

NOTES

Weather Bureau. Report of observations taken at Los Angeles, Nov. 19, 1893.

Table with columns: Time, Bar., Ther., RH, W, V, W, Clear. Data for 8:00 a.m., 8:00 p.m., and Maximum temperature.

Indications. Forecast for Southern California: Fair weather; slightly cooler; light to fresh variable winds.

There are undelivered telegrams at the office of the Western Union telegraph company, at the corner of Court and Main, for Rev. William C. Stevens, Henry Davenport.

For Santa Catalina Island. Steamer sails from San Pedro every Saturday, connecting with morning trains from Los Angeles; returning Monday following.

PERSONAL.

Miss Jessie Yarnall has just returned from a two years' sojourn in Chicago and other cities of the east.

Mr. Frank Phillips, the well-known sporting man, who left here last year, passed through the city yesterday on his way to San Francisco.

Mr. Tom Garrett, city editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who has been spending some time hereabouts, left last night for his post of duty.

BADLY ASSAULTED.

A Tamale Man Claims Footpads Injured. Tom Tapio, a tamale man, was booked at the police station at 8 o'clock last night for medical treatment.

Tapio had a scalp wound on the back of his head and was minus a tooth. He claims that he was assaulted by footpads in a dark place on or near Main and Requesena streets, where he was found by the officers.

He cannot speak English, but through an interpreter told a straight story, though he gave no reason for the assault. No robbery was attempted by his assailants.

Athletic Club Field Day.

There is much activity among the bicyclists who are training for the Athletic club's fall field day on Thanksgiving. The majority of the old stars will ride and a number of new ones will also make their debut.

W. A. Burke has been sick since last October and is only recovering now. He will probably ride, however. Fred Holbrook is afraid to trust his leg and will not be among the competitors this month.

Walter Cooby is one of the new men, and he is said to be in good condition, with excellent prospects of winning. For the foot races E. F. Hoyt of Long Beach has gone into hard daily training.

He runs upon the beach and is developing much speed. His chief fault is in his slowness on starting, but by the time of the races he will probably have considerably remedied this fault.

C. V. Howard will enter in the 100 yards event.

Moreno Prospectors.

Moreno Indicator. A party composed of Robert Barry, S. W. Reeder and Thomas Keating, a mining expert from San Diego, left on November 1st on a hunting and prospecting trip. They went about 140 miles east of San Diego, on the Colorado desert, and discovered an edge which it is estimated will assay as high as $250 per ton in gold.

The cropping of the ledge showed about one and one-half feet and increased as it was developed. When their water was exhausted the party directed their steps toward a well-known spring, but they were disappointed to find it dry. They dug it out and were a day and a half without water while it refilled. The indications are that the mine will prove a valuable "find." Mr. Barry owns one-third interest. The party bagged plenty of game to supply them with food.

Use the Greenwood stove; superior to any other made. To be had at the W. C. Furrey company, 159 and 161 North Spring street.

PECULIAR TALE OF THE DESERT

An Old Miner Tells Some of His Experiences.

The Strange Finding of a Noted Desperado's Body.

How Tom Cover, the Riverside Pioneer, Lost His Life on the Sandy Domain—Other Mining News.

"This prospecting business is full of danger and oftentimes death," remarked an old miner in the Hollenbeck lobby last night.

"Desert prospecting has, however, died out considerably during the last few years, owing, probably, to the danger attending it. There's more gold in that vast field of sand than the mind can conceive, but the men who will risk their lives to penetrate its parched solitude are growing fewer.

"How many desert trips have I made? Oh, about a dozen, I should think. Let's see; it was in '78 that I first got the desert prospecting notion in my head. A party of four was made up here in Los Angeles and we struck out. None of us had ever traversed the region before. We had rations enough to last three or four weeks.

"It was exactly 15 days after leaving that we found we were lost. I suppose we were between El Compo and Yuma, near the place where the two Breedloves of San Diego perished last spring. That's one of the most dangerous trails on the whole desert, and I never went that way again.

"Well, we wandered around until we found the spring near which the Breedloves died. After four days' rest we gave up the search, found our bearings, and got back to civilization. That being my first desert trip, I naturally hankered after another, for in those days desert prospectors had only one object in view."

"Oh, you were hunting the Peg Leg?" "No, my boy. And it was a dreary, almost hopeless hunt. More than 20 prospectors have been known to perish in the hunt for Peg Leg Smith's mythical mine. But the saddest death—or disappearance—was that of Tom Cover, a Riverside pioneer. The remains of most of those who perished were found, their bones lying beneath a desert cactus, dried and whitened under the fierce sun.

"Tom Cover was like the rest of us. He got a party of prospectors to start on a trip to the Peg Leg mine. He was not a stranger to the desert traveler, and was a man of indomitable courage. Well, to cut a long story short, Tom agreed to meet his companion on a ridge of a distant hill. They then separated. His companion, W. B. Russell, another Riverside pioneer who has hunted in vain for years for the Peg Leg. Russell is in charge of the wagon, and in his attempt to drive to the meeting place his wagon was overturned and all the water lost. He drove back to the spring to secure more water, but before he could reach the place where they had agreed to meet darkness came on and he could go no farther.

"Daylight came, but Cover never did. Many a man has gone as he did. "His relatives and friends searched many a day for a trace of the missing man, but as the years rolled by no discovery was ever made even by his remains. He disappeared just like many other men before him—went on the dreary, sandy domain in search of the golden nugget, but never returned. "My experience on one of the trips was far from pleasant—it was peculiarly romantic. During my visit to the vicinity of India in the winter of '86 I had most unusual experience, one that shall always remain emblazoned on my memory. Our party had been among the bleak mountains so long that our provisions had given out. It had been three days since we had tasted 'bread, and the water gave out the evening before.

"We moved rapidly in the direction of India in the hopes of getting some thing to eat and save our lives. Instead of reaching India as expected we struck the line of the Southern Pacific railway about midway between India and Salton. A more dreary and lonely place is never encountered. We knew that it would take at least a hard day's travel to reach India, and our suffering became intense.

"Night came on and we decided to camp for a few hours at least. The cold desert wind was blowing hard and our faces were sore from the contact with flying sand. Seeing a bunch of cacti up the track I started to it in the hopes of securing fuel to add to our diminished stock of kindling.

"I had gone but a few steps when I stumbled across the body of some one. Startled! Well, that's no name for it. Think of running unexpectedly across a dead person at night in such a vast solitude. My blood ran cold through my veins and I yelled for help.

"Bob Jefferson, my companion, who has long since stalked out his last claim, ran to me.

"Here's a dead man, Bob. What does it mean," said I.

"The torch was lowered and it was found the body was that of a boy and that he had been dead at least 12 hours. The long gash on the forehead and the

WANTED TO FIGHT. Two "Bloods" Make an Offer to Fight a Duel.

The corner of Spring and Court streets was the scene of a "wordy duel" last night at 9:30 o'clock. Two bloods agreed to fight a duel, and afterwards changed their minds.

The row began in the Vienna Buffet. An adjournment to the street resulted in the calling of a cab to take the combatants to the battlefield. When the cab arrived on the scene an objection was interposed by one of the would-be fighters on account of the other fellow having a gun; at least that was the reason, he said, he refused to accept the challenge.

Then the other fellow offered his adversary a $10-bill with which to get a gun. This generous offer was refused on the ground that there was no place to get one on Sunday night.

This sort of argument was kept up for half an hour, greatly to the extreme delight of a hundred spectators.

The Greenwood stove can only be had at the W. C. Furrey company, 159 and 161 North Spring street.
