

RADICALS LOSE BATTLE LAST NIGHT EFFORT WILL NOT BE MADE IN RUSSIA NOW

Conservatives Win in Council of Workmen—Moscow, Where Zemstvo Congress is in Session, Now Center of Interest

Members in the interior to respond to the call and the revolt of many of the better class of workmen here against the dictation of political agitators and walking delegates by no means represents the full measure of the real defeat of the strike movement.

Interest has now shifted to Moscow, where the Zemstvo congress opened yesterday. The members of the new party from all parts of the country have gone there to make a fight in the congress for a union of all the conservatives and liberal elements to hold up the hands of Count Witte, to condemn the present strike, to seek further political salvation through the doors opened by the manifesto, though it is neither expected nor desired that the constituting Democrats will ally their program with joining in the movement to aid in the restoration of tranquility.

It is expected that a sharp combat will develop with the large majority of the Zemstvo who are arrayed against the Socialists to continue the fight against the government to the bitter end. The failure of the strike has shown the country as a whole how little sympathy they have with Poland in her demand for complete autonomy.

NEGRO SUSPECT IS RELEASED Mose McLain, Arrested Pending Investigation of Murder Cries, is Liberated by Police

Mose McLain was set at liberty yesterday afternoon after having been held by the police pending the investigation of new clues to the Eva de la Craye murder mystery of August 17, 1903. Just what the police developed in their investigation of "Dancing Mose," as McLain is known, is implicated cannot be ascertained.

From information gained since the trial, it has been learned by the police that McLain assisted Pennington, who is believed guilty of the murder, in fitting off a dog's tail and smearing their hands and clothes with blood on the afternoon previous to the murder. Pennington, with several other negroes, were arrested at the time and before Police Judge Auldin on the charge of murder. Soon afterward Pennington left Los Angeles.

At the time of the murder the De la Craye woman was living with a man named Drouelin near what is now known as the Hoffman rooming house on North Main street. At the time it was established that the woman's name was De la Craye and that she had quarreled with a man in Marysville previous to joining Drouelin.

Evidence gained by the detectives is responsible for the theory of the police that a jealous lover who had quarreled with the woman in Marysville hired Pennington to commit the crime. Detective McKenzie said: "Since the murder I have had my eyes open and though nothing may come of my efforts I will have the satisfaction of knowing that I have done my duty. There were certain reasons why we could not hold McLain, but I firmly believe that he knows a great deal about it and might know more than we think. It is a good thing to rid the city of men like this negro and prevent further crime."

The police will work with renewed energy on the cause and arrests are expected to follow soon. They do not hold that it is necessary to make public their clues and consequently but little can be learned of the developments.

RETIRED FOR THE CANAL

FINAL REPORT IS EXPECTED ABOUT FIRST OF YEAR

Will Have Width at Bottom of 150 Feet, Except in Culebra Cut, Where It Will Be 200 Feet

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The board of consulting engineers of the Isthmian canal commission has decided to substitute Brussels for Paris as the meeting place of the foreign engineers. The reason for this change is that Brussels is more conveniently situated for several of the members. The American engineer who will go to Brussels with the documents to be signed has not yet been chosen. During this week a committee of three members of the board, with Gen. Davis as their chairman, will make a rough draft of the final report, which will then have to be worked out in detail and is expected to be ready about the end of December.

The sea level canal, which has been voted upon by the members, will have a width at the bottom of 150 feet except in the Culebra cut, where the width in the cut is necessary to allow two ships to pass each other safely between the high banks of the canal, which will be formed by the very deep excavation. The plan adopted by the board would make Limon bay one of the greatest harbors in the world. Almost through the middle of the bay a breakwater will be built and a shorter breakwater will be built from San Cristobal, which is American territory, thereby leaving Colon, which belongs to the Republic of Panama, outside of the American canal works. Under the plan adopted by the board, San Cristobal is expected to become the chief city on the Atlantic side of the canal and the promontory on which stands the statue of Columbus will be covered with office buildings, docks, coal stations and all the works necessary for an important harbor. The canal constructed by the French began at San Cristobal. It is now proposed by the board to build a short direct canal from Limon bay, thereby making the distance shorter a few hundred yards and also facilitating navigation and making it possible for ships to sail into the canal without having to make any difficult turns.

San Cristobal Breakwaters The breakwaters necessary for the formation of this harbor of San Cristobal will be an item of great expense. They were the subject of lengthy discussions in the meetings of the board. They would have been necessary, in case a lock canal had been chosen. On the Pacific side at Panama the plans as adopted yesterday are also being carried out by the French canal company. The French canal ends at La Boca, and it was found as one of the difficulties that the Rio Grande with its many branches crosses the canal, and in the rainy season inundates it and does great damage to the work already constructed by the French. Therefore it was decided that the canal should be built nearer to the city of Panama and should run between two hills, one called Sosa and the other the well-known Ancon. Ancon is the higher of the two. On it the American boys are building the isthmus. At this place the one lock, necessitated through the difference in the tides of the Atlantic and the Pacific, will be built. This lock, however, will not retard the progress of ships through those of the first place, ships coming from the Pacific will have to stop some time anyway to be visited by health officers and by civilian authorities and furthermore, during a large part of the day this lock will be entirely open, as the levels of both oceans will be nearly high. At the Panama side no plans have yet been made for breakwaters.

