled—The Rebels Claim They Are Making Headway.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Herald's Rio de Janeiro dispatch says President Peixoto has issued the following statement: "The rebel vessels are imprisoned in the bay of Rio de Janeiro. Furthermore, there is ample proof that the boarding of the ships from the government fort has done serious damage. Two men-of-war have been rendered useless, three are injured and the armed cruisers are damaged so much that they are powerless. The government is daily taking measures toward isolating the various refractory elements in Bahia. All attempts to land forces have failed, the rebels being repulsed with great loss. The general political situation is good. There is no public manifestation in favor of the rebels. In the federal states the garrisons are giving energetic assistance to the government, the sole exception being Mariba, where is situated the city of Desterro in which the rebels have organized a government without moral or material elements, and composed of members of whom scarcely two dare set a foot on the continent. All the other states, however, remain faithful to the federal government.

The Herald's Montevideo dispatch says: "The revolutionary provisional government has declared Santa Catarina to be a free port. From Rio Grande the report comes that the city of Santa Ana will probably be in the possession of the revolutionists in a few days. It is asserted that Fort Santa Cruz is perfectly neutral. However, it is generally believed that the garrison will declare for Admiral Mello. A report is received that the Riachuelo has sailed from Toulon and will join Mello on her arrival.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—The contractors in charge of the tunnel and other work at San Luis Obispo have shipped a lot of men from this city to that point and the evident intention is to push the work to completion as soon as possible. Several weeks ago a large reduction was made in the working force and this is the first intimation of the intention to put on an increased force. MURDERED BY A CRANK.

Mayor Carter H. Harrison Assassinated.

Shot Without Warning in His Quiet Home.

The Crime Committed by a Crazy Young Man.

He Immediately Surrenders to the Police—The Wildest Excitement Caused by the Tragedy—The Dead Man's Career.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Another crazy crank has done his deadly work, and Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, and one of the best known men in the west, lies dead at his home, 231 South Ashton boulevard. Three bullets entered his body, two making wounds sufficient to cause his death. The murder was committed by Eugene Patrick Prendergast, a paper carrier, who had declared Mayor Harrison had promised to make him corporation counsel and had not kept his word. This, he said, was his only reason for committing the crime.

The only person in the house at the time of the shooting, beside Mr. Harrison, was his son, William Preston Harrison, aged 25, and the servants.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the door bell rang, and when Mary Hansen, a domestic, opened the door she was confronted by a man about five feet five inches high, smooth shaven, clean-cut features lit by a pair of dark eyes.

"Is Mr. Harrison in?" asked the man in a quiet, pleasant voice.

"Yes, sir," replied the girl, as she threw open the door to permit his entrance.

"I would like to see him, please," said the man, as he walked toward the back end of the hall. Harrison was in the dining room, which opened into the rear of the hall. Hearing a man asking for him he stepped into the hall and walked toward Prendergast.

Without saying a word, Prendergast drew a revolver and commenced to fire. He pulled the trigger but three times, and every bullet hit the mark. One bullet shattered Harrison's left hand; another passed into the lower right side of his abdomen, making a wound that would have been mortal within a few days. The third bullet entered the chest slightly above the heart. This wound was the immediate cause of his death.

As soon as Prendergast began to fire, Harrison turned and walked rapidly toward the dining room. He passed through the room into the butler's pantry, where, weakened by the loss of blood, he fell to the floor.

THE ASSASSIN ESCAPES.

Prendergast did not follow up his victim, but replaced his revolver in his pocket with the same deliberation that marked all of his actions, and started for the door. Just as he was passing out, William Preston Harrison came tearing down the stairs and the coachman ran into the rear end of the hall. The cries of Mary Hansen directed the son to where his father lay, but the coachman was after other game. He had a revolver with him, and as quickly as he realized what had occurred, he sent a bullet after the disappearing form of the murderer. A second time running to the door the coachman prepared to continue hostilities, but several people were entering to learn the cause of the shooting, and by the time the coachman reached the sidewalk the assassin had disappeared.

THE DEATH SCENE.

Across Ashland boulevard, directly opposite the Harrison residence, is the home of W. J. Chalmers, the wealthy maker of mining machinery. Chalmers was standing upon the front steps of his residence when the shots were fired. He dashed across the street and met Prendergast at the gate.

"What is it?" said Chalmers. The man walked rapidly away without replying, and Chalmers hastened into the house at almost the same moment that William Preston Harrison found where his father lay.

"Are you hurt?" asked Chalmers, as he and the son of the dying man strove to raise him.

"I have got my death, Chalmers," responded the mayor.

"I am shot in the heart, and am a dead man."

A moment later Harrison said, with a voice rapidly losing strength: "Unblunt my vest, there's where the trouble is."

By this time the stricken man was borne to a couch in an adjoining room and as he spoke Chalmers gently opened his waist-coat. This front of his shirt was soaked in blood which welled rapidly from the wound.

"It's through the heart," said the
