ing cortege, and the rest of the church was filled with representatives of official delegations with university trustees, their families and some 500 of the general public. In all 2700 people gained entrance, while over 7000 others were forced to remain without.

Within there was no decoration, save a single vase filled with white lilies and placed upon the altar and a wreath of the same lilies made around the catafalque, which had been arranged to receive the casket.

No sooner did the first pair of casket-bearers enter the main entrance that opens into the center aisle than the voluminous notes of the massive organ began to fill the great cathedral with the notes of Chopin's funeral march. The great congregation rose and remained standing with bowed heads while the casket was born down to the altar followed by relatives and close friends of Mrs. Stanford and by the pallbearers. When this escort had been seated in the section nearest the casket and the altar the student choir of 100 voices sang Mendelssohn's chorus "To Thee, O Lord, I Yield My Spirit."

The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. William Kirk Guthrie of the First Presbyterian church of San Francisco. This was followed by a memorial anthem composed by Dr. B. C. Blodgett, organist of the Memorial church. Rabbi Jacob Voorsanger of San Francisco read the First Lesson from Psalms XC and XIII. Then the hymn "Lead, Kindly Light" was sung by Miss E. W. Smith.

The second lesson was read by the Rev. E. R. Dille, D. D., of the First Methodist church of Oakland. After a prayer by Bishop W. F. Nicholas, Episcopal bishop of California, the funeral address, an eulogy to the memory of Mrs. Stanford was delivered by the Rev. John W. Dinsmore of San Jose.

Hymn and Benediction
The hymn "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" was sung by Mrs. Arthur Fickensher, the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. C. M. Hall of the Baptist Theological seminary of Berkeley, and then all except the immediate funeral party rose and left the church during the playing of the postlude.

In front of the massive memorial arch the funeral procession formed. In the lead was the freshman class of the university. Then came the sophomores, juniors and seniors, followed by the resident graduate students, the church choir, alumni, faculty of the university, officiating clergymen, honorary pallbearers, the casket with the student bearers, the family and close friends, the official delegates and the employees of the Stanford estate, in the order named.

The procession, when formed, was a full mile in length, reaching from memorial arch to within a quarter of a mile of the mausoleum itself. The only carriages in the procession were the hearse and a few others used by the relatives and those who were unable to walk. When the casket had been brought from the chapel the procession began its mournful march, which took but fifteen minutes to the mausoleum. Already the great piles of floral offerings sent from all parts of the country had been banked on all sides of the huge tomb, covering a great space on the surrounding lawn and almost hiding from view the great sepulchre itself.

Notable among the floral offerings were a combination monogram of a red "S" and yellow "C," sent by the students of the University of California, a symbolic design of the Memorial church, presented by the employees of the estate, magnificent pieces from the society of Elks, the Olympic club, Vina estate, the various classes and organizations of the university, and hundreds of other beautiful designs from organizations and individuals.

The services at the mausoleum, marked by extreme simplicity and deep solemnity, were attended by no less than 10,000 persons. The funeral rites were said from the great marble steps of the tomb. The address, appropriate and brief, was given by the Rev. Charles R. Brown of Oakland.

Final Words Said
Two hymns sung by the student choir, and then the committal was said by the Rev. Bishop William F. Nichols, D. D. This closed the funeral rites as they had been arranged, but this was not all. As the heavy casket was being carefully lowered into the marble sarcophagus, the assembly of 1500 students who formed the inner portion of the great circle of humanity broke forth with wonderful spontaneity in the Stanford college hymn, "Hail, Stanford, Hail." As the last lines of the second verse died away the great marble slab closed over the casket, and the earthly remains of Mrs. Stanford reposed peacefully beside those of her husband and son. The massive bronze doors of the mausoleum were closed and locked, and the vast mournful audience dispersed.

The Stanford Mausoleum
The resting place of the Stanford family was built by Senator and Mrs. Stanford in 1893 at a cost of $164,000, and is considered one of the most magnificent sepulchral monuments on the Pacific coast. It stands at the end of a straight cypress road turning off the avenue connecting the university and Palo Alto, about half a mile from the buildings of the quadrangle.

Designed in the purest type of Grecian architecture, the mausoleum is a small Greek temple in form, constructed of white marble and polished granite of a darker color. Ionic pillars, set close to the walls, ornament the front, rear and sides, while four sphinxes in white marble crouch on bases at each corner of the room. Over the heavy bronze door which closes the front of the mausoleum is a tablet on which are carved in raised letters the names of the three members of the family.

Through the upper panels of the door, which are interlaced with bronze filigree work, a view of the interior can be obtained. Here are three great marble sarcophagi. The one on the right contains the remains of the son and the simple inscription: "Leland Stanford Junior—Born to Mortality May 14, 1868—Passed to Immortality March 13, 1884." On the left is the tomb of Senator Stanford, bearing an inscription similar to that of his son. It is in the central sarcophagus that the body of Mrs. Stanford was placed.

Son's Former Tomb
For some years after the death of Leland Stanford, Jr., his body was kept in a marble tomb just west of the Stanford residence. With the idea of providing a more suitable resting place and that should contain the three members of the family the great mausoleum was constructed. But before the body of the son could be moved and while the finishing touches were being put on the tomb, the death of Senator Stanford came. After the simple funeral services the remains of the late senator were placed in the mausoleum. Shortly after this the body of the son was placed beside that of the father.

On the heavy marble slab which is to cover the tomb of Mrs. Stanford the following scroll has already been engraved:

"JANE L. STANFORD,
Born in Mortality
August 25, 1828;
Passed to Immortality
February 28, 1905."