The plans for constructing a lock canal at thirty feet altitude were never discussed, and from the beginning the board was divided into groups of eight and five members, one in favor of sea level plan and the other in favor of a lock canal. A compromise plan was never brought up at any time. It can be authoritatively reiterated that none of the foreign delegates to the board came here with specific instructions from their governments. The members of the board came here at the bidding of the United States and their governments gave them a long leave of absence so that they might give their services to the country, sending them without any instructions whatever. They will leave Washington by next Sunday and stay a few days in New York before leaving for Europe. On Tuesday night, next, Gen. Davis, chairman of the board of consulting engineers, will entertain the foreign delegates at a farewell dinner at his home. The cost of the sea level canal is estimated by the engineers at about $230,000,000. Although this amount seems much larger than the amount necessary for the construction of a lock canal it is claimed by the advocates of the sea level canal to be in reality only slightly higher. It was pointed out in the meetings of the board that the lock canal would necessitate between thirty million and forty million dollars payment for the private grounds, and the lands belonging to the republic of Panama which would be inundated by the construction of a lock canal. As for the time it will take to construct the sea level canal several members of the board today expressed the opinion that the construction of the sea level canal will not really take so very much more time than that of a lock canal, and that if no unexpected difficulties are met with should not require more than two or three years additional. The majority of the engineers take the position that the building of a sea level canal should not take more than fifteen years.

CAPTURED AFTER WILD CHASE Women Accuse George Carson of Attempted Robbery and He is Arrested as He Runs Away After a wild chase west through an alley between Spring and Main streets at an early hour this morning, Patrolman J. J. Murphy arrested George Carson on the charge of attempting to rob Mrs. M. B. Adams of the Hotel Rosslyn while she was passing along Fifth street, in front of the Beaumont cafe.

Hearing screams, Murphy ran from Los Angeles street toward Spring street. He found a frightened group of women, and Mrs. Adams told Murphy that the man who had attempted to snatch her purse was running down the alley. Murphy ran down the alley and fired three shots before he overtook Carson. F. L. Carter of the Hotel Lexington was standing near by at the time and identified Carson. Carson in reality was found hiding in the alley and was arrested on suspicion of being connected with the attempted robbery.

SEEKS HER LOST SON Portland Woman Appeals to the Police After Consulting a Clairvoyant Acting on information received from a clairvoyant, Mrs. D. A. McGreggor wrote a letter, which was received yesterday by Chief of Police W. H. Anderson, asking him to assist her in the search for her son, F. L. Stewart, who has been missing from his home in Portland, Ore., since October 24.

After using every means known Mrs. McGreggor sought by her own efforts the frantic woman that her son was ill and without means in Los Angeles. As the last resort, the anxious mother confided the whole affair to the local chief of police.

Stewart is 19 years old and left his home, 1733 Whalen street, saying that he was going to visit relatives in Leland, Ore. No message came from the missing boy and investigation revealed that he had never reached Leland. Detectives have failed to trace the boy.

SEEKS HIS MISSING WIFE Charles Gray, a lineman in the employ of the Edison Electric company and living at Santa Monica, called at the local detective office last evening to report that his wife and five-year-old son, Charles, have been missing from home since Saturday morning.

In a frenzy of fear Gray spent the whole day searching the city for his wife. He told the officers that she had taken her baby and left for Los Angeles, after sending her two daughters, Mary, 5 and Ellen 7-years-old to the home of friends nearby.

The mother is in the habit of taking her son when coming to Los Angeles for shopping, but in the present manner that she bid her two daughters farewell and told them that she would return within a short time. Gray fears that the woman has met with an accident or foul play.

PATRON DISPLAYS REVOLVER Becoming angered over the bill presented for his dinner, Joe Carse pulled a gun and covered J. M. Engle, steward at the Palace restaurant, last evening, according to the statements of Engle and witnesses. For fully five minutes both men stood, Engle with his hands at his side and Carse with his revolver drawn, while the excited patrons of the cafe made their exit in a wild panic.

A waiter grappled with Carse and in an instant the report of a shot was heard. Before witnesses could see what had occurred the revolver was taken from Carse and Officer Edwards had him in custody. Carse denies that he attempted to pull his revolver until Engle reached for his "billy." Witnesses support the statements of their friends. Carse was locked up and Engle will swear to a complaint today, he says.

