FIGHT ON GAS GOVERNORS

Lighting Company Takes Action

THE PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

Answered and a Cross-Complaint Filed Against It

THE CONTEST FAIRLY BEGUN

Trial of James McGinnis for Murder

He Killed His Brother-in-Law at Pomona in March Last

The Widow of the Dead Man Too to Attend Court as a Witness—His Daughter on the Stand—Divorces Granted

Another move was made in the fight between the Gas Consumers' Protective Association and the Los Angeles Lighting Company yesterday, in which the gas company took the necessary steps to protect its property. The protective association owns or controls a patent governor, which, it claims, effects a large saving of gas when attached to a pipe. They have worked up quite a number of the meters of the public institutions, in some instances other governors having been ordered taken off and the protective's machine substituted. Several days ago the gas company sent around a force of men and removed a number of the obnoxious governors. It was claimed by the gas company, and was in fact, that the governors were found in many instances on the pipes outside of the gas company. In some instances the lead connections had been crushed and mashed, greatly reducing the diameter and interfering with the free flow of gas into the meter. In other cases parts of the lead connecting pipes had been cut, and the apparatus generally interposed, and the gas company has never denied the right of the consumer to put any governor or other device on his pipes so long as they are put on the inside of the meter, and on the pipes owned or controlled by the consumer, the company claiming the ownership and control of all pipes and connections up to the meter, which is called the "rise pipe." When these governors were removed the protective association got out an injunction against the gas company, and further proceedings were temporarily suspended.

Yesterday afternoon the gas company filed its answer in department one of the superior court, and also filed a cross-complaint against the protective association, and further proceedings were temporarily suspended.

Cheaper Gas in Los Angeles. About one year from now we shall reduce the price of gas in this town to $1.35 per 1000 cubic feet. Be careful in the meantime about signing contracts for higher priced gas. Several times she broke down and cried, but she never lost her presence of mind. From the prosecuting attorney's questions, it was evident that she thought she had been "coached," but the closest examination failed to bring anything that could be used against the defendant. Even when portions of her testimony taken at the coroner's inquest was read to her, she either denied that she had so testified or said that she could not remember whether she had done so or not, and the task of getting anything intelligible out of her was abandoned.

Several witnesses testified to McGinnis having been drunk during the afternoon, and of his having made the remark that he "had it in for the s— of —" or words to that effect.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

Permits Issued by the City Superintendent

BUSINESS IS RATHER DULL

Though the Number of Dwellings Continues to Increase

The Realty Market is Slow With Inquiry Largely Confined to Low-Priced Building Sites

C. H. Nolton made application yesterday for a permit to build a shed on his lot on Hill street between Eighth and Ninth streets at an outlay of $40, current cost of the realty on the lot $100. Special prominence is given to this particular permit, because it was the only one granted or applied for during the day.

The week's list embraces a smaller number of permits than has been shown for some months past, though the reduction can hardly be said to be greater than was expected with the advent of hot weather, which commonly sees a marked diminution of activity in building lines. Thirty-six permits were issued during the week, the total cost of the proposed buildings being given as $28,203.

The list embraces no structures of high cost, the one representing the largest outlay being the dwelling of Ida Lee West, on Twenty-eighth street, which will cost $4000. C. H. Jones will build a two-story brick store on the corner of Eighth and Olive streets, to cost $3000, and Mrs. M. Caswell will devote a like sum to the construction of a school house on Twenty-third street between West and Olive streets. The list in full is as follows:
