FRIENDS BELIEVE INGRAM INSANE

DEFENSE HAS INNINGS IN BIGAMY CASE

Accused Tells of a Collision With a Locomotive in Which He Was Severely Injured—Considers Himself Crazy.

In the trial of William A. Ingram, charged with bigamy, but who insists that he only married a woman, the defense yesterday had its innings, and a strong effort was made by Ingram's attorney to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that his client was of unsound mind, and consequently should be held blameless for his twofold matrimonial adventure.

At the outset of yesterday's proceedings Attorney Yager attempted to prove that Charles O. Goodwin had threatened to put his uncle behind the bars for his experience with one too many wives, but in this he failed.

Mrs. Katherine Goodwin-Ingram, who figures as "wife No. 2" was recalled to the stand and was put through a severe examination by General Yager. The attorney made an effort to locate the turn of the road at which Mrs. Goodwin-Ingram's love for her spouse vanished, but in this he failed.

"I want to see him put where he belongs," was all that Mrs. Goodwin-Ingram would say.

Attorney T. P. Dyer, in reply to a question, declared that the defendant's mind was unbalanced.

"He was desperate and wanted me to collect some money for him from his first wife. I considered him insane and was glad to get rid of him," testified the witness.

A quick succession a score or more of witnesses from the village of Eagle Rock testified that Ingram's conduct was most peculiar.

The defendant himself next took the stand and told the jury his mind wandered at times from ordinary channels. He told of his collision with a locomotive as far back as 1889. He declared that he inadvertently collided with a locomotive, whereby he was tossed high into the air.

Upon recovering his equilibrium, Ingram testified, he was minus his teeth, his eyes rolled back into his head, he was temporarily blind, one leg was broken, shoulder blade wrenched out of its customary place, and severely injured in other particulars too numerous to mention.

"Well, you have completed your repairs, haven't you?" asked the district attorney.

"No, sir," replied Ingram. Aside from his testimony in relation to his insane wanderings, Ingram failed to testify to any other particular involved in the case.

Judge Waldo M. York of department three of the superior court gave some testimony which was decidedly favorable to the cause of the defendant.

RUNAWAY TEAM COLLIDES WITH LUMBER WAGON

Driver and Pedestrians Have Narrow Escape From Death as Result of Accident

W. H. Hughes, a driver for the E. K. Wood Lumber company, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. A team belonging to Jack Heines, contractor, and driven by A. Rodriguez, while running away with a wagon loaded with gravel, collided with the team driven by Hughes on Broadway near First street.

Hughes sat on the pole of the lumber wagon. The tongue of Heines' wagon rested on his lap, while a horse was on either side of him. Had the tongue struck him he would have been run through. As it was, he received several severe bruises. Rodriguez, driver of the runaway horses, pulled his team around just in time to prevent the animals from crashing into a carriage occupied by two women.

TWICE ATTEMPTS HIS LIFE

Prisoner in the City Jail Swallows Morphine

Six grains of morphine and a piece of sharp glass were the instruments with which G. A. Buckley, charged with embezzlement, courted death yesterday in the city jail. He swallowed the drug and then attempted to open an artery in his wrist with the glass. The effort at suicide was so feeble, however, that after a slight examination in the receiving hospital he was returned to his cell.

That the morphine did not produce the result desired by Buckley is due to the fact that for twenty years he has been addicted to its constant use. The quantity was too small to affect him dangerously. He then broke the bottle and with the edge of the glass fragments endeavored to cut an artery in his wrist. A prisoner observed this act and called Jailer Shand. The house surgeon examined Buckley and said he was not in any danger.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best Made.

"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds," says Mrs. Cora Walker, of Porterville, California. "There is no doubt about its being the best. No other will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so sure a preventive of pneumonia. No other is so pleasant and safe to take. These are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy."

SAYS FATHER DRANK GALLON OF WINE A DAY

Daughter of Woman Seeking Divorce Tells of Parent's Appetite for Liquor

For the second time in her matrimonial career, Mrs. Helena Knollmiller yesterday in Judge Conrey's court was released from the copartnership of love existing between her and her husband, Frank Knollmiller.

