The Democratic contingent in the legislature, nine members all told, had the pleasure of enjoying the senatorial race without worrying about the outcome.

Housekeepers are reminded now that "sweet are the uses of adversity." The price of sugar has been marked up again by the trust and correspondingly by retail dealers.

The important business of the legislature has been taken in hand. A bill introduced in the assembly provides for the "formation and government of mosquito exterminating districts."

Senator Bard succeeded to the chair made vacant by the death of Stephen Mallory White, one of the foremost statesmen of his era. Frank P. Flint will occupy that chair after March 4.

A Washington paper intimates that the proposed whipping post for that city, which not in use for punishment of wife-beaters, might serve to protect the president from importunate office-seekers.

Mrs. Chadwick's lawyers have decided to adopt the insanity plea for their client. The bankers whom she duped may now claim that insanity is contagious and that they caught it from the famous financier.

A Democratic reminder that a presidential election occurred last November was given by the formal declaration at Sacramento that California went with considerable momentum for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

There is cause for American regret that the entente cordiale between the king of Great Britain and the ex-king of Tammany has been fractured. There is danger that Richard Croker may threaten to return to the United States.

Los Angeles and Salt Lake are now in direct telegraphic click over the line of the nearly completed Salt Lake railway. Very soon locomotives on the two sides of the gap out on the desert will be saluting in customary noisy fashion.

The most interesting specification in Assessor Lewis' charge against his chief deputy is that the latter has been guilty of "pernicious activity in politics." The heinousness of that offense, as viewed by the assessor, can be understood only by his political acquaintances.

California will be distinguished by having the hardest name in congress. Missouri has its Senator Stone and Indiana has its Representative Brick, but they do not compare in hardness with Flint. Maryland can claim the softest congressional name in its Representative Mudd.

Colorado's new governor declares in his inaugural message: "It is not true that half the voters of Colorado are dynamiters and anarchists, nor is it true that the other half are Shylocks and oppressors." Governor Adams refrains from any attempt to give exact proportions.

It is expected that Andrew Carnegie's money will build a wide nine mile trail up Mount Wilson as part of the project for the new observatory. This proximity of his cash to Los Angeles may remind the distinguished distributor of library buildings that this city has a splendid site awaiting such a structure.

In many sections of the city there has been considerable property loss and much annoyance to citizens caused by water from the recent rains. Such loss and trouble would be avoided if the city's sewer system was completed, but the people suffer while the wrangle over the sewer brick contract continues.

Instead of a deficit in the operating account of the St. Louis exposition, the fund figures show a considerable surplus after meeting all liabilities, thus insuring an unexpected dividend to the stockholders. The people of St. Louis, who hold the stock, got their return, of course, from the money poured into the city by visitors.

The report in yesterday's Herald concerning the purpose of certain farmers in New York state to migrate to California is not surprising. Farmers in the New England and middle states are at increasing disadvantage in these latter days. In California the farmer gets better average returns for his investment and labor than in any other state.

There is an example of the irony of warlike fame in Emperor William's compliment to Gen. Nogi and Gen. Stoessel. In "recognition of the bravery of themselves and their troops at Port Arthur" they get the bauble of a decoration. This when Stoessel bears wounds both physical and mental in memory of Port Arthur, while Nogi, haggard and aged, mourns the loss of his two sons.

The verdict of "involuntary manslaughter," as rendered in the case of Officer Carpenter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is rather unusual in criminal procedure. Blackstone makes this distinction: "Manslaughter is voluntary where the killing was intentional in a sudden heat or passion without previous malice; and involuntary where it was not intentional, but the slayer was at the time engaged in an unlawful act less than a felony, or doing a lawful act in an unlawful manner." It is added that "this distinction of name is no longer used in procedure except in those jurisdictions where it may be enjoined by statute."

SENATOR-ELECT FLINT

The election of Frank P. Flint to succeed Senator Bard was a foregone conclusion before the vote was taken in the two branches of the legislature on Tuesday. The action of the Republican boss of San Francisco in declaring that his following would support the Los Angeles man practically settled the contest. When that support was registered for Flint on the first ballot it was evident that he would win easily in the joint ballot yesterday.

