PHILIPPINE LADS ENTER COLLEGE

FOUR YOUTHS WILL ATTEND ST. VINCENT'S

Bright Representatives From Islands Will Learn American Ways. To Teach Their People in Turn

Keen intelligence and with bright, winning ways, the quartet of Philippine boys, who arrived in Los Angeles Thursday to enter St. Vincent's college, have already made many friends among the faculty and students of the college. The year of small stature, but what they lack in height they more than make up in intellectual attainments. They range from 17 to 21 years of age and give the impression that they are perfectly able to meet the world in all its phases without being bold. Their deportment and gentlemanly manners would put many American boys to shame.

Julian Vallarta, Victoriano Yumum, Zacarias Rocha and Lino Arraza, the students who have entered St. Vincent's, came on the United States transport Sherman, arriving in San Francisco January 15. They came with twenty-six other boys sent by the United States government to spend four years in gaining an education in this country, after which they will return to the Philippines and enter the government service for a period of four years. In this service they will repay the government for their education, and then will be at liberty to pursue whatever line of business or profession they prefer. Some will take civil engineering, medicine, law and commercial courses. The four who came to Los Angeles will take scientific courses. Three girls came with the party and have gone to St. Mary's academy, Notre Dame, Ind. It is the custom of the government to send the pupils to the denominational school of the religion which they profess.

To Educate Youths It is the aim of the United States government to educate the natives in this country, and later when they return they will in turn educate their countrymen in American ways.

The boys talk with pride of the advance made in the islands since the advent of the Americans there. They have studied the English language, some for two years and one less than a year, yet they readily understood the questions and answered in a bright and intelligent manner, with perceptible foreign accent, giving the language a soft sound, quite different from the harshness with which it is so often spoken.

They expressed their pleasure at being in America, and the youngest, Victoriano Yumum, said in a naive way, "We can learn faster here and when we return will teach our people the American ways."

Julian Vallarta, who is 18 years of age, comes from the town of San Ysidora, province of Nueva, island of Luzon; Zacarias Rocha, aged 21 years, Tagbilaran, province of Bohol, island of Bohol; Victoriano Yumum, aged 17 years, Apalit, province of Pampanga, island of Luzon; Lino Arraza, aged 20 years, Cantilan, province of Surigao, island of Mindanao.

One peculiarity of the native dialects spoken by the boys who come from different provinces is that no two can understand each other, although their provinces adjoin.

TO OPEN CASA VERDUGO

Spanish Restaurant to Be a Feature of Glendale Trip

The Casa Verdugo, located at the north end of the Glendale line, will be opened today. The Pacific Electric Railway company has converted what was the old Verdugo homestead, one of the most picturesque adobes in the valley, into this modern residence without destroying any of the characteristics which identify it with the old Spanish life which existed here "before the gringo" came.

At a very large expense a "Y" was run up from the main line so that all cars run directly to the old Verdugo place, which has been thoroughly refitted and almost rebuilt, many additions having been made to and in consonance with its original architecture. Senora Piedad Yorba, who is the manager of the Casa Verdugo, is well known to all the Spanish residents and personally achieved a high reputation in the management of Spanish restaurants, her cuisine being unexcelled.

JUDGE HOLDS CLERK MUST DELIVER MAIL

Decision on Demurrer in Judge Allen's Court May Have Important Bearing

Judge Allen yesterday handed down a decision on a demurrer filed in the case of H. C. Kenney against Henry E. Stanley, a clerk in the general delivery department of the Los Angeles post-office.

Kenney filed a suit several months ago in the superior court against the mail clerk for $600, for his alleged refusal to deliver to him an important business letter, touching upon a real estate transaction in New Mexico.

Kenney alleged in his complaint that his New Mexico agent secured a purchaser for certain property, and communicated the proposed purchaser's offer by mail.

The plaintiff says he demanded delivery of his mail, but his demands were refused by Stanley, and in the meantime the New Mexico prospector withdrew his offer.

Later Kenney deposited of his real estate at a figure $600 below the offer conveyed in the letter, the delivery of which is alleged to have been refused.

The mail clerk filed a demurrer to the complaint, setting up the usual technical grounds.

"In my opinion the complaint states a cause of action, and the demurrer is overruled," says Judge Allen in his decision.

He also says in his decision that under the statute, Stanley may, as a United States officer, remove the cause to the federal courts.

FIVE DENTISTS ARRAIGNED

Teeth Extractors Accused of Having No Licenses

As a result of the investigations of local representatives of the state board of dental examiners five dentists were arraigned in Justice Chambers' court yesterday morning on misdemeanor charges with allegations against them of practicing dentistry without licenses.

One of the teeth extractors told the court he had been before the board of examiners several times but had not been passed. All of the men will plead not guilty. They have asked for jury trials.

The following dentists were arraigned: W. H. Hodson, 2917 Manito street; D. Creighton, working in an office at 293 1/2 South Spring street; N. Kuns, 205 Wilson building; R. H. Boni, working in an office at 250 1/2 Pasadena avenue, and M. Wright, working in an office in the Johnson building.

WHICH DIED FIRST, STOREY OR HIS WIFE?