APPENDICITIS PATENT ESCAPES; DOESN'T LIKE HOSPITAL DIET

Because he did not like the food that was served to him from the diet kitchen in the county hospital, Frank Chapman, who lives on North Broadway, decided that he would not have appendicitis, even though he was in a critical condition at the time he arrived at the decision.

He caused a troublesome half day Saturday for the physicians and nurses at the hospital by mysteriously disappearing from the ward in which he had spent three days. The physicians started a search for the missing patient as soon as they found he was not in his bed.

The day of the disappearance was the day set for an operation on the sick man, and consequently the doctors expected at every minute to be notified of his death on the street some place when their search was not rewarded. In the afternoon when it was thought the man must already be dead and each physician was playing the Alphonse and Gaston act to settle the blame of the escape, the telephone bell in the office rang. A doctor at the other end asked for Dr. Blansy.

"You don't feed me on bread and milk, I want you to know," said the man at the other end. "Who is this?" "This is Chapman, the appendicitis patient, and you will not feed me any more bread and milk." Then the receiver was hung up and the astonished physician wondered who had played a joke on him. An investigation showed that it was Chapman who had called up on the telephone and that he had recovered from the ailment in some mysterious manner since his escape. The diet that he complained of is the regulation diet that is served to appendicitis patients when they are in a serious condition as Chapman was. The doctors are at present wondering if bread and milk will cure appendicitis, for it seems certain that it cured Chapman in just three days. The sick man was not mistreated in any manner but in accordance with the treatment for his ailment was subjected to a diet of liquid foods. The diet was absolutely necessary in the treatment. When explained, the escape was very simple. Chapman arose before any one else and after dressing himself walked out of the front door of the hospital. The man, however, has not been explained. Chapman was in a critical condition the night before he made his escape and was hardly able to sit up in bed. The next morning his condition was so improved that he was able to walk and he is still well.

HUNDREDS WEEP FOR COUNTRYMEN JEWISH MEETING PRESENTS IMPRESSIVE SCENE

Recital of Wrongs and Sufferings Inflicted Upon Their Brethren Moves Vast Audience to Tears

Strange and impressive was the spectacle of 500 Jews sobbing in their grief over the slaughter of their kindred in Russia. In the large assemblage last night at Beth Israel synagogue to give tongue to their sorrow at the wrongs done to their brothers were men, white haired, young men and women, but the common sorrow by which they were drawn knew no age nor sex and the most venerable of the elders wept in company with children too young to realize their grief.

One of the impassioned speeches called to stir within the hearts of those present a full understanding of the outrages perpetrated upon their countrymen was made by George N. Black, secretary of B'nai B'rith congregation. He said in part: "When lives of Christian missionaries are taken by some savage tribe the civilized world rises and justifies its demand that reparation be made and the offenders be punished. But when in a so-called civilized country hundreds of thousands of innocent lives are taken, homes destroyed, fathers put to the sword and made to serve as human torches do the nations cry for vengeance on that nation? No. They say that no action can be taken to remedy the domestic conditions of a friendly nation."

"The diabolical fanaticism of the Greek orthodox church thus masks itself under the pretense of religion and makes martyrs of thousands of innocent men."

"The nations should do to Russia what the United States did to Spain and cry, 'Stop this carnival of blood-thirstiness, this greed for innocent lives.' But aid is refused.

"Even the worst and most sordid criminals are not put to horrible and strange tortures. What crimes have these mothers of families, little babes and helpless children committed that they should be made into human torches to light the scenes of blood and death which are enacted this very moment?"

"Their crime is that they will not abandon the religion of their fathers. The Greek church says 'Profess or die.' And our people, your brothers and mine, are being butchered by the human fiends who wear the uniforms of the Russian empire."

"Let us, brothers, be thankful that our lines have been cast in a country in which such acts are impossible and in which every man is at liberty to think as he will. But, in the midst of our thankfulness do not let us forget our suffering and dying brothers and sisters who are being tortured in Russia now."

A song in the mother tongue was given by Rev. L. Levy at the close of the address, in which the plaintive mercy on our kindmen," was reiterated almost in every line.

Rabbi Isidore Myers delivered a memorial sermon. He moved the audience to deepest grief by his portrayal of the wrongs suffered by the Jews in Russia and urged that a united Jewish demand for justice be made.

Prayers for the dead followed and the service closed with Kaddish, or closing supplication, by the congregation.

Falls Into an Open Ditch While riding south on Grand avenue between Eleventh and Twelfth streets last evening, S. W. Cozard of 829 West Seventh street was hurled from his horse and slightly injured. Mr. Cozard says his horse fell into a wide ditch unprotected by lights or railing, had been left by careless workmen. Cozard complained to the police and officers were detailed to erect protections. Cozard says that the ditch extended at right angles with the road and half way across it. He will also file a complaint today, according to his statement.