The election of Mr. Flint is a triumph for what is vaguely called the Republican "organization" of California. That means substantially the Republican machine, for which the Southern Pacific railway supplies the motive power and the steering apparatus. Mr. Flint has the elements of personal popularity and he is fairly well up in political finesse. But it is obvious that notwithstanding his personal attainments and his vigorous canvass he could not have been landed in the United States senate without the potent influence of the "power behind the throne."

But Frank P. Flint is the senator-elect and the means whereby he attained his enviable distinction is "irrelevant and immaterial" now. The hot contest over the Bard toga is merely a bit of California political history. Next March 4 Mr. Flint will become one of California's two representatives in the United States senate, and every citizen of the state will be his well-wisher when he assumes the honor and responsibility of the office. There will be no distinction in that respect on partisan or even factional grounds. It is enough to know that the man chosen yesterday for the highest honor in the gift of California is capable of acquitting himself with personal credit and with honor to the state.

It is especially gratifying to the people of Southern California that the senator-elect is a citizen of the southern metropolis. As The Herald pointed out while the senatorial contest was in progress, the southern counties ask no special favors in the state's representation in the upper house of congress. It is a reasonable recognition of the southland's importance as a state factor, however, that one of the senators should be a resident of this section.

Mr. Flint is young, ambitious, well equipped mentally for the duties that will devolve upon him in his high office, and there is good reason to believe that he will make an efficient and generally acceptable United States senator. That this confidence will be justified is both the hope and the belief of The Herald.

NIAGARA AND KERN RIVER

From the Atlantic side of the continent come some interesting observations on the completion of the Kern river electric power plant. A New York newspaper says: "In California electric power has been carried nearly 140 miles. At that rate Niagara may soon turn wheels in Syracuse, Rochester, Erie and Toronto, as well as in Buffalo."

But even the long distance electric transmission in California is not the limit by any means that is known to be possible. The time may soon come when the power of Niagara will drive the great manufacturing industries of Cleveland, Pittsburg and possibly New York.

It is this possibility of the future that is causing widespread alarm in the east among the class of people who regard Niagara as something more important than a huge power plant. What will be the effect of taking such a vast quantity of water from Lake Erie at the approach to the falls? The answer of experts is that the level of the lake will be lowered to a point possibly ruinous to the commerce of Buffalo and that the famous falls will be no more.

There is tangible ground for that conclusion. Ten companies at present in operation are diverting about 10 per cent of the water that formerly passed over the falls. An authority says that "when 20 per cent is taken the American side of the falls will run dry." Great as is the mighty sweep of water that plunges down from the Lake Erie level, there is a limit to it and that limit is easily calculated. At the present rate of installation of new companies that are sapping the falls for power purposes, Niagara will be a wonder of the past within a comparatively few years.

Returning to the allusion of the New York paper concerning the Kern river enterprise, it is gratifying to know that no injury will result from the use of the water in that stream for power purposes. After having served the purpose of generating electric power the Kern river water will be utilized for irrigation purposes in the rich agricultural district in the neighborhood.

HAPPY IS THE FARMER

Not in many years have the farmers of Southern California been so happy as they are at the present time. Not only is there confidence among them that the rainfall will be abundant this season, but there is a general belief that the cycle of semi-drought years has passed. This feeling is strengthened by the fact that the copious rains of the last two weeks extended all over the southern counties, being especially heavy in districts at considerable distances from the ocean.

The brown carpet of the earth that was noticeable everywhere in the country sections a few weeks ago has been displaced by a bright green, which will be still brighter a week or two later. The grain crops have had the full quantity of rain sufficient for what is already growing and for the preparation of ground not yet sown. The fruit trees are in splendid condition, the orange and lemon products now in process of harvesting look exceptionally promising, and the deciduous trees could not be in better form.

The Southern California farmer has good cause for happiness at the present outlook. Unlike his eastern brother, he has only one serious cause for anxiety in his business and that one is banished for the present season. Such semi-drought years as we have at times in this section cause a shrinkage in the farmer's crop output, but he escapes all the dangers incident to intense cold, blizzards, tornadoes and other evils that beset the eastern farmer.

In no other section of the United States is the farmer, especially the horticulturist, so sure of a fair return for his labor as he is in Southern California, and in no other section can the work of cultivation be prosecuted under such delightful natural conditions.

