

KENNETH LAWSON KILLING

Coroner Campbell's Official Inquiry

JURY RETURNS MURDER VERDICT

Nothing New Developed at the Inquisition

CAUSE STILL A MYSTERY

Self-Defense and Temporary Insanity to Be the Defense

EXAMINATION SET FOR 2 P. M. SATURDAY

Lawson's Body Sent North Yesterday—More Interviews on the Subject—Further St. Louis News About Kennett

Crepe was fastened to the door of the Lawson detective agency yesterday and mourning was within. But every interest was centered in the inquest that was held during the afternoon at Orr & Patterson's, and to preparing and conveying the body to Oakland. Kennett rested quietly in his cell at the county jail and received the visits of his many friends. He remained as cool as he was when he killed Lawson, and even now that the excitement is over, few details have been added to his first story. But they are important.

The Inquest

At 2 o'clock Coroner Campbell began his inquisition and evolved the story substantially as related in The Herald immediately after the tragedy. Dr. Bryant was examined and testified that he had held an autopsy over the deceased and had extracted three bullets, two of which would have been fatal, both having passed through the heart. He said there were powder burns on both of the hands and he described the condition of other portions of the body. Deputy Sheriff Dennis Kearney told of his presence in Lawson's office about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and of Kennett's movements after entering. He told how the latter had gone with Lawson into the private office and how immediately after the three shots had been heard in quick succession, with a slight pause before the last. He heard no quarreling or angry words. Kearney described the position of the body and the plan of the room where Lawson had fallen. Kearney has known Kennett for several months, but had never conversed with him regarding Lawson, so had never heard any threat against the life of the detective. He related that Kennett took him to the room where Lawson was, and that he would not try to get away. Alfred Lawson, Jr., son of the detective, corroborated Kearney's testimony, and told that the relations between his father and Kennett had always been most amicable, except when they had trouble over the Etzler suit. Lately they had parted company and the matter had grown worse. He said his father had never armed and would not allow any weapons around. Young Lawson was very much affected by the death of his father, and once burst into tears. He thought his father was showing Kennett the door when the latter fired.

He was positive his father did not owe Kennett any money, and said he could show receipts to prove it. He said he did not blame Kennett so much, but others who had claimed that Lawson had murdered his father, and spoke of the kindly feeling his father had toward Kennett and said the former would never have abandoned the latter. He was especially in a room alone and unarmed. His father, he said, was a man who could always control himself. Under chief Clements told of the position of Lawson's body. He was the first to reach the scene from the outside, and he saw Lawson die within ten minutes after the shooting.

W. S. Livergood, a newspaper man, related what Kennett had said in an interview held half an hour after the shooting. P. J. Kennett, who was present, spoke with Kennett, said that the prisoner had told him Lawson owed him several hundred dollars, and that he had gone to Lawson to receive his money. He said he held Lawson responsible for his wife's unfortunate death; that Lawson had grossly insulted him and had sprung upon him a charge of murder. Kennett said "Oh" at the first shot and got two more as he fell.

Hurace Davis, a stenographer, told of Kennett's having been in the office in Lawyer Haas' office. He was away from the office five minutes, and when he returned the tragedy had taken place. The jury was few in number in arriving at the conclusion that Alfred B. Lawson had come to his death from gunshot wounds inflicted by Ferdinand B. Kennett. Attorneys W. H. Harris, Ben Goodrich and J. E. Conroy, who will defend their friend Kennett, were present at the inquisition as interested listeners.

Examination of Kennett Set for Saturday

Deputy Sheriff Conroy, attorney of the district attorney's office, yesterday swore to a complaint in the township justice court charging F. B. Kennett with the murder of Private A. H. Lawson on Monday. Kennett was brought before Justice Young and his examination set for Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A Dennis Kearney filed for special letters of administration in the afternoon to the estate of the deceased, on account of the absence of the family. The property which is to be looked after does not exceed $500 in value.

