Appear Against Foundry

A score of petitioners appeared before the board of fire commissioners yesterday morning praying that the permit for the running of a brass foundry at 558 Gless street be revoked. It was claimed that the fumes from the foundry were making many residents of the section sick. Commissioners Roberts and Wrenn were appointed a committee to visit the foundry and report upon the case next Saturday.

Knocked Down by Auto

Mrs. M. H. McGee of Garvanza was knocked down and severely bruised by an automobile at Third and Main streets yesterday morning. It is said that the automobile, which was being driven by D. C. Madden, was backing out of the way of a street car, when Mrs. McGee was struck by the rear end of the machine. The woman was assisted to the receiving hospital, where she was attended by Police Surgeon Freedman.

FAMILY ARRAYED
AGAINST ACTORWOULD COMPEL HIM TO LEAVE
THE STAGE

CAREER READS LIKE NOVEL

Howard Scott Must Enter the Privacy of Business Life if He Would Gain Possession of His Property

Commencing life as a student for the ministry and forsaking that for a career on the stage which has been a pronounced success, Howard Scott of the Belasco stock company now faces the fight of his life—that of being unwillingly dragged from the glare of the footlights into the privacy of a business office.

Mr. Scott has resigned his position with the Belasco company and will leave Los Angeles after this week's performance of "The Private Secretary," in which he is being featured.

Well-wishing relatives of the young actor, by means of a clause in a lately read will, have tied up his property in such a manner as to render it almost entirely useless to him unless he will consent to abandon the profession he has been such a credit to.

Howard Scott's stage career reads like a novel, though it may not turn out so propitiously.

He began his career as an impressionable boy by studying for the ministry in obedience to the wishes of his mother and brothers. An accidental visit to the theater fired the student with new ambitions, and in the face of clamorous opposition he threw up his ministerial work for what he realized he was fitted for.

Every step of the actor's road has been a melodramatic fight with opposing relatives. His has been no leap in a few months to the place he is filling now, but a climb from the very bottom.

"I began by carrying a spear and being a small fraction of the mob; then graduated into announcing the carriage and bringing in cards. The family almost went crazy; I had to earn my living as best I could. They thought I would give in. I haven't so far; and fancy that losing a large slice of property may not make me do so.

"There is nothing like sacrificing something for your ambition to make you value it. Every advance I have made I have fought for; it takes the conceit out of one; it makes one realize values. A character actor—and I shall never be anything else—has a better chance to rightly gauge his own value than a star or a matinee idol ever has; his work is not noticed unless it is good; he never looks pretty; the girls don't ask for his picture; he lives at peace fighting for his art—unless he has a band of relatives battling for his soul.

Hopes to Resume Art
"This question of tying up my property so cleverly as to make it valueless has been the last straw; the fight over this decides things one way or another. I am not going to Portland, my home, but to San Francisco, where my lawyers are doing what they can. Mind, my people think they are working to save my soul; and I think I am working to save my soul; if my claims are unrecognized I will be forced into a business life—at least for a time. But I cannot believe I will fail.

"In the other case I hope to come back to Los Angeles. I will be able to resume my engagement in the autumn if I win the battle. This town has treated me fairly, appreciated what I have tried to do—above all, appreciated that I am serious.

"No, I cannot tell you the details of this fight; it would be unjust to well intentioned people. It will be enough when I am able to tell you I have succeeded."

The Belasco management regrets the necessity of Mr. Scott's leaving, as much as do the great number who have learned to appreciate his work.

LABOR UNIONS TO HAVE THEATRICAL BENEFITProceeds Will Be Given to Fund for Erection of New Temple

The labor unions of Los Angeles are preparing to give a theatrical performance at the Mason opera house next Saturday evening for the benefit of the labor temple. The professional end of the affair has been placed in competent hands, and a splendid program is now being arranged. Most of the theaters are furnishing artists and it will be practically a professional affair.

Ever since last Labor day the unions have been working on a project to erect a temple, to cost $75,000, and have purchased a valuable piece of property on Maple avenue, which, it is said, might now be sold for $35,000. The price paid was $19,500, but the purchase of land by Mr. Huntington from Los Angeles street to Maple avenue, half a block from the proposed temple, has greatly enhanced the value of adjacent holdings.

Labor day netted the temple project more than $1000, and since then an equal amount has been contributed through various sources. In addition to this, to date more than 20,000 shares of stock have been sold.

Those having the benefit in charge predict that every seat in the Mason will be occupied next Saturday night, as tickets are meeting with a ready sale.

RIDES WHEEL ONE MILE FOR EVERY YEAR OF HIS AGE

EDWARD B. WARMAN, WHO CELEBRATED HIS FIFTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY YESTERDAY

A fifty-eight mile sprint on a wheel with nothing for breakfast but wind pudding is rather an unusual feat for anyone, and for a man of 58, who takes this unique way of celebrating his natal day, the thing becomes even more unusual.

This is what Edward B. Warman did yesterday morning, as a means of proclaiming that he was, as he puts it, fifty-eight years young instead of fifty-eight years old.

Mr. Warman's celebration began at 8 o'clock yesterday with a spin of thirteen miles down South Main street and back; then out West Adams to Ocean Park, to Santa Monica, to Sawtelle, to the Soldiers' home and back to the city along the same road, making the whole run of fifty-eight miles in six hours.

Mr. Warman is not going in for speed, but for health. Wheel riding is one of the many ways he takes to run down health; and that the chase is successful one has only to look at the man himself to realize—a cheerful, vigorous, splendidly healthy individual, who appears half his actual age.

For thirty-seven years physical education has been Mr. Warman's study, and he has brought his science down to a fine point, steering his course, as he says, between the physical culture faddists on the one hand and the physical trainers—"another word for physical strainers"—on the other.

Mr. Warman is a writer for the Home Journal and for health magazines. This is his first birthday celebration in the neighborhood of Los Angeles. He is a native of Chicago.

Carpet Buying
Is a Very Serious Problem

It has come to be known that when your carpets and rugs come from Billington's there is never a reason for complaint or regret.

We exercise the same care in buying that we do in selling, and for that reason absolute reliance can be placed in this house.

We want to interest you especially today in the new goods now coming to us nearly every day.

You may not be able to be suited elsewhere, but we feel assured that, pattern, quality and price considered, if you favor yourself you will favor Billington's.

Why We Are Favored By Drapery Buyers

It's not a new thing for us to say that we have exclusive and late ideas in curtains and other hangings.

We will number you among Billington's patrons if you will inspect our stock and compare prices with others.

We don't want to be understood as being "cheap"—quite the contrary; our class of goods is of the medium and best grades. We carry none of the stuff that attracts people who want something for nothing. We seek only a reasonable profit on good goods that many others would charge you double for.