In the land of sunshine the farmer's lot is indeed a happy one.

Although the orange crop this year will fall considerably short of the output last year, the shipments to date are largely in excess of last year's figures. The total number of carloads forwarded at the beginning of this week was 3584, which is 540 more than the shipments at this time in 1904. Good prices have been realized thus far and it is thought that the entire crop will yield for growers at least an average of $1 a box. What that means may be inferred from the fact that orange trees only six years old will average at least two boxes to the tree and there are about eighty trees to the acre.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

By Aloysius Coli. A magic lamp, unlovely for the lack of legendry in gem and carved scroll, burned in a dusky chamber of the world, With untrimm'd wick a-smoulder in the bowl.

Then timid Chance—the chamberlain of God—A-stumble in the dark, with groping hand Scattered the crust of ashes from the wick—And lighted every corner of the land!

Goodness and kindness are volatile. Every decent thought, every good deed, every sweet word strikes into the air and permeates like a perfume. Only the petty minded will rejoice in having enemies. Those who are great are above those who dislike or hate them and pay no heed to such disturbing matters. Remember this: Every time you fly into a temper old Popper Time cuts a notch on your age stick and you are just that much older.

Mrs. Alexander J. Chandler of 4327 Vermont avenue was hostess at a reception yesterday afternoon given in honor of Mrs. Helena Modjeska and Miss Virginia Calhoun, guests asked to meet them being members of the Alliance Francaise, to which both belong. In receiving Mrs. Chandler was assisted by Mrs. E. W. Britt, Miss Constance Britt, Miss Germain Fuesent, Miss Mary Hunsaker, Miss Ina Demens and Miss Nellie McCutchan. Throughout the house a pleasing floral decoration prevailed, poinsettias forming the foundation for an attractive scarlet scheme in the library, while in the dining room pink roses and tulips were combined in a pleasing manner.

Mrs. William Le Moyne Willis, who formerly was Miss Susie Patton, will be the guest of honor today at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Joseph B. Banning at 945 Westlake avenue. Among others who have entertained recently in honor of the popular bride is Mrs. Wesley Clark of 234 West Adams street, and Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. James S. Slauson and Mrs. Hugh Macneil entertained Dr. and Mrs. Willis at the Ellis concert.

Mrs. Secondo Guasti of 1124 South Los Angeles street gave a box party at the Mason opera house yesterday afternoon, entertaining in honor of Miss Florence Scatena of San Francisco. After the performance the party was served with a luncheon at Christopher's, covers being laid for ten.

Miss Irene Bangs of Oakland, who is here for a visit of several weeks with her aunt, Mrs. W. M. Van Dyke of 222 West Adams street, was guest of honor last evening at a party given by Miss Katharine Mellus at Chutes park to hear the Ellery hand concert. Supper was served at Miss Mellus' home, 157 West Adams street, later in the evening. Miss Bangs has received much social attention since coming to Los Angeles and other affairs are being planned in her honor.

In honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Caroline M. Severance, and also of charter members of the Friday Morning club, a tea will be given by members this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at their club house, South Figueroa street.

Dr. John R. Haynes gave a luncheon yesterday at the California club in honor of Julian Hawthorne and Jack London, representatives of the east and west in American literature. To meet the distinguished writers were invited: Judge Enoch Knight, Dr. Norman Bridge, Henry O'Melveny, Charles D. Willard, Charles D. Blaney of San Jose, and S. T. Clover.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Fay Campbell, to James Mathewson Webster, which will be celebrated today in St. John's Episcopal church, the rector, Rev. Lawrence B. Ridgeley officiating.

Mrs. Herbert Leslie Harris of 1107 Hoover street gave a luncheon yesterday complimentary to Miss Stella Eumiller, whose engagement to Paul Burks recently was announced. Under the direction of the hostess a pleasing decorative scheme was arranged, in which poinsettias were used almost exclusively. The walls were banked with the scarlet blossoms and they appeared to advantage also in the dome above the table. Resting in the center of the table on a flowered bordered mirror was a silver candelabrum with red shades, and at the places were tiny orange wood baskets of bonbons, the handles of which were ornamented with fluffy bows of red ribbon, on which the names of the guests were printed. Covers were laid for Mrs. Joseph Wilson, Mrs. Horace Clark, Mrs. Frank N. Coffin, Mrs. Lamar A. Harris, Mrs. Charles S. Mann, Miss Olive Harpham and Miss Daisy Moore.

Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of 1107 West Adams street has cards out for two informal "at homes" to be given on the third and fourth Wednesdays of January, complimentary to her sister, Mrs. William A. Peterson of Chicago, and Miss Louise Nixon Hill, who formerly lived here, but has been for the past year and a half studying music under Madame Johanna Heff-Burr in Chicago. At this time Miss Hill will favor the company with music, and as she is well known here, a large number of her friends will be interested in hearing her. Miss Hill is a charming and daintily pretty girl, and during her residence here was one of the most popular of the young crowd. She is possessed of a splendid mezzo-contralto voice, which under the tutelage of Madame Heff-Burr has grown in volume and range until her teacher predicts a fine future for her.

Mrs. Ira O. Smith will hold a reception at the Angeles hotel from 2 to 5.

Pasadena society is looking forward impatiently to the evening of the 19th.

when a series of very rare and unusual Spanish dances is to be given at the Love opera house, by the Spanish dancers, who will reproduce many of the old time dances, which are now almost wholly gone. In one or two cases of the single dances, like the "handkerchief," but one person in all Southern California could be found able to dance it, and as she is not a young woman, it is quite likely that this will be the last opportunity to see it danced in all the perfect historic setting, and accompanied by Spanish orchestra, whose music was most difficult to obtain. The one little boy in the group of sixteen, who will take part, is to dance on the streets of Pasadena next week. In four of the dances all sixteen of the troupe will appear, while in some of the single dances but one or two take part.

The dancers were gathered with great difficulty from all about Los Angeles, the younger generation seldom learning the old time, stately and beautiful steps and gestures of the dances of their mothers and grandmothers. Already the boxes are being taken by society people and parties are being made up at the hotels for the evening.

Great golden-hearted daisies for decorations, place cards and table arrangements made unique the charming luncheon given yesterday in the private dining room of the Green hotel, Pasadena, by Miss Agnes Holmes, in honor of the three brides-to-be, Miss Lillian Guyer, Miss McCauley and Miss Blanche McCauley. The matrons of honor and the bridesmaids formed the remainder of the company. White daisies formed the effective centerpiece of the exquisitely laid table, and long sprays of smilax radiated from this to the plates forming the outline of daisy petals. Each plate was laid on the tip of a petal, and the place cards were themselves in the shape of a daisy. Those enjoying the faultlessly served luncheon were, besides the guests of honor, Miss Guyer, and the Misses McCauley, Mrs. Edward Graendyke, Miss Lila Lett, Miss Margaret Lee, Miss Harriet Severance, Miss Guinne, Miss Blanche McCauley, Miss Jessie Thomas, Miss Mabel Sauer, and Miss Marion McGilvray.

State Societies. Former residents of Maine and Texas held meetings in Los Angeles Tuesday night, the Mainettes assembling at Burbank hall, where 400 members of the Pine Tree State association enjoyed a fine musical program, followed by a dance. The Texans held their annual election of officers, which resulted as follows: Col. T. C. Thornton, president; Dr. J. A. Metcalfe, J. H. Wood and W. L. Drew, vice presidents; M. C. Harris, secretary; J. L. Burton, treasurer; E. D. Moore, sergeant-at-arms. Dancing followed.

Aloha Whist Club. Aloha Whist club members were entertained at their regular fortnightly meeting yesterday by Mrs. Charles Byrne McCollum of 1117 West Twentieth street. Luncheon was served early in the afternoon, after which cards were enjoyed and prizes awarded. Scores were kept on cards bearing familiar quotations. The guests included Mesdames Warren S. Young, Russell Agee, Johnson, Frank Casey, Van Horn, McHenry, J. B. Brackett, Lois Pelton Abrams and M. A. Spinks.

Poppy Whist Club. Mrs. L. P. Paulson of 1200 East Fourteenth street had as her guests yesterday afternoon members of the Poppy Whist club. Yellow poppies formed decorations for the parlor and dining room, and the score cards were ornamented with sketches of the same flowers. Prizes were awarded the successful players.