The body of the murdered man was shipped to Oakland last night. In the first report of the affair it was said Henry T. Gage visited Kennett and volunteered his services and sympathy, but Mr. Gage, a personal friend of Mrs. Lawson, says he did not see Kennett and that the report was circulated under a misapprehension.

Dr. E. A. Bryant, who has had Kennett in charge since his wife's death, reiterated yesterday the statement previously made, that the distracted man was not responsible for his actions most of the time. Since his wife was buried he has laid her death at Lawson's door, and has been brooding over the latter's actions toward his wife continuously. At about 8 o'clock in the morning he had sent down and later went to Insley's office to warn them that Kennett was not himself and to send him home should he put in an appearance. He himself ordered his patient to keep his room, but Kennett went down to see Lawson and the deed was done. Deputy Constable E. Beecher, of Roscoe robbery fame, is working zealously in the interests of his friend Kennett. He claims that Kennett will easily be cleared of the murder as soon as the case comes into court. It will be proved that Kennett had made an engagement with Lawyer W. K. Kennett to go to Lawson's office, to meet Lawson Monday and arrange his claim of $500 for a consideration of $100. That he kept the appointment and in the evening shot Lawson, in self-defense killed Detective Lawson.

More of Kennett. ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Ferdinand Kennett, who killed a man in Los Angeles,

Cal., is the second son of Colonel Ferd Kennett, one of the oldest French families here. During the war Ferdinand served with great distinction in the navy with Raphael B. Semmes on the Monitor. When he returned to Missouri he went to farming, and later was elected to the state senate. After several reverses in fortune Kennett was appointed chief of police here for distinguished service during the railroad strikes. He was the youngest police chief who ever served St. Louis. From complications arising with regard to Bob Pate and the gambling ring, he was forced to resign. Shortly afterwards he went to San Francisco, and through the influence of Senator Vest of Missouri and Senator Stanford of California was appointed inspector of stagers in the San Francisco custom house. When the Harrison administration went in he lost his position and was engaged by Claus Spreckles as inspector at his sugar refineries. Soon after he drifted back into the detective business.

The Alumni Reception

The High School Alumni association held a largely attended meeting last evening and made final arrangements for the well reception to be tendered the class of '95 on Friday evening. This brilliant affair will occur at Turner hall on South Main street. The programme will include concert selections and literary exercises, to be followed by dancing. The banquet hall will be transformed into a beautiful scene. The main hall will be elaborately decorated with flowers and colored lights. Friends of the high school may obtain tickets at Turner's, Lichtenberger's and Shepard & Son's.

FUNERAL OF GEN. HEWITT

Sad and Impressive Ceremonies at Masonic Hall

The Pall Bearers All Old-Time Friends. Beautiful Floral Pieces Contributed. The funeral of General H. E. Hewitt which took place from Masonic hall, corner of First and Spring streets, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was largely attended. Very many old friends testified their feeling of sorrow that friendship and kindness extending over a period of half a life-time had been rudely sundered by the presence of death. The services were of the impressive form of the Masonic fraternity, conducted by Mr. Charles E. Mitchell, master, and Mr. George Hinds, past master of Wilmington lodge, No. 198 of Wilmington. With this lodge General Hewitt always maintained his membership. A large number congregated about the casket to take a last look at the familiar face of the dead. Coeur de Lion Commandery No. 3, Knights Templar, of which the general was also an honored member, attended in full uniform. Wilmington lodge appeared in a body, as also did a large number of members of various lodges in the city. The cortege passed down First street to Evergreen cemetery, preceded by a band playing a funeral dirge. The services at the cemetery were read by Mr. Hinds in a very feeling manner. It was particularly appropriate that Mr. Hinds should do this kindly office for the dead as it seldom occurs that two people are bound together with a stronger bond of friendship.

