lected as their place of assembling, and in her behalf he extended a hearty welcome and the liberty of the city to the Endeavorers, with the hope that their sojourn would prove an enjoyable one. Rev. A. C. Smith of the First Congregational church made a speech of welcome on behalf of the churches, saying something pleasant about every denomination present, and adding that the Christian Endeavorers were the choicest of the choicest, the rarest of the rare and the fairest of the fair, and that the many churches welcomed them to the City of Angels. On behalf of the Los Angeles City union, J. D. Radford welcomed them, tracing the rise and growth of the union from its beginning to the present day. Robert Sibley, amidst waving of handkerchiefs and flags, stepped to the platform and gave a welcome on behalf of the intermediates and Juniors. He urged that local members faithfully attend the meetings; that each should feel a personal interest in their success, and lend their presence at each day's sessions. smiling and well. But everything goes when an audience applauds, and in this case the stepping out of the picture, inartistically as it always seems, helped to remove the painful impression left by the catastrophe of the play.

With a few exceptions the support did not appear to quite such advantage as in the other plays. Miss Oliver had little to do, but did that little well. Mr. Osborne was as careful as he always is, and it is not his fault if the sympathetic side of the character he assumed was not under his control. Mr. Toland made absolutely nothing out of his topical opportunity as De Varville, which was as colorless a personation as could well be imagined, a fault that may have partly been due to his evident unfamiliarity with his lines. Mr. Lonergan was the beau ideal of an Armand, and acted, with much grace of expression and no small amount of power. He even managed to make the character of the young man less contemptible than the satirists have described it, a feat which he achieved by the youthful ingenuousness, earnestness and sincerity which he threw into his assumption. Mr. Napier was a satisfactory Gaston. Miss Tidball was a charming Nanine and Miss Howe a sufficiently voluble Madame Prudence. "Camille" will be repeated tonight, and will close the engagement tomorrow.

LOS ANGELES THEATER.—The Carl Martens Opera company appear tonight and tomorrow in "The Pirates of Penzance."

ORPHEUM.—The bill is a highly successful one this week, and the house is crowded nightly.

Sunset Club Jinks

Owing to unforeseen difficulties, the program for the summer high jinks of the Sunset club has been changed, so that the club will proceed to Redondo, instead of to Santa Monica canyon, as was first proposed. A special train will leave La Grande station at 5:35 p. m., Saturday, July 24. The bathhouse of the Redondo company has been secured for the exclusive use of the club for that night, and the exercises will be held at the plunge. Any of the revelers who care to will stop at the hotel that is, if they go to bed at all. The return to the city will be made Sunday morning.