The plaintiff received her first interlocutory decree about three years ago, but soon after repented and married her former husband.

Mrs. Knollmiller says she urged her husband to provide her with 15 cents, with which to purchase gasoline, and to express his disapproval of his wife's request he struck her in the eye.

Knollmiller was partial to dumplings as a diet—apple or otherwise may never be known—but when the dish did not appear, his wife asserts, he proceeded to hurl the dishes against the wall.

According to the story told by the plaintiff her husband's great failing was liquor.

"One gallon of wine, one bottle of whisky and one bottle of port wine per day" was his daily allowance, according to the testimony of his pretty daughter, Maria.

That he would blow her head off, according to the witness' story, is only one of his milder threats.

Judge Conrey held that Knollmiller had fallen from the water wagon, and the decree was promptly granted, which also gave the plaintiff the possession of the property and the custody of the minor children.

GETS DIVORCE ON REQUEST

Husband's Wishes Carried Out by Obedient Wife

"I shall never live with you again as long as my name is Aldridge," said B. J. Aldridge in a letter to his wife, and in fact he declared he would never again live in the golden west until his wife secured a divorce.

Pretty Mrs. Ola Aldridge sympathized with her spouse in his predicament, and rather than see the west lose a useful citizen, she immediately applied to Judge York in the superior court for a divorce, which was granted yesterday.

Mrs. Aldridge testified that she was married at San Francisco in 1897.

She insisted, however, that she maintained full faith and confidence in her spouse until recently she received a cruel letter from him, informing her that he desired her to procure a divorce.

FOUR SEEK SEPARATION

Marriage Licenses Do Not Equal Applications for Divorce

An official county record was broken yesterday, when for the second day in succession more people applied for divorces than for marriage licenses. "Cupid" Kutz, who reigns over the marriage license department at the county courthouse, issued three licenses, while the county clerk recorded four suits for divorce.

Those applying for a divorce were: August J. Krueger against his wife, Mrs. Rosario Krueger; Harry J. Briggs against his wife, Mrs. Eva Briggs; Mrs. Estelle Rosner against her husband, Fred C. Rosner, and Mrs. Anna E. Chaffee against her husband, Lee C. Chaffee.

Husband Gets Decree

A mysterious disappearance of his wife with all his earthly belongings was hard for Robert Coates to bear, but Judge Conrey in the superior court yesterday made the burden lighter by granting an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife, Mrs. Gussie Coates, on the ordinary statutory grounds.

Sues on Note

John S. Corning filed suit in the superior court yesterday against ex-Police Commissioner Spencer R. Thorpe for $10,000, on a note dated Oct. 15, 1901. The plaintiff also asks the court to award him judgment for interest on that sum, which amounts to $1500.

Allege Slander

Mentally pained and shocked by reason of alleged words of slander spoken by Joe Tachella, Ernest Wildberger and his spouse, Hilaria, have estimated their damages at $299, and for this amount suit has been filed in Justice Pierce's township court.

FATHER MAY SEE CHILD THREE TIMES A WEEK

Jerome Cameron and His Wife Contest for Possession of Their Son

Because she took their child to balls, masquerades and dances, Jerome Cameron decided that his wife was not the fit and proper person to have the care and custody of the little one and yesterday when Mrs. Mary Cameron sought to secure an order of the court granting her the sole right of the child's affection Cameron objected.

Mrs. Cameron insisted that on one occasion he concealed the child's wearing apparel.

A divorce suit is now pending in the superior court, and yesterday's difficulty only served as an introduction to the other case.

After a long drawn out controversy Judge Conrey granted Mrs. Cameron the technical custody of the child, while he instructed the father to provide for its support.

In return for the pecuniary aid extended by Cameron he will be entitled to visit his child three times a week, for a period of two hours on each occasion.

"Bedtime for children is 7 o'clock," added the court in the decree.

DIXON, Jan. 20.—George Easton, convicted of the murder of Charles Horgan, has been sentenced to hang at Folsom on Feb. 23.