Flowers abounded in profusion. Some of the more noteworthy were particularly an emblematic piece from Wilmington lodge F. and A. M., a broken shaft of delicate flowers and ferns from the general freight and ticket office of the Southern Pacific company, and a beautiful flower pillow on which was inscribed "Remembered" from the employees of the same company formerly associated with the general. A number of other pieces, wreaths and bouquets were contributed by Mr. S. Reinhart, Mrs. J. Potts, Mrs. Kate Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Lambourn, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Davidson, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Parker, of Pasadena, Wm. Mellich, T. E. Rowan, S. Reinhart, Jacob Brothers, Senator and Mrs. R. Matthews, Mrs. Ernest Brazee, Mrs. Anna Hackett, Mrs. Maria, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hays. The pall bearers were all old time and tried friends of General Hewitt. Hon. S. M. White, J. de Barth Storr, Hancock Bannan, M. M. Crowley, William Friedman, J. G. Estudillo, Knights Templar; Dr. J. J. Choate, W. B. Scarborough, Masonic members; Dr. J. S. Crawford, Wm. Mellich, T. E. Rowan, S. Reinhart, J. W. Venable, John McCrea. The remains were temporarily placed in the receiving vault.

NATALIE DORONDO'S RIDE

A Circus Rider Has an Exciting Experience. An exciting runaway occurred on Pasadena avenue Sunday afternoon. A gentleman named Barneman bought a young saddle horse from another person named Matsler, and not knowing whether he was safe to ride, he brought the horse over to the winter quarters of the circus, situated on the corner of Pasadena avenue and Hay street, East Los Angeles. The horse had a man's saddle and bridle on, and when the rider and Matsler were talking Miss Natalie Dorondo, the principal bareback lady rider of the show, came along, and seeing a fine looking horse, which she had seen in the stable, she vaulted into the saddle, and in so doing her hat blew off and frightened the horse, which started to break its neck, and she fell to the ground. Of course this frightened the animal, which ran away a second time, but the lady again vaulted on the animal's back, this time for safety, riding jockey fashion, and gave the horse his head, running him to the plaza. Unfortunately, in turning the horse to the right, he broke his left front leg just above the pastern joint, but Miss Dorondo jumped in time and saved herself from any serious injury, although she slightly injured her appearance by her fall and hands coming in contact with the ground.

Floods in the Pyrenees

PAU, June 11.—The floods continue through Navarre and the lowlands of the Pyrenees. Severe suffering as a result of the floods is reported from the Basque country. Roads, bridges and railways have been swept away, and fields destroyed by the rush of waters from the hills.

THE BAPTIST CONVENTION

Opened Last Evening at Ocean Park, Santa Monica

REV. CLEAVELAND'S ADDRESS

Over Thirty Members and Delegates on the Ground

And More Expected to Spend the Rest of the Week by the Sea Waves

Yesterday was a busy day at Ocean Park with active preparations for the Southern California Baptist convention. Rev. W. W. Tinker, superintendent of home missions for Southern California and Arizona, who has been the prime mover in bringing the convention about, was overseeing and directing the last details in making ready for the members and delegates, many of whom are on the ground. All the new cottages belonging to the Y. M. C. A. company, together with a number of tents on the beach and the just completed auditorium have been rented for the convention, and all day cot and bedding and other conveniences were being distributed and put in place. Each tent has its own cot, and by night over thirty guests were established on the grounds. A special train took down a large number of guests from the first session last evening, and the auditorium was filled with people who gave earnest attention to the annual sermon by Rev. George W. Cleveland, Riverside, with music, made up the programme for last evening, and the text was First Samuel, 3:1-4—The Ark and Dagobert. Mr. Cleveland's address with reference to the bloody battles between the Israelites and the Philistines for the possession of the Ark of the Covenant, and the ark of the law, he was preaching, and was very victorious. He dwelt on the fact that it was a matter of more than mere historical interest and that a religion based on the tales of the ark was a religion that taught his people a lesson by it that they could have been made to learn in no other way. It warned them that the symbols of true religion are of value only when kept in the place and devoted to the use for which God authorized them; in its true place—in the holy of holies at the foot of the ark was a symbol of the presence of the Lord among his people; taken out of that place, it became only the fetish of anapostate faith.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CENSUS

