CORRESPONDENTS' GLASSES MAKE MOLE HILLS APPEAR AS MOUNTAINS No Jingoism Is Intended and the United States Contemplates No Change of Policy Associated Press Special Wire. CHICAGO, July 5.-A special to the Times-Herald from Washington says: President McKinley has sent a dispatch to the Marquis of Salisbury, the British Premier and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, which will probably cause that nobleman as much perturbation of spirit as did Secretary Olney's dispatch of July 20, 1895, in which England was diplomatically but firmly told that she must arbitrate the Venezuela boundary dispute.

INDEX OF THE TELEGRAPH NEWS

Hot weather in the east counts its victims by the score. A little Los Angeles boy goes up with a balloon at Oakland and is killed by the fall. The Populists in conference at Nashville hold a very interesting session and use language-also clubs and fists. Railroad arrangements to handle the Endeavor hosts somewhat upset by the delay at Salt Lake, but the crowds will reach the western metropolises today. The nation's birthday celebrated from coast to coast and lakes to gulf; politics crops in at many places and Bryan's name invariably arouses cheers; an unusual number of serious or fatal accidents. The big coal strike is formally begun, but the exact situation cannot be known until attempt is made to resume work today; the men express hope of success; public men express opinions favoring arbitration of labor questions. The senate fails to agree on a date for the final vote on the tariff bill, and Allison proposes a test of endurance to begin tonight. An amendment is adopted taxing stocks and bonds and the Spooner amendment is withdrawn. The house waiting patiently for the return of the bill. Threatened complications with England over the sealing question are possible chiefly in the imagination of correspondents. The United States government shows no tendency to jingoism and intends to make no change in its policy regarding the long discussed question of seal protection.

SENATORS WILL SIT Till Somebody Gets Tired Out

CAN'T REACH AN AGREEMENT ON THE TIME FOR THE FINAL VOTE Many Tariff Amendments Proposed and Voted Down, but a Stamp Tax Will Be Imposed Associated Press Special Wire. WASHINGTON, July 5.-Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, announced shortly before the adjournment of the senate tonight that as no agreement had been reached for a final vote on the tariff bill he would ask the senate to remain in session tomorrow night at least until the bill was reported from the committee of the whole of the senate. This promises a test of endurance unless the opposition to the bill gives way. Allison's statement was made after another futile effort to have a time fixed for the vote. In some respects the senate made good progress today, disposing of two amendments, that placing a stamp tax being agreed to with little or no opposition and without the formality of a vote, while the Spooner amendment proposing a tariff investigation was withdrawn after a protracted struggle. The amendment agreed to fixed the following rates on bonds, etc.: Bonds, debentures or certificates of indebtedness issued after September 15, 1897, by any association, company, corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents; and on each original issue, whether an organization or reorganization of certificates of stock by any such association, company or corporation on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents. Exemptions from the stamp tax are made in the case of state, county or municipal bonds and the stocks and bonds of co-operative building associations. Late in the day several other amendments from individual senators were voted on. One by Mantle of Montana reducing the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits to 70 cents per gallon was defeated, 23 to 41. An amendment by Mills of Texas, proposing a tax of 5 per cent on manufactured products, the proceeds to go toward reducing the bonded debt, was rejected, 19 to 25. Also an amendment by Mills, granting 20 per cent reduction in duties to those countries admitting gold and silver to their mints at the rate of sixteen to one; year 16, 1893. On this vote Carter voted with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, and two Democrats, Caffery and Gray, voted with the Republicans in the negative. Mills moved to amend paragraph 395 by striking out "books of all kinds," his purpose being to place books on the free list. Rejected, 18 to 28. An effort by Mills to have the Bible admitted free was defeated. A new paragraph was inserted in the free list: "Water for sacramental use, or for covering or holding pharmaceutical preparations. A legal discussion ensued as to the legality of the provision that unstamped bonds, etc., shall be utterly void and shall not be used in evidence. The stamp amendment as a whole was finally agreed to in a viva voce vote, no call for an aye and no vote being made. The "no" response was light and came from the Democratic side. Mr. Allison proposed the amendment heretofore offered by Mr. Spooner for a tariff inquiry by three members of the board of appraisers. Mr. Teller took occasion in this connection to criticize the committee for first transforming the house bill and then going back in substance to the house rates. He had tried to learn what amount of revenue the bill would yield and he said he would be glad to have the chairman, Mr. Allison, throw some light on that subject. This brought Mr. Allison to his feet for the first definite statement as to the revenue expected to be derived. He said it was not possible for any expert to make exact calculations on the amount of revenue the tariff bill would yield. It had never been done and never would be. But from the best information, proceeded Mr. Allison, "I believe this bill will yield $175,000,000 to $180,000,000 the first year, from July 1, 1897, to July 1, 1898." He said the schedules had been gone over at any stage, as successive changes were made, and he felt that this estimate could be safely made. It applied only to the first year, after which there would be a much larger yield of revenue. "How much the second year?" queried Mr. White. "It depends," answered Mr. Allison, "but I will say something over $200,000,000." "How much over the present law?" asked Mr. Stewart. "About $60,000,000," replied Mr. Allison, "but it will depend upon the condition of our industries. It is not possible to make more than a general estimate." Mr. Vest remarked that the average ad valorem of the bill would be much higher than that for the existing law, the McKinley ad valorem being 49 per cent, the existing law 39 cents, while the estimate of the house bill was 87 per cent. Allison said the average ad valorem of the bill in its final form would be in the neighborhood of 50 per cent. Teller of Colorado again got the floor at this point. He criticized the estimate of the amount of revenue the bill would produce, which had been offered by the majority. He ridiculed Ellison's estimate, and referred to the admission