Estate of Victims of Needles Tragedy Likely to Be a Bone of Contention

Attorney C. M. Damon, representing Public Administrator F. G. Wood of San Bernardino county, was in Los Angeles yesterday in the interests of the Storey estate, of which F. G. Wood has been appointed special administrator.

The estate left by Storey, who killed his wife and himself at Needles Sunday, is scattered, but it is said to be approximately worth at least $10,000.

Attorney Damon has discovered that real estate belonging to the estate is located at Point Richmond, Alameda and Los Angeles, but other than this, little if any is known.

It is said that the heirs of Storey and his wife will contest the division of the estate.

The question in this case is: "Did the murdered wife of O. C. Storey die after her husband had committed suicide at Needles, last Sunday, or did Storey witness his wife's death before he turned his pistol on himself?"

There is apparently little, if any, testimony, on the issue involved, but as both sets of heirs will probably contest the case, a long legal contest is likely to ensue.

The three minor children of the deceased couple were brought before Judge Wilbur in the superior court.

A petition for the guardianship of the children probably will be filed today in the superior court by the officers of the humane society.

BOY RECITES SCRIPTURE IN JUVENILE COURT

Lad Whose Father is a Missionary Proves Apt Student of the Bible

Several cases came before Judge Wilbur yesterday in the juvenile court, and a large number of youthful offenders were given their rewards or punishments.

Paul Camp's father is a missionary in "Darkest Africa," but Judge Wilbur has discovered that there is room for missionary work at home.

Paul is hardly 14 years of age, nevertheless, he is prominent as the theological student of the detention home.

His guardians say he is rather obstreperous at home, but Paul thinks otherwise, as he looks at the question from a theological point of view.

He quoted certain passages of Scripture to the court to the effect that a man should be the head of the house, and, as he is the only man in the house, he thought it right and dutiful to assume that responsibility.

Judge Wilbur several days ago instructed him to study passages of Scripture in relation to the punishment of incorrigible children, wherein it is intimated that they should be taken to the gates of the city and stoned to death.

Paul learned the passage verbatim, and yesterday he recited it to the court.

Judge Wilbur was pleased with the efforts of the young Bible student and sent him back to the detention home for a week with instructions to prepare another verse.

Paul's father has been notified of his son's fall from grace.

Richard Marshall, a negro boy, whose chief characteristic is his auburn hair, was voted by his fellow inmates as the "good boy of the home," in consequence whereof Judge Wilbur allowed him his freedom.

James Wyatt, another negro, whose environments at home are not all that could be expected, was declared to be incorrigible and sent to the reform school at Whittier.

Six boys were examined by the court, found to be "perfect," and they scampered from the courtroom.

GREET PLAYERS GIVE SCHOLARLY PRODUCTION

"As You Like It" Played Artistically to Audience in Temple Auditorium

Ben Greet's company of excellent players last evening gave a scholarly and entertaining performance of Shakespeare's "As You Like It." It is the first production they have given here in modern stage settings, and in this they were greatly handicapped by the lack of proper accommodations at Temple auditorium.

But as regards the acting and delivery of the lines, there have been few interpretations of Shakespeare in Los Angeles to equal this performance. Those who missed it missed an intellectual feast and the enjoyment of some rare art.

Constance Crawley gave an unusually intelligent and beautiful reading of the lines of Rosalind. She made her Rosalind the sweet, gentle heroine that an audience can love, and not the willful, daring, reckless, unwomanly creature that has lately been common on the stage. The personal magnetism of this actress promises for her the most brilliant of futures.

As Orlando, J. Sayer Crawley also deserves great praise. His work brought frequent applause from the audience. The Touchstone of Ben Greet was artistic and genuine. Helena Head, Agnes Scott, Leonard Shepherd and Frank Darch were others who stood out most clearly in the performance.

Today marks the special performance of "Hamlet" at Temple auditorium, when the Greet players will give a rendition of the 1604 version of the play. It will be presented in a manner as nearly as possible like that in which it was produced at the Globe theater, London, three hundred years ago.

Ben Greet Company in "Hamlet"

This afternoon and evening at the Temple auditorium the Greet company of players will give the Elizabethan presentation of the 1604 version of "Hamlet," prince of Denmark, presented in the primitive manner like that in which it was produced at the Globe theater, London, 300 years ago. Mr. Greet and his players are presenting "Hamlet" in its entirety, the time used in its production being a little over five hours. It is a sceneless production, and to relieve the tedium of such a lengthy period the first half is presented in the afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, and the latter half in the evening from 8:15 to 11 o'clock. Mr. Greet presents the version made familiar by Kemble. This is the only time the Greet players will present "Hamlet" in this city. Special arrangements have been made for students, teachers, and reduced prices for clubs and educational bodies.

Mason Opera House

This afternoon there will be a special matinee at reduced prices for "Salambo," headed by Mr. Warde and Miss Kidder. This company, instead of closing its engagement this evening at the Mason, remains throughout the first half of next week, closing its engagement in this city with a Wednesday matinee and evening performance.

Matinee at Belasco

A performance of "Old Heidelberg" will be given at the Belasco theater this afternoon. The curtain rises at 2 o'clock.

The Angelus Hotel Grill The select dining place of the city. Loomis Brothers, proprietors.