Mrs. H. T. Raymond and Mr. and Mrs. George Clancy of Seattle are at the Nadeau for the winter.

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Stewart of 1037 West Twenty-second street entertained about fifty friends Tuesday evening at an informal card party. The house was decked with roses and carnations, with a mingling of ferns and smilax. Scores were marked on cards adorned with photographic studies, and pretty prizes were given to the fortunate contestants. Later, refreshments were served in the dining room, where a handsome decorative scheme prevailed.

Woman's Clubs

W. C. T. U. Federation

A general note of prosperity and hopefulness prevailed yesterday at the monthly meeting at the federation of the city W. C. T. U. at the Memorial Baptist church on Grand avenue. Several delegates who have recently returned from the national convention were present and made addresses.

The morning session was opened by a devotional service, led by Mrs. L. F. King, president of the Baldwin W. C. T. U. of the Memorial church. This was followed by a business session, at which Mrs. Hester Griffith, president of the federation, presided. Encouraging reports were received regarding temperance work among the children and hopes entertained that the recent election would assist in the work, especially as regards the school board. Rev. H. A. Buell rendered a vocal solo. This was followed by the roontide prayer, led by Mrs. Carter, returned delegate.

The women of the Baldwin W. C. T. U., the entertaining union, served luncheon for those attending, after which the afternoon session was opened with devotional service, led by Rev. C. C. Pierce, pastor of the church. Rev. and Mrs. Buell rendered vocal solos. Reports were made from the following delegates who attended the national convention: Mrs. Emma Cash, state president; Miss G. T. Stickney, county president; Mrs. Laura L. Carter, county secretary; Miss Mary Stewart, a member of the trustees of Southern California. Mrs. L. F. King made an address of welcome to the delegates, who were greeted with the waving of small American flags.

During the day several stirring addresses were made by the women regarding the suffrage movement and the work of the organization. It was stated that the crusade against smoking on the street cars has not been abandoned and that the subject will be taken up actively in the near future.

Near the pulpit was arranged a chart, originated by Mrs. King, state organizer, showing the six main branches of the work—namely, organization, preventive, educational, evangelistic, social and legal, which are subdivided into forty departments.

Following the business session an informal reception was held in honor of the delegates in the church parlor. An interesting feature of the afternoon was the presence of Rev. and Mrs. Norton. Mrs. Norton was a member of the temperance crusade of 1873 in Ohio, the founder of the present W. C. T. U., and with a number of others was imprisoned in behalf of the cause.

During the afternoon many were the expressions of sympathy in behalf of Mrs. Emma Cash, state president, whose husband passed away shortly after the convention.

During the month of February a reception will be given by the federation to tourists at the annex of the Temple auditorium. The next regular business meeting will be held in March.

Wednesday Morning Club

The Shakespeare section of the Wednesday Morning club met yesterday morning at 9:30, with Mrs. Adams presiding. The class finished the first act of "King Lear" and read the second act. This was followed by a discussion, and many obsolete words used in the bard's works were defined and the attention of the class called to them. At noon a New England luncheon was served. At this midday meal Mrs. Adams delivered a very clever toast, in which each member was mentioned.

In the afternoon the Bible class met under the able direction of Mrs. H. E. Brett.

The readings were from the book of Daniel, which included the vision and the historical and ethical teachings of the first three chapters.

Later in the afternoon the music section met and the program was in charge of Mrs. Marion Gordon-Newman. The first number was a song, "Slumber Boat," by Mme. Norman. This was followed by a song, "Angels Guard Thee," by Mrs. Ida Edwards. Mme. Norman gave a humorous reading, entitled "Picked Herring," and Miss Libbie Cocker followed by reading "Ragged Robin."

One of the cleverest things heard in this club for a long time was the humorous sketch entitled "The Village Concert," the quaint characters being interpreted by Mrs. Ida Edwards, Miss Millie Burrows and Miss Cockerell. The number was a side-splitting affair, full of the most absurd songs and oddities.

Woman's Lyric Club

Election of officers by the Women's Lyric club, which took place Tuesday afternoon at the Frieze conservatory, resulted in the choice of Miss Mattie Comins as president. Miss Comins had been elected by this faction of the Treble Clef before the final disruption of the old organization, and it was understood before the meeting that she probably would be retained in the office.

