Tells of "Fake Mediums"

Robert J. Hale delivered an address before the Liberal club last evening at Burbank hall, talking for his subject, "Fake Mediums." He told of the many exposures that have been made in Los Angeles and of secret work that is being carried on to run "fakirs" down.

Fell From Car

Fred Papperwell, a member of the Salvation Army, fell from an East Tenth street car yesterday afternoon, struck his head against the curbstone and now lies in the receiving hospital suffering from concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull.

Struck by Car

C. G. Werner, a real estate agent 53 years of age, was struck by a street car at Ninth and Valencia streets yesterday afternoon, receiving injuries to the extent of compound fractures of both legs below the knees. Werner, who lives at the New York hotel, was about to board the car and stood nearer the track than he intended.

Found Dead in Loft

William Cooper, formerly in the employ of the Wickersham stables, was found dead in the hay loft of the Snowden stables, 407 Aliso street, yesterday morning. Cooper, who was at one time connected with the fire department of San Francisco, was between 40 and 45 years of age. His body was removed to Pierce Bros. morgue, where an inquest will be held today. It is thought he died of heart failure.

STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY ACCOMPLISHES MUCH GOOD

Splendid Record Shown for First Season's Work Among Those in Need

The Strangers' Friend society has made a splendid record in its first season's work of befriending such strangers as have appealed to it for succor for various causes.

Considering the resources at the command of the society, a very large amount of good has been accomplished. More than four hundred cases have been registered during the season; thirty-six have been found employment, twenty-three have been directed to rooms, twenty-five sick strangers have been assisted, twenty-six have been assisted to lodging and meals, others have been supplied with clothing, medicine and assisted with loans by those whom the society interested; others have received legal advice and the balance assisted as each case required.

In no case has a fee been charged or has any commission been received by the society for any service or recommendation whatsoever.

The total receipts of the society up to date are $852.22. This is considered a small sum in comparison to the volume of work accomplished and is not adequate to warrant the continuance of the work unless the philanthropic citizens of Los Angeles go to the assistance of the society.

A rally of all interested will be held at Burbank hall Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, the event being the first annual dinner of the society. The proceeds will go toward the expenses of the work. After dinner there will be addresses and music, Judge Waldo York presiding.

The Revs. W. A. Lamb, J. H. Phillips, and Judge Curtis D. Wilbur and others will speak. Miss Florence Stratton will render violin selections; Ralph Henderson, clarinet solos; Miss York will recite and the Y. M. C. A. quartet will sing.

The ladies of the society are preparing a very tempting spread and look for a large attendance.

HOTEL GUEST SEEKS CITY OF SUNDAY SALOONS

William C. Clopton, a New Yorker who is staying at the Van Nuys, has decided that hereafter he will either cut Los Angeles altogether from the itinerary of his travels or else make a quick run to San Francisco and stay there over Sunday.

"Can you tell me where I can find a bar?" he asked of the clerk yesterday. "Plenty of them here, but they are not open on Sunday. Yes, our cafe is closed. We cannot sell mixed drinks today and if you want other liquors you will have to order a meal."

"Suppose I shall have to go over to Pasadena," said the New Yorker. "Same rule holds good over there."

"Can you get anything at the Os- brich farm?"

"Not a thing," replied the clerk, and then he smiled.

"All right. Let me know what time the first train leaves for San Francisco," said the guest with the dry lips, balking himself off.

GEORGE TICHENOR IN LOS ANGELES

MAN WHO UNEARTHED GRAFT OF FOUR SENATORS

GIVES UP DETECTIVE'S LIFE

Famous Sleuth Says He is Getting Too Old to Endure Hardships and Exposures of Profession

George N. Tichenor, the detective who was the central figure in the conviction of the four boodling senators of the last legislature, is at the Hollenbeck.

He has left the detective life behind him, on the plea that he is getting too old for the activities and exposures that make up the business of hunting down and punishing evildoers.

"There is not half so much in the business as the average person thinks," said Mr. Tichenor yesterday. "It is a slow, earnest grind to work out the details. Given the details and time to work them out, in the average case which comes to the detective, he should have no great trouble in working out the case. The newspaper given the details insists upon its men working out a case within twenty-four hours or at least a week. With us it is different. We have the time and we are expected to show results."

Has Sharp Features
Tichenor is not a large man. He is of medium height and his hair is gray. Dressed quietly and neatly he passes for a well-to-do business man rather than a man in the class of Sherlock Holmes. There is nothing remarkable about his features, excepting that they are strongly cut. He has a habit of speaking slowly and in a low tone of voice, as if he were afraid that some one were close by to overhear his conversation.

He does not talk about the cases in which he has been a participant in the hunting down of law-breakers.

"You will find them all in the files of the Pinkerton agency if you want them and if you are able to get a look at them," he says.

Then he mentioned a few of the more celebrated cases without giving the data.

"I was in the work for nine years. I do not know how I came to take it up, but I suppose I just drifted into it. Yes, I remember my first case, but the details are not for publication. For some years I was assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton agency at San Francisco. In that position I traveled through Alaska, Canada and down the Pacific coast into Mexico, besides working in the western mountain states and at one time or another visiting every city of prominence in the United States where the Pinkertons have agencies.