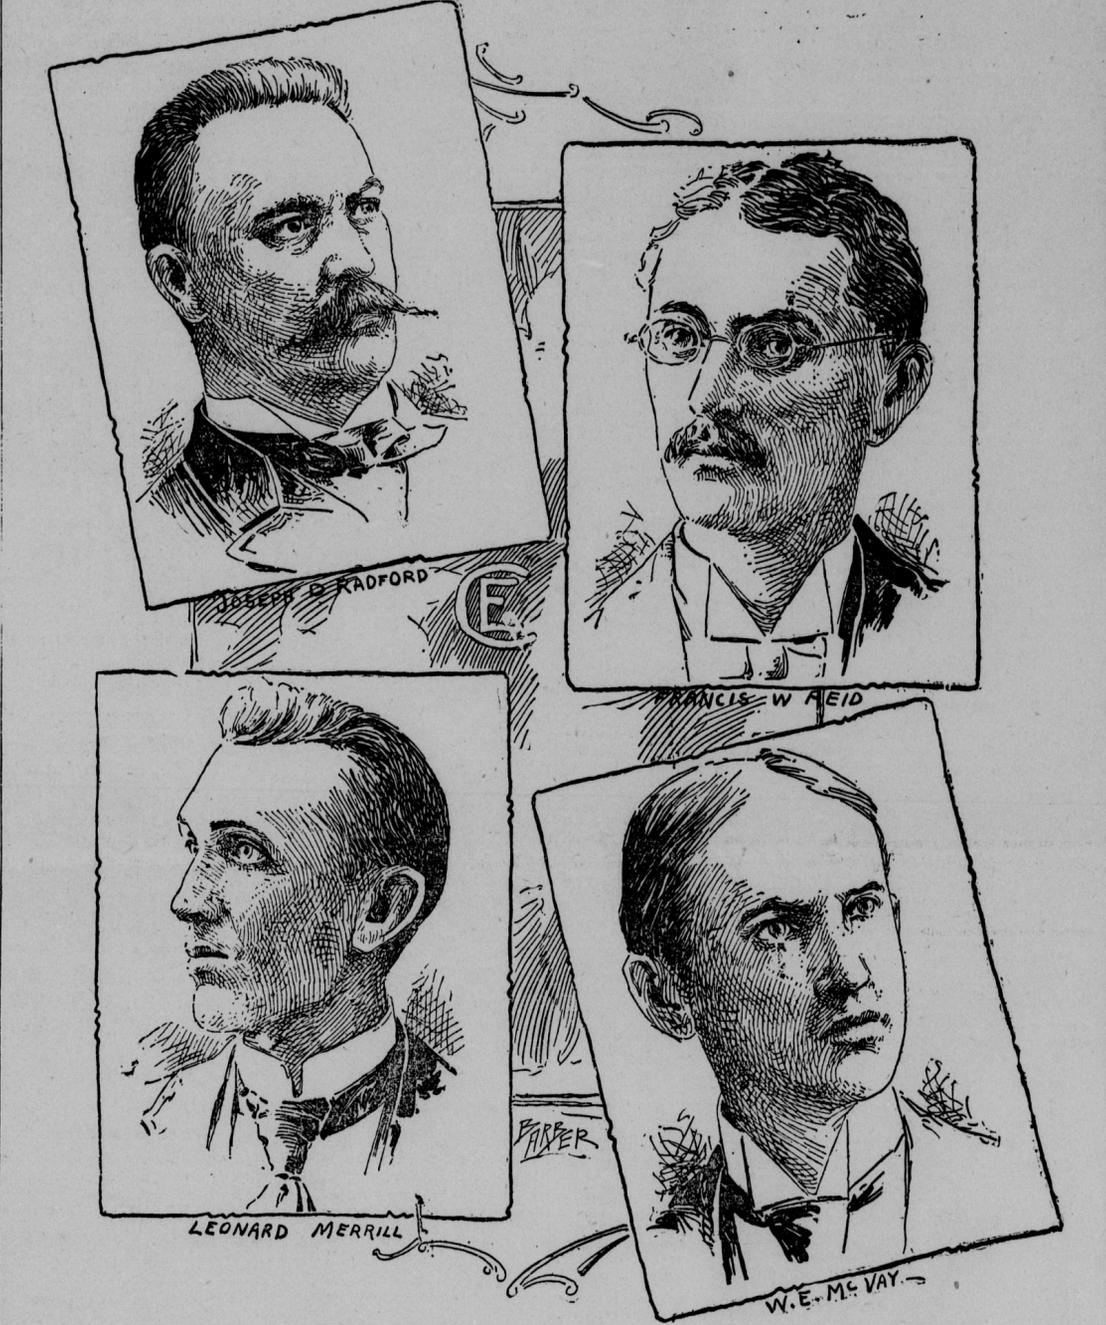

Dental Association

A meeting was held last evening at the chamber of commerce for the purpose of organizing a Southern California Dental association. About fifty of the leading dentists of Southern California were present. An organization was effected and the following officers elected: President, Dr. W. A. Smith of Los Angeles; vice-president, Dr. H. R. Harbison of San Diego; second vice-president, Dr. C. W. Sylvester of Riverside; secretary, Dr. L. E. Ford of Los Angeles; treasurer, Dr. J. M. White of Los Angeles.