BERKELEY SHOWS SYMPATHY

Services Are Held by Students of the State University

By Associated Press.
BERKELEY, March 24.—Services in the nature of a memorial to the late Mrs. Stanford were conducted today by the students of the state university. The exercises were simple, consisting of a single address on Mrs. Stanford by Prof. Thomas R. Bacon, head of the history department.

In the absence of President Wheeler, who left for Palo Alto early this morning, Prof. Adolph C. Miller presided. Prof. Charles Rieber, formerly of Stanford university, who was a close friend of Mrs. Stanford, was to have spoken but was prevented by illness.

Prof. Bacon said in part: "Mrs. Stanford's life was begun under humble circumstances, fraught with desolating sorrows, but was one that has become synonymous with kindness, generosity and helpfulness. How great her services to higher education have been is inestimable. The founders of Stanford university did more for the University of California than if all of their millions had been bestowed on this institution.

"The competition made us great. It has given a stimulus for scientific research and higher ideals. Had it not been for the founders of the rival institution the University of California would have remained the same obscure institution it was twenty years ago."

DIGGING INTO RATE DETAILS

BEEF TRUST INVESTIGATION HUNTING FACTS

District Attorney Reported as Paying Much Attention to the Question of Rebates and Discrimination

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Specific information regarding shipping, marketing and prices of cattle was sought today by the special grand jury which is investigating the alleged combination of packers. Michael Murphy, general manager of the Cudahy Packing company at South Omaha, Sioux City and Kansas City, was before the inquisitors and shed some light upon the subjects under consideration.

"They asked me first about the packing business in general," Mr. Murphy said. "Then they took up the subject of marketing and asked all the details of it. They inquired into the shipping of cattle and beef. Their questions did not point to an investigation relative to railroads. Then they went into the subject of prices."

After Mr. Murphy and Mr. Wilkins had testified in the morning Thomas B. Ruddy, head of Ruddy Brothers Packing company of Kansas City, was called to the stand. Mr. Ruddy was subjected to a close examination, and, with the exception of the noon adjournment, was on the witness stand from 11:30 in the morning until the adjournment at 5 o'clock in the evening. When he left the jury room it was plainly seen that he had been affected by the ordeal. He appeared nervous and refused to discuss his testimony.

It is said that District Attorney Morrison is paying much attention to the question of railroad rates for meat and cattle shipments, and the question of whether rebates are paid the packers because of their large shipments, thus discriminating against smaller shippers.

LOOMIS VISITS MARE ISLAND NAVY YARD

Assistant Secretary of State Goes on Tour of Inspection of the Harbor

By Associated Press.

VALLEJO, Cal., March 24.—Francis B. Loomis, assistant secretary of state, paid a visit to the Mare Island navy yard today, coming from San Francisco on the naval tug Golden Gate.

Upon arriving at Mare Island the assistant secretary was recorded the full honors to which his rank entitles him. A salute of fifteen guns was fired from the Independence as the tug came up the channel.

The Mare Island station band and a full battalion of marines under command of Major James E. Mahoney, commander of the marine corps at the yard, was drawn up at the quay wall, where the visitor was met by Rear Admiral McCalla as he stepped ashore. He was immediately escorted to the commandant's house, where he was the guest of honor at a luncheon, after which he inspected the harbor, also visiting the Russian vessel 'Lena, which is held here by the government.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 24.—K. S. Inui, a Japanese student, tonight won second place and a $50 cash prize in the annual oratorical contest at the University of Michigan. His subject was "The Sick Man of Asia and His Doctors."

MRS. CHADWICK TELLS OF DEBTS

RELATES TRANSACTIONS TO BANKRUPTCY COURT

Declares Her Total Obligations Will Not Exceed Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars—Appears Well and Cheerful

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, March 24.—In the bankruptcy court today Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick detailed some of her financial transactions during an examination by Attorney Louis J. Grossman, acting for trustee Nathan Looser.

Mrs. Chadwick said that she was not able to give as many details of the transactions as she would like, because of the absence of papers which were presented in a number of cities. She had sent for the papers and expected to have them when the hearing will be continued next Thursday. She testified that her total indebtedness would not exceed $750,000. Of this sum, borrowed from various persons, she had received only $517,000, leaving $238,000 for commissions to the money lender. She said she owed certain banks in Cleveland $200,000. The names of three of these institutions she was willing to give to Trustee Looser privately.

Mrs. Chadwick walked from the county jail to the bankruptcy court this afternoon, a distance of about one block. She looked well and appeared cheerful. She expressed her willingness to tell all that she could of her financial affairs. Some of the questions that were put to her were not answered because she did not care to give a reply from memory.

The examination disclosed additional assets of $200,000. Of this amount $58,000 is due Charles H. Stewart of Cleveland and $150,000 is jewelry held by Kolfers Bros. of Brussels, Belgium.

KILLS TWO MEN AND ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Oregon Man Accused of Attempted Poisoning Commits Double Crime

By Associated Press.

DRAIN, Ore., March 24.—Herman Shooks today shot and killed E. V. Cooper, who had accused him of attempting to poison him, and also shot and killed Paul Hoves, who was in Cooper's house, the scene of the tragedy. He then shot himself, dying almost instantly.

Last week Cooper took a dose of medicine and was immediately seized with convulsions and showed signs of having been poisoned with strychnine. Cooper suspected Shooks of having sought his life and accused him of the attempt today. Shooks called Cooper a liar and seizing a gun shot Cooper. He then turned the weapon on Howe, who was in the room, killing him instantly. He then packed his valise as if intending to quit the premises, but had hardly stepped out of the door before he killed himself. The scene of the tragedy is nine miles west of this place.