GERMAN CRUISER VISITS CALIFORNIA

HUNDREDS OF SIGHTSEERS GO ABOARD

Trim Little Falke Casts Anchor Inside the Big Breakwater—Courteous Officers Receive Many Guests

The great attraction for several thousand people of Los Angeles and the coast cities Sunday in the harbor at San Pedro was the presence of German warship Falke.

The Falke is a thoroughly equipped and well manned sea warrior of the small cruiser type, about the build of the third class cruisers of the American navy. The Falke, in command of Capt. Ammann, cast anchor inside the breakwater at San Pedro on Saturday morning, immediately upon arriving from San Francisco, where the ship has been at anchor for six weeks. The stay in the harbor will probably be only a few days, when the Falke will steam away for San Diego and Panama, where half the crew will be changed, the other half taking the cars at Panama for Colon, whence they will board a mail steamer for Germany. The crew will be reinforced by a detachment of the Kaiser's guards on board the remainder of the cruise in foreign waters.

Although the notice was brief, so great was the desire of fellow countrymen to tread the decks of the German warship that all of the launches in the San Pedro harbor were required to transport the crowds to the ship. Launch after launch loaded to the guards cut through the water, beginning early in the forenoon and still more were coming at 4 o'clock. The boat was thronged from stem to stern and all were cordially received by the officers, sailors and marines, everybody being given a glass of beer and a shot of the rifles, the engines in the hold and the electric equipment.

Mascots Are Popular The Germans among the visitors probably enjoyed the trip more than the Americans, for they were able to converse with the sailors and obtain information that served to add interest to the visit.

"Charley" and "Mary," two cub bears 7 months old that the crew had purchased at Genoa, Italy, and a chattering monkey plucked from the tropics, the mascots of the ship, were very much in evidence during the day and served to amuse and entertain the visitors, especially the ladies.

The amber fluid in bottles with the Frisco labels flowed freely in the mess rooms below and good fellowship prevailed among sailors and visitors. The Falke is a cruiser of 1700 tons, 27-foot beam and 110 feet in length. The cruiser was built at the imperial navy yard at Danzig, Germany, and launched in 1891. The ship is out for a three years' cruise in foreign waters, with seven months of the cruise in the North and South America, and has but recently returned from a trip in Alaskan waters. It is not known when the ship will return to Kiel. Beyond the trip to Panama and around Cape Horn there is no knowledge of the course of the remainder of the journey.

Will Attend Banquet The former commander of the ship, Capt. Behnke, was relieved at San Francisco few days ago by Capt. Ammann, who accompanied by Second Officer Nieden, will leave for the continent by rail from New York to take charge of the cruiser. Capt. Behnke has returned to Germany.

The officers of the cruiser anticipate a very pleasant stay at San Pedro, and they are looking forward with much pleasure to the courtesy that will be extended by the Pacific Electric company and the chamber of commerce of Los Angeles. The banquet at the Angelus Tuesday evening will be the principal feature of entertainment for the representatives of Emperor William.

The principal officers of the Falke are: Capt. Ammann, commander; first officer, Bendemann; second officer, Nieden; third officer, Schrader; Lieutenants, Ormann and Collison; chief engineer, Marx; surgeon, Seiff; paymaster, Lipmann. Also eight principal officers and 138 sailors and marines. The Falke is the first German warship to cast anchor in the San Pedro harbor. Some months ago the Italian warship Umbria visited the harbor, and one other warship, a British battleship, entered the harbor during the extended stay of the Spanish-American war, when nobody seemed to know just where Cervera's fleet was, though it was generally supposed to be headed for Santiago harbor.

Epulose Stampeded At all events it is related that the arrival of the British warship at San Pedro caused universal alarm and sent everybody running from their homes to the canyons and mesas. The fright continued for an entire day, and only one man, a Captain Somebody, managed to get out on the wharf, and with a 22-caliber revolver defy the whole Spanish nation.

Instead of doing any mischief the commander of the ship sent his purser San Pedro to state that the ship was out of food, and every pound of beef and pork, all of the beans and cheese, butter and bread on sale, together with every case of bottled beer to be had, was purchased and placed on board the vessel. The ship was in the harbor but twenty-four hours, but in that brief time business boomed as never before in the harbor city. The officers of the Falke assert that the harbor of San Pedro is one of the finest that they have visited on their tour, and they inquired with much interest about the extensive plans of the government for the building of the breakwater.

The Herald representative gave to the officers a copy of the telegram published Sunday detailing the disaster that befell a German torpedo boat in the bay at Kiel, the result of a collision with the cruiser Undine, when one officer and thirty-two men were drowned. Second Officer Nieden had served on a sister boat of the torpedo vessel and was very much affected on reading the telegram, though he did not know any member of the crew.
