

KILLED IN COLLISION

Many Persons Injured at St. Paul

Accident Due to Defective Air Brakes

Soo Line Passenger Train Struck by Great Western Engine at St. Paul Viaduct and Rolls Down Embankment

By Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 1.—The Soo Line passenger train from the east, leaving the Union Passenger station, collided with a Chicago Great Western fast stock train at the North street viaduct.

The force of the collision sent five of the passenger cars down a twenty-five-foot embankment. One passenger is dead and five were seriously injured, while a score or more were slightly bruised.

That no more were killed or injured is due to the fact that the train was empty, having discharged the greater number of its passengers at the union station here.

The dead: MRS. CLARA GOFF, Minneapolis. The seriously injured: Mrs. Du'ha, Minneapolis. Mrs. Thompson. H. S. Moore, Montreal. Mrs. Wilkinson, Minneapolis. Mr. Martin, Minneapolis.

Air Brakes Fail to Work

Of the injured there are six men and two women at the hospital. Of these it is feared two or three may die. Mr. Martin, who has a fractured skull, is in a critical condition.

Twenty were treated at the union depot by surgeons and nearly all of them were able to go to hotels or continue their journey to Minneapolis.

W. E. Haskell, who is among those slightly injured, formerly owned the Minneapolis Times, but is now connected with a Boston newspaper.

The direct cause of the accident was the failure of the airbrakes on the stock train to work. The Soo Line passenger train had just left the depot for Minneapolis and was crossing the Chicago Great Western tracks, about four blocks east of the station. The track at this point runs along a high embankment. The fast Great Western stock train coming along at a pretty good speed, struck the passenger train in the middle. The Pullman coaches were hurled over the embankment, landing upside down in a wrecked heap, twenty-five feet below.

The wreckage caught fire but the flames were promptly extinguished. A squad of police and all the hospital ambulances along with a large corps of surgeons were on the spot in a short time and the injured were quickly taken from the wreck to this city.

WRECKED STEAMER MAY BE SAFELY FLOATED

HOPE TO SAVE THE STRANDED ALAMEDA

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—There is a bare possibility that the steamer Alameda, which went on the rocks near Fort Point yesterday, may be saved. Capt. Metcalfe, the local representative of Lloyds, today made an examination of the stranded vessel and tonight cautiously admitted that there was some prospect of floating her.

Today the greater portion of the salvage freight was removed on lighters and brought into the city. The work is proceeding tonight. Ever since the wrecked steamer was stranded during the fog, the weather conditions have been favorable. The sea is smooth and the wind light. It is conceded that a change to severe weather would mean the immediate destruction of the steamer.

From the fact that water pours in and out of the hold with the changing of the tide it is thought that her bottom has been badly perforated. A diver will tomorrow make an examination of the extent of the damage done and then plans for floating the steamer will be put into effect. Thousands of persons visited the scene of the disaster.

DOGS INVERTED GANG OF THIEVES

TWENTY-ONE PROFESSIONALS IN THE CITY

Local Department Has That Number of Eastern Crooks of National Reputation Under Constant Surveillance

By Associated Press.

Twenty-one "yeggs" and cracksmen, positively identified by descriptions and photographs in the rogues' gallery, are in Los Angeles and everyone is known and closely watched by the police. Though unconscious of it, the knights of the "jimmie" and drill were shadowed all yesterday. Not a move was made by them but that some officer's eye was on them.

The police have been started at the large number of these clever criminals who have gathered within a short time in the city. From every part of the "yegg" these thugs and safe blowers have been coming to Los Angeles in small numbers. The cleverest of the eastern exodus seem to be making this city their headquarters.

Since the job at the Mathie Brewing company's plant, the police have been on the alert and after many secret conferences between the heads of the departments and their best sleuths, it has been decided that not the slightest effort shall be spared to rid the city of the human pest.

An officer famous in local police circles for his work in detecting criminals and yesterday:

"Yes, there are a great number of criminals gathered in Los Angeles. Today I saw twelve new arrivals in the 'yegg' colony. I have my eye on them and I don't think that another job like that at the Mathie Brewing company will occur right away.

"I do not care to say what means is being used by the department to cope with the 'yeggs' and cracksmen who seem to be gathering here, but I need not say more than that we are laying nets to catch them and although some of the clever ones think they are out of our game, they may find they are mistaken."

POLICE ARE ALERT

"So thoroughly are we organized against these crooks that I think we will land a large number soon on old jobs for which they have been wanted for sometime. Within a few days the Los Angeles department may be able to bring out some startling developments in this regard."

When questioned along this line, higher officials of the department merely smiled and remarked that they have nothing to say yet. They acknowledge that they are working on the cases but that they are doing it kept secret. Their plans for a large haul of "yeggs" seems to be developing rapidly, according to reliable advice.

Some of the petty burglaries bear the earmarks of having been done by clever criminals more used to picking up larger jobs. Though nothing has been given out by the department regarding these burglaries, it is learned that the police have a clew to the men implicated.

One bit of evidence that the police expect will lead to the capture of a gang of the most clever burglars and "yeggs" is an insignificant cigar stump. Three of these stumps have been found in houses after burglaries and in every instance it was the same brand of tobacco and bore the same teeth marks.

The latest addition to the burglaries is that of the Wedge saloon, owned by Pier at 722 North Main street. This place was entered about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. No money was found, but 500 cigars and two revolvers were taken. Entrance was effected by breaking down the rear door.

COWS EAT GIRLS' CLOTHES

Pretty Bathers Forced to Wait Until Farmer Brings Apparel From Home

Special to The Herald.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—While six young girls of Otterbein were disporting in a bathtub, bathing costumes, in the Washburn river yesterday a herd of hungry cows descended on an improvised dressing room which the girls had constructed of shawls on the river bank.

These were real hungry cows, and they were not content merely with grazing on the grass that fringed the bank. They plunged right into the dressing room and proceeded to make the place look as if it had been hit by a Kansas cyclone.

The girls were devoured, dainty lingerie were torn, straw hats were swallowed with one gulp, as if they were real hay, and not enough clothes were left to dress a ballet girl when the girls appeared and interrupted the feast.

Shrieks for help filled the air. A near-by farmer, hearing the outcry, ran up armed with a pitchfork, prepared to rescue some heroine from a road villain.

"Stand back!" cried the girls. "Don't you dare to come here!"

The girls plunged into the river and from there held a long distance conversation with the farmer.

He promptly drove off the cows and then he asked the girls to go about to their homes, where he got new clothes for them, and returned in time to avert the necessity of a bevy of mosquito-bitten lassies walking home in barrels.

"The president told me last night that Elsherg was not a candidate. The other name I have heard mentioned is that of James R. Sheffield."

The senator was asked if he had heard of the meeting between Odell and Woodruff, who Woodruff was said to have promised the Republican nomination for governor next year if he would make the run for mayor this year.

To this the senator replied that he had not said:

"It is a queer question whether Mr. Odell could guarantee that and even if he could whether he would keep the guarantee."

Seizing the telegraph pole and kicking it vigorously—"Beware the bouncer."

Holding up two fingers and then, three—"Not here, on your way."

And so on. Temple was locked up charged with disorderly conduct.