Selby Smelter Robbery
"Yes, the robbery at the Selby smelter of $298,000 several years ago by one of its employes had the appearance of developing into a hard case, but the man Winters was landed forty-eight hours after the theft. W. B. Sayers, B. F. Kimball and myself were sent out by the office on the investigation.

"Winters was a trusted employe of the smelter and worked in the silver room. He worked for weeks constructing a tunnel which ended underneath the safe, where he used a drill and a ratchet to make an opening.

"Shortly afterward, when a heavy consignment of bullion was received and which he had been awaiting, he made an entrance to the safe through his tunnel; was successful in his efforts and taking his ill-gotten gain he dropped it into the bay about three-quarters of a mile from the smelter.

"If Winters had not been a fool our chase would have been a long one. When we rounded up the employes of the smelter the next morning after the robbery Winters was the only one missing, and this directed suspicion to him. We searched his cabin and found a dark lantern and a shovel with earth clinging to it. An analysis of the dirt on the shovel and that in the tunnel showed both to have an identical composition.

"Winters in completing the robbery went over to see a woman with whom he was in love and who lived at San Rafael. He was arrested at her home and made a full confession. The amount stolen was recovered intact.

"No, I have never worn a disguise. I have never had to do so," he said, with a laugh, and with this sentence he candidly admitted that he was the inferior of Nicholas Carter, Old Sleuth and the others who are wont to become lightning artists in their pursuit of "Red Handed Ikes," "Terrible Bills" and other terrors.

IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

A Clinical Preparation That Positively Kills the Dandruff Germ.

A most important discovery has been made after a year's patient laboratory work aimed in a certain direction—it is Newbro's Herpicide, a preparation that prevents falling hair, and speedily and permanently eradicates dandruff. These evils are caused by a germ or parasite that burrows into the scalp, throwing up dandruff, as it seeks to sap the life of the hair at the root. There's no baldness without falling or thin hair, no thin hair without dandruff, and no dandruff if the germ is destroyed. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that will do the work. "Destroy the cause, you will remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

BIG 'NO-SALOON' RALLY IS HELD

'LOS ANGELES IN RUINS' IS MEETING'S SUBJECT

TWO THOUSAND ARE PRESENT

One Speaker Declares Liquor Dealers Are Merciless and un-American in Efforts to Stay Temperance Crusade

"Los Angeles in Ruins" was the subject chosen for the anti-saloon rally held in the First Methodist church yesterday afternoon. Despite the rain, more than 2000 enthusiasts gathered in the building to declare eternal war on the saloon and its influences.

W. H. Frost was the principal speaker, saying in part:

"The liquor men are holding up bogies, which they say are terrible, before the voters of Los Angeles, in their efforts to frighten the people into allowing the saloons to remain. All of these bogies are transparent to the intelligent citizen, however, and will not have the desired influence if every conscientious voter does his duty at the polls.

"They have raised a big pool of almighty dollars with which to fight this crusade. The names of the 5300 citizens who signed the anti-saloon petition have been copied and printed as a pamphlet. You will find these little books in every saloon. The bartenders show them to their customers and make vile and uncomplimentary remarks about the signers, but that cannot stop the crusade.

Speaks of Boycott

"These liquor men, in their vindictiveness, have even resorted to the un-American boycott to wreak their vengeance upon the men who signed this petition in answer to the dictates of their conscience. I know of one case where a friend of mine in public office signed the petition. The liquor politicians found his name there and they went to him saying, 'Look here, what does this mean? We will not stand it.' I am glad to tell you that my friend in answer said, 'Take my position if you can, but I will follow what my conscience dictates, and in this I stand with the mothers of this city in the protection of the boys and girls.'

"Another case has come to my notice. A banker is among those whose names appear upon that petition and, finding it there, a supporter of the liquor traffic called at the bank and curtly demanded his account, declaring that he would not have anything to do with a business house run upon such principles.

"Still another instance: A business man with large interests and many employes was approached by the liquor men and told that the name of one of his men had been found upon that petition, and that if he did not discharge the man immediately he would be boycotted and they would see that he would suffer sufficiently.

Says No Mercy is Shown

"This is the way they fight, mercilessly, for their business has taught them that to be merciful means that fewer dollars will be made and therefore they forget what the word mercy means."

"Many drinking men will vote the 'no-saloon' ticket when they go into the secret balloting booth," declared W. E. McVey, and he proceeded to relate instances in support of this statement.

"One of the best known sporting men in this section of the country came into my office the other day," he continued, "with a paper he wanted me to sign. It was a petition to the district attorney to delay the prosecution of a certain young man who had been led astray and who had become an embezzler.

"He told me the boy was a manly fellow, and he wanted to see him given a chance. I told him that under the circumstances I would be glad to sign the petition, but asked him if he would support the 'no-saloon' movement and thus save the boys before they get into the rapids. To my surprise he declared his intention of doing so and his willingness to support other reforms.
