

TOM OBERLE MUST LEAVE THE STAGE

HEALTH OF POPULAR ACTOR BROKEN

WILL RETURN TO ARIZONA

Well Known Member of Belasco Stock Company Suffering From a Tubercular Affection of the Throat

The local stage career of Tom Oberle, the popular actor of the Belasco theater stock company, is rapidly approaching an end.

At a consultation of physicians held Thursday it was determined that this capable and well known Thespian must relinquish his stage labors within a very few weeks.

Mr. Oberle will continue to appear in the Belasco bills for the coming four weeks, after which he will be compelled to sever his connection with the company.

As Bat entered the office, fire was flashing from the blue eyes that have looked without flinching into many a revolver hurling death toward him.

"I think," he began, "that this is a clear case of bunco."

Then he stopped short and gasped. Instead of the insurance agent he expected he was face to face with a pretty and charming girl.

"Beg pardon miss," Bat said hastily. "Charming day isn't it?"

"Pardon me, sir," she replied coldly. "I represent the company. What's this?"

Why, of course if you're shot it won't be an accident. It would be homicide or assault with deadly intent. I presume. Surely you see that, don't you?"

"I took my policy and hit the back trail," said Bat, sadly, yesterday. Of course it's a bunco, but what are you going to do when a little slip of a girl goes to you like that? It's a run for mine every time."

When the World reporter told Miss Carlson, the woman in the case, who it was that she had treated so cavalierly she nearly fell over.

"Was that Bat Masterson?" she cried. "The real Bat Masterson? That quiet gentleman? I wouldn't have spoken to him like that, for all the world!"

Special to The Herald. NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The great and only Bat Masterson has taken water—and from a girl! Alackaday!

No one in the west will believe it, for from the Cimarron country to Saskatchewan Bat is known as a tamer of wild men who has never yet backed away from anything that breathed.

Nevertheless he himself will vouch for the truth of this story.

When Mr. Masterson was in Chicago a few years ago he took out a $5000 accident insurance policy to oblige a good fellow, an agent who was a friend of his. As he was interested in a book at that time he gave his occupation as broker.

Having removed to New York in the past year and become a United States deputy marshal, Mr. Masterson mentioned that fact when he dropped in at the New York office of the company the other day to pay his premium.

"Won't make any difference," said the agent; "just leave the policy with me. I'll fix it."

"And what do you suppose I found when I got my policy back?" Mr. Masterson asked the World reporter.

"Some blamed cuss had carefully inserted a line reading: 'If the insured is shot while serving a warrant or in other marshal's duty the same shall not be accounted an accident, and the policy shall be void.' Now, wouldn't that make you think? I tell you these insurance companies are all alike, and I'm glad that some of 'em are getting theirs right now."

Mr. Masterson went back to the office with his policy to make his protest. And when B. M. makes a protest the person he addresses usually sits up and listens.

Special to The Herald. NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—With the survivors of 200 fighting Japanese monkeys on board, the entire complement of a dozen long-haired Chinese dogs dead, the Chinese monkey keeper, a suicide, a story to tell of trouble with a Russian man-of-war, not to mention a typhoon, into which it poked its nose, the British steamer Montrose from Yokohama, has just arrived.

The Montrose sailed from Yokohama three months ago, having on board in addition to a cargo of oriental stuffs, monkeys and dogs, and forty Japanese parrots.

The Montrose was proceeding through the canal on the morning of August 10, when suddenly there was an uproar on the upper deck amidships. Tokio managed to get out of his cage and liberated about 100 other monkeys. Then for a week there was pandemonium on the Montrose.

Members of the Chinese crew were objects of the first attack, and for days their life was made miserable. Their queues were pulled and their legs were bitten every time a Chinaman showed himself.

When the tormented ones tried to defend themselves the monkeys climbed into the rigging and grinningly awaited for their enemies to separate. It was a week before the monkeys were subdued.

When at last the decks and rigging were cleared of their presence, fifty had been killed, some of the Chinamen and others by jumping into the sea.

The day before the monkeys were subdued Hoy Sing, the monkey keeper, jumped overboard and was drowned.

The monkeys also were responsible for the loss of the dogs. The long hair of the latter made a splendid thing to hold on to, and so vigorous was the persecution of those unfortunates that every one was killed before the monkeys capitulated.

The Russian man of war incident occurred in the Gulf of Alden. The Russian ship sighted the Montrose and fired a shot across its bow. The Montrose stopped, exhibited its papers, and was allowed to proceed.

SODA FOUNT ROMANCE TERMINATES IN DIVORCE

Mrs. Sadie Turner Tires of Being on the Move and Is Released

Because, as she alleged, her husband had the habit of leaving his home and going to some distant part of the country without making any provision for her care, Mrs. Sadie Turner yesterday brought to a close the pretty romance of her short married career by securing a decree of divorce before Judge Gibbs of the superior court.

The couple were married at Ratona, N. M., seven years ago. The groom was an attendant at a soda fountain and his bride, a visitor in the town, first met him while he was serving her with a drink. Following the wedding, according to the story told by the young woman, her husband started on a series of rambles over the country.

He would leave her and go to another city and she would pawn some of her belongings to follow him.

This continued for several years, the man moving nearly a score of times during that period and the wife faithfully following.

Even when he was at home, according to the allegations of his wife, his company was not very desirable, as he would rarely be home at night.

He left his wife in Los Angeles about a year ago and later wrote to her telling her he had another little girl and that he could never be happy with her again.

Mlle. de Rosen, daughter of the Russian ambassador, when she makes her debut in society will receive from the czarina the badge and title of a titular maid of honor to her majesty. This is a distinction that falls to the share of all the unmarried daughters of Russian ambassadors abroad after they have "come out."