It applied only to the first year, after which there would be a much larger yield of revenue. "How much the second year?" queried Mr. White. "It depends," answered Mr. Allison, "but I will say something over $200,000,000." "How much over the present law?" asked Mr. Stewart. "About $60,000,000," replied Mr. Allison, "but it will depend upon the condition of our industries. It is not possible to make more than a general estimate." Mr. Vest remarked that the average ad valorem of the bill would be much higher than that for the existing law, the McKinley ad valorem being 49 per cent, the existing law 39 cents, while the estimate of the house bill was 87 per cent. Allison said the average ad valorem of the bill in its final form would be in the neighborhood of 50 per cent. Teller of Colorado again got the floor at this point. He criticized the estimate of the amount of revenue the bill would produce, which had been offered by the majority. He ridiculed Ellison's estimate, and referred to the admission

Associated Press Special Wire. WASHINGTON, July 5.-Senator Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, announced shortly before the adjournment of the senate tonight that as no agreement had been reached for a final vote on the tariff bill he would ask the senate to remain in session tomorrow night at least until the bill was reported from the committee of the whole of the senate. This promises a test of endurance unless the opposition to the bill gives way. Allison's statement was made after another futile effort to have a time fixed for the vote. In some respects the senate made good progress today, disposing of two amendments, that placing a stamp tax being agreed to with little or no opposition and without the formality of a vote, while the Spooner amendment proposing a tariff investigation was withdrawn after a protracted struggle. The amendment agreed to fixed the following rates on bonds, etc.: Bonds, debentures or certificates of indebtedness issued after September 15, 1897, by any association, company, corporation, on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 5 cents; and on each original issue, whether an organization or reorganization of certificates of stock by any such association, company or corporation on each $100 of face value or fraction thereof, 2 cents. Exemptions from the stamp tax are made in the case of state, county or municipal bonds and the stocks and bonds of co-operative building associations. Late in the day several other amendments from individual senators were voted on. One by Mantle of Montana reducing the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits to 70 cents per gallon was defeated, 23 to 41. An amendment by Mills of Texas, proposing a tax of 5 per cent on manufactured products, the proceeds to go toward reducing the bonded debt, was rejected, 19 to 25. Also an amendment by Mills, granting 20 per cent reduction in duties to those countries admitting gold and silver to their mints at the rate of sixteen to one; year 16, 1893. On this vote Carter voted with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, and two Democrats, Caffery and Gray, voted with the Republicans in the negative. Mills moved to amend paragraph 395 by striking out "books of all kinds," his purpose being to place books on the free list. Rejected, 18 to 28. An effort by Mills to have the Bible admitted free was defeated. A new paragraph was inserted in the free list: "Water for sacramental use, or for covering or holding pharmaceutical preparations. A legal discussion ensued as to the legality of the provision that unstamped bonds, etc., shall be utterly void and shall not be used in evidence. The stamp amendment as a whole was finally agreed to in a viva voce vote, no call for an aye and no vote being made. The "no" response was light and came from the Democratic side. Mr. Allison proposed the amendment heretofore offered by Mr. Spooner for a tariff inquiry by three members of the board of appraisers. Mr. Teller took occasion in this connection to criticize the committee for first transforming the house bill and then going back in substance to the house rates. He had tried to learn what amount of revenue the bill would yield and he said he would be glad to have the chairman, Mr. Allison, throw some light on that subject. This brought Mr. Allison to his feet for the first definite statement as to the revenue expected to be derived. He said it was not possible for any expert to make exact calculations on the amount of revenue the tariff bill would yield. It had never been done and never would be. But from the best information, proceeded Mr. Allison, "I believe this bill will yield $175,000,000 to $180,000,000 the first year, from July 1, 1897, to July 1, 1898." He said the schedules had been gone over at any stage, as successive changes were made, and he felt that this estimate could be safely made. It applied only to the first year, after which there would be a much larger yield of revenue. "How much the second year?" queried Mr. White. "It depends," answered Mr. Allison, "but I will say something over $200,000,000." "How much over the present law?" asked Mr. Stewart.