Tabulated Returns Made by the Workers

Total Results of a House to House Canvass in This City in the Interest of the Churches. The house to house visitation of the city of Los Angeles, proposed and undertaken by the City Sunday School union, is at last an accomplished fact. The canvass was completed on Tuesday, May 29th, as the territory mapped out included Boyle Heights, East Los Angeles University and Rosedale districts. Except in a few instances, every house was visited, the vacant houses and "not at homes" being noted on a card. No response was heard from about one-tenth of the visits. The visitors were almost uniformly kindly received, but no adequate data was gathered from the Roman Catholic population. The city was divided into forty-four districts, apportioned to fifty-three churches, which furnished 170 canvassers. The following tabulation presents the chief data gathered by the census takers:

MIDDLE CLASS EXERCISES

Novel and Interesting Programme at Music Hall

How the High School Boys and Girls of Today Celebrate—The Beginning of Vacation. The middle class of the high school held their class day exercises yesterday afternoon in Music Hall and provided a most unique and enjoyable programme for their guests. The graduating class entered the hall to the stirring strains of a march played by the high school orchestra, and took the seats that had been reserved for them on the front. With a few clever and courteous words, Roger Sherman Page, the class president, welcomed the seniors. The curtain was then raised, displaying an original feature in stage effect in the form of a number of huge books arranged in a row at the back of the stage. On the printed programme appeared the following explanatory note: "A view of the fact that the people of this country are so busy that they are unable to devote any time to the reading of the classics, a genius devised this system of materializing literature, and he surely deserves the overlasting gratitude of his fellow countrymen for this time-saving invention. This is the first library of the kind that has been established." One of the great books entitled The Merchant of Venice, opened and from between the covers emerged the familiar character of Portia. Then followed a selection from the play which was quite well rendered by Miss Isabel. Godin as Portia was charmingly clever and displayed rare dramatic ability. The great volume entitled The Squirrel Inn was next opened. A dramatized selection from this book was exceedingly well given. Miss Anita Brown played the part of the widow with much vivacity and taste. The Squirrel Sweet and Lov was then sung by the class chorus, with a humorous parody on Juanita as an encore. The Opera's Newcomer, being opened, a picturesque throng of the principal characters of that book filed upon the stage and gave with good effect a dramatic scene arranged by the young ladies of the class. The best dramatic work was done in the representation of the scene of Mary Queen of Scots abdicating her throne, taken from Scott's Abbot. Lora Varlet made a most courtly queen and acted her role with marked ability. The class song was sung by the class chorus. It was arranged to the music of many of the late songs, and was full of witty thrusts at the graduates. Charles Hixon, the class president, delivered an address of welcome to the seniors, which was followed by the presentation of pins to the high school graduates. David W. Paerz responded on behalf of his class. The high school orchestra then gave another of its chosen pieces. The floor was cleared and the classes and their friends enjoyed a jolly dance. Two hundred butchers in New York have formed a company, to be known as the Consumers' Veal and Mutton company, and while the veal and mutton is only $20.00 upwards of $3,000,000 is represented in the enterprise.

THE HERALD

Reaches People Who Buy The Goods Which Are the Purchasing Classes.

"People who buy goods are divided into three classes: 1. The select 10,000, the well-to-do 100,000 and the more or less prosperous million. Nine-tenths of all the fortunes are made from the trade of the 100,000 and the million, because they buy nine-tenths of the goods which are sold. They are the people also who respond to advertisements and who pay for cash or may their bills promptly. The merchant or any advertiser who caters successfully to the 100,000 and the million will get all the cash for of the select 10,000. They rarely answer an advertisement and are proverbially slow pay.—Stewart. THE HERALD, daily and Sunday, not only has a large circulation in Southern California, but reaches the homes of the 100,000 class and the "more or less prosperous million."