Mrs. Alice Edwards was elected vice president, Mrs. Abble Norton treasurer, Mrs. Ussie Viera recording secretary, Mrs. Edith P. Sparks financial secretary, Mrs. Marsh librarian and Mrs. Leon Christian assistant librarian. In addition to these, the executive board includes Mrs. Christian Sager, Mrs. Godsmark, Mrs. Talbot Winship and Mrs. Traversy. There are in the new club forty-four charter members.

Wednesday Study Club

Mrs. Ferd Wheeler of North Boyle avenue entertained in a delightful manner yesterday afternoon the Wednesday Study club, which includes in its membership a score of students of literature and art, who assemble each Wednesday for their perusal and discussion. The affair given by Mrs. Wheeler was one of the social events wherein the study period is supplanted by games and other diversions.

which included the guessing of the names of trees and flowers. The guests included Mrs. Edgerton, Suttle, Johnson, Janssen, Gray, Covell, Willard, Bowers, Aigie, Garrett, Herendenen Garrett and Benz.

Ruskin Art Club

An interesting session of the Ruskin Art club was held yesterday morning, the lesson on painting under the Queen Anne reign being the topic discussed.

The program was in charge of Miss Belle Smith and Mrs. Long.

Papers on the following subjects were read: Painting—Copley (d. 1815) and West (d. 1820); examples of their works in American galleries. Book illustrators and designers—Blake (d. 1823), Lawrence (d. 1827), Bewick (d. 1823). Portrait painters—Raeburn (d. 1823), Lawrence (d. 1830), Hopper (d. 1810). Genre painting—Wilkie (d. 1841). Animal painters—Landseer (d. 1873).

Woman's Press Club

The Woman's Press club met yesterday afternoon at a called meeting in the assembly hall of the chamber of commerce, to listen to a most interesting talk by the short story writer, Mrs. Marvene Kennedy of New York, but who for the past year has been a resident of Los Angeles. Mrs. Kennedy, whose short stories have found a ready market throughout the literary world, chose for her subject "The Technique of the Short Story Writing." The next meeting of the club will be held at the assembly room at Blanchard hall on Saturday evening, January 14.

Business Meeting Postponed

The business meeting of the Friday Morning club which was to have been held tomorrow has been postponed on account of the illness of several of the members. The morning will be taken up instead with a paper on Japanese ceramics, followed by an exhibition of some choice bits of fine pottery.

W. C. T. U.

The Los Angeles W. C. T. U. will meet at the First Methodist church, on the corner of Sixth and Hill streets, today (Thursday) at 2 p. m. Rev. A. A. Kidder of the Strangers' Friend society will deliver a lecture on "A Los Angeles Golden Opportunity."

Evangelistic Activity

Great activity is being manifested by the general evangelistic committee as well as the different churches in preparation for the forthcoming evangelistic campaign. Many business and committee meetings are being held daily. The men's noon prayer meetings are proving successful and it is expected that larger quarters must be secured. On Saturday evening a rehearsal of the Central avenue, or seventh district, will be held at the Central avenue Congregational church. Mr. Pugh will be present and have charge of the rehearsal.

HINTS BY MARY MANTON

The surplice waist makes a notable feature of the latest styles and is always graceful and becoming. This one is exceptionally attractive and includes also the new "leg o' mutton" sleeves. As illustrated the material is willow green cashmere trimmed with applique and combined with a chemisette and frills of cream lace, the cashmere being one of the most fashionable materials of the season, but many other materials are equally desirable. Chemisettes of lace are always charming, chiffon lined, but those in lingerie style are exquisitely dainty and much in vogue.

The waist consists of the fitted foundation that is closed at the center front, full back and fronts with the sleeves and chemisette. The sleeves are extremely full above the elbows and, together with the waist, are shirred to give the broad shoulder line. The chemisette is separated and arranged under the waist, closed invisibly at the back. At the waist is worn a wide belt of messaline satin held by a buckle of dull gold.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 4 1/2 yards 21 inches wide, 4 1/2 yards 27 inches wide or 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 1/2 yard of all-over lace, 3/4 yard of applique to trim as illustrated.

The pattern 4859 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure.