Dr. Almon Brooks, 92 State street, Chicago, says: "Distilled water is the only drinking water used in my residence. It has proved palatable, and I am satisfied it is free from all impurities. The method employed in its manufacture should be a drinking water of excellence leaving nothing to be desired." Puritas is a scientifically distilled water. Ice and Cold Storage company. terday local and Southern California trains added to the list and by 5 o'clock over 2000 had signed the registration blanks. The delegation from the north, which had been expected at 2 o'clock, did not arrive until 3 p. m., owing to a delay in starting at the Oakland mole and a series of lesser delays during the entire trip which made the special two hours late. But Endeavorers are made of the right sort of material for the bearing of burdens, big and little, and such a trifling inconvenience did not in the least disturb their happy equilibrium. The special was met at Sausalito by a reception committee headed by Miss M. Irvin and composed of C. F. Skilling, O. Tollman, J. C. Goodrich, L. C. Le Count, C. Wilbur and Mrs. H. G. Wylie. They were greeted at the Arcade by a large delegation of Endeavorers and outside friends, and escorted to waiting cars and carriages. On arriving at the church every one proceeded to register, after which the places at which they would be entertained were assigned or recommended, as the case might be. Some went immediately to friends or relatives, while others began an acquaintance with the city's streets. The grand rally held in the First Baptist church at 5 o'clock was fairly well attended, and the program as printed in yesterday's Herald carried out. The comfortable rooms of the church have been profusely decorated with streamers of bunting in purple and gold and yucca palms and papyrus adorn the platform. Opening Exercises The regular state convention was opened in the First Baptist church at 7:15 last night with a short praise service, conducted by Rev. A. W. Rider of the Memorial Baptist church, and at its conclusion, when the doors were thrown open to the general public, there was only standing room left. The public meeting was opened with the "Convention March" (M. F. Mason), by an orchestra of twenty instruments, under the leadership of W. H. Mead, followed by Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light," by a chorus of forty voices, under the direction who welcomed the assembled Endeavorers on behalf of the city. He said it was a notable event in the history of the organization as well as that of the city, and that Los Angeles was proud to have been selected as their place of assembling, and in her behalf he extended a hearty welcome and the liberty of the city to the Endeavorers, with the hope that their sojourn would prove an enjoyable one.

delivered the address of the evening on "Jesus, the Light of the World." He spoke of the sources from which knowledge is gleaned, saying they were various, but mostly come from inspirations—like the light of the sun; that God holds back much knowledge, giving it to us gradually, that we may grow to it. The knowledge of the apostles was inspirational, and much of our present scientific knowledge comes to us in the same way. Men think theology changes often, but scientific views change often, and God sends down discoveries as they are needed. Mr. Adams is a firm believer in the world's daily growing better, and made a strong distinction between individualism and individuality. He said the former was pure selfishness, and a grasping after all for self, and the latter the cropping out, in one individual, of all that is best in the age in which one lives, putting Jesus, the life and light, above and beyond all; that the light Jesus sheds in the human heart leads to a quiet, beautiful life that nothing else can bring.

Arrangements have been made for the excursion to Mount Lowe on Monday, and on Monday evening a reception will be tendered the visitors in the chamber of commerce by the members. On Tuesday, providing 100 sign, an excursion will be given to Catalina, where an evening outdoor praise service will be held at 7 o'clock on the boat. The second annual school of methods of the California superintendents of Junior and Intermediate Christian Endeavor societies will begin this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Immanuel Baptist church, corner of Figueroa and Tenth streets, presided over by Miss Belle Nason. A special and interesting program has been prepared. Rev. George Adams and daughter of San Francisco are guests of Rev. Warren F. Day, at 849 South Hill street. Rev. W. A. Gardner of San Francisco is a guest at 721 South Hill street. Revs. Wayland Hoyt and E. R. Dille will arrive today from the north. Rev. E. S. Chapman of Oakland spent
