AT THE THEATERS

The performance of Broadhurst's farcical success "Why Smith Left Home" at the Belasco theater tonight will take on additional interest from the fact that George H. Broadhurst, the author, will be in attendance and also because George W. Barnum will make his reappearance in his original role of Count von Guggenheim...

Mr. Broadhurst is in Los Angeles for the purpose of completing a play for E. S. Willard, the noted English actor, whose recent plays have been of British product and have failed to meet with popular approval...

Grand "Honest Hearts" opened yesterday afternoon at the Grand theater. Of the honesty of the hearts in question there can be no doubt, only the honesty becomes a question of time.

When the bold saucy villain makes threatening motions toward the slight and girlish heroine up leaps the hero from some dark corner and confounds the wicked man in the most approved manner.

For a girl raised in the wilds of Kentucky, Miss Alma Hearn, as Marty, "dad's only girl," has a surprising command of modern slang, but otherwise the complete ingenueness is faithfully sustained.

"Honest Hearts" is well staged and beyond a few incompetents in the cast is well presented. Julian Derrick as Joshua Schoolcraft, "a triffin' boy," lives up to the reputation given him in the program with remarkable fidelity...

The old-fashioned Virginia reel was given with enthusiastic fervor and it can truthfully be said of all the parts that they were given in a manner far from base.

Tom Ellison, the lover of the wildflower, Marty, was not above the ordinary, but as the main requirements of the part are that the hero shall be handsome and a good poseur, he does all that is required of him.

Next week "Buster Brown" will be the attraction at the Grand, and, according to the statements of the advance agent, it is above the average for that house.

Fischer's Kelley-Massey company of comedians will present its latest musical farce "Wanted, a Wife," at Fischer's theater this week. This company has made a most excellent impression with its work at this house...

Novelty Benito, the well known violin virtuoso, will be a feature of the vaudeville bill at the Novelty this week. Benito is well known on the concert stage and will no doubt prove a feature of the big bill this week...

Burbank "The Judge and the Jury" drew two more crowded houses at the opening of the third week of its run yesterday. The players have long since become letter perfect in their roles and they give a smooth performance of the western play.

PERSONAL Mr. and Mrs. S. Spear of Galeburg, Ill., are at the Lankershim hotel and will remain in Los Angeles during the winter. Mr. Spear is the owner of the Illinois hotel at Galeburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Strange and Miss B. strange and E. A. Reice of Orange, N. J., are guests at the Angelus hotel.

DRAWS LESSON FROM SUFFERING

SAYS SORROWS MARK HISTORY OF PROGRESS

Rev. Stephen A. Northrop Touches a Sympathetic Chord in the Hearts of His Hearers at the First Baptist Church

Rev. Stephen A. Northrop, who filled the pulpit of the First Baptist church yesterday morning, struck a responsive chord in the hearts of his hearers in his sermon on the necessity and grandeur of "Personal Suffering."

The large church was filled to its capacity by an interested congregation, many of whom were former friends of the popular clergyman. It is generally understood that Dr. Northrop will be called to the pastorate of the local church, which meets with the approval of the members.

No signs of the former stormy scenes so recently enacted within this church were present yesterday, and Dr. Northrop in his opening prayer asked for Divine guidance in the affairs of the church and that any personal feeling might be extinguished for the welfare of the church.

Dr. Northrop took his text from Romans, viii., 17, and spoke in a clear and distinct voice, with a forcefulness and rapidity that was hard to follow at times. He possessed the art of interesting his hearers from the first and keeps them keyed up to his theme throughout the discourse, a player, as it were, upon the human heart strings.

Flower Marks Place of Blood Dr. Northrop said in part: "We are told that at one time there was a celebrated battle in Scotland. No monument stands to mark this great battle, but we are told there is a little flower, never known to bloom anywhere else, that blooms on this soil, which was bathed in the blood of Scottish heroes. The blood of the church springs from the seed planted by the martyrs."

"It is personal suffering that I wish to speak of today. I speak to you older ones, you who have gone through the conflict, perhaps persecution and sorrow. The problem of suffering in the world is even more of a problem than that of sin. 'Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.'"

"So universal is suffering that even to paganism it seemed to stand forth as a law. The Gospel takes a sublime view of suffering and gives it a high distinction, raising it to the level of an educational power and teaches us to treat it with an awful, but submissive, respect."

Taught Lesson of Suffering "Jesus prayed that his disciple might be with him to see his glory. Where was he? Where were his followers that they might behold his glory, inspired by suffering? It was not on the Mount of Transfiguration or Mount of Olives, but in the dark valley of Gethsemane, in the shade of the old olive trees. When he was forsaken by all we hear the reproach, 'Could you not wait with me?'"

"Let us take this lesson to ourselves. You know your personal experiences. We are able to respond to the test from which the twelve shrunk. We can stand on the heights, but can we stand in the dark valleys? Have you had a Gethsemane?"

"We are good workers in the toil and victory, but can we stand the call to suffering not to do but to endure? Christian character shows forth not when the skies are blue, but when the heavens scowl and the storm lowers, and there is no music but that which the heart makes for itself. Men and women are broken by failure and turn sour by the ferment of trouble."

Progress Marked by Suffering "What swells the census of suicides but that moral lack that cannot face trouble? Cowards who have basked in the sunshine. Coward or imbecile is every man who rushes out of this world unbidden."

"There is a process by which God chastens a noble nature, and that is always by adversity. Every history has its exalted and great men. One day at St. Helena balances the tyranny of a Napoleon, and Columbus is greater in chains at the foot of the Spanish throne than a mighty king."

"National progress comes the same way. America was not born on a downy bed but on Plymouth rock. Every footstep of advance has been moistened by blood and suffering."

"What truths were those that Garibaldi uttered when he talked to his soldiers? 'You shall have food, conflict, cold, hunger, nakedness, long marches, battles, wounds and death; all these, but Italy shall be free.'"

"I look down the vista of the ages. You know all the heroes and heroes of the faith. Men who lie in unnumbered graves, whose ashes are blown by the four winds—sons of sorrow, all, but a cloud of witnesses."

from his kin and friends in the east and is on the verge of ruin. "Perhaps there are some of you here with the sin of passion or of drink. I do not blame you. You are born with this sin. I would to God you could get rid of it. Run! Get up into the chariot of salvation!"

PREACHER PROPHECIES BROTHERHOOD OF MAN SAYS THERE SHALL BE HOMES FOR ALL

Frank DeWitt Talmage Delivers eloquent Sermon on Benefits Mankind Derives From Inventions for Production of Necessities of Life

Blessings brought to humanity through the agency of inventions was the subject upon which Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage addressed his hearers at the First Presbyterian church yesterday. The text was from Ecclesiastes, viii., 29: "They Have Sought Out Many Inventions."

The preacher said in part: "Once when studying a picture painted by Byam Shaw, the famous young English artist, I was deeply impressed with the inscription beneath the painting: 'So this only have I found that God hath made men upright, but they have sought out many inventions.'"

"Never did these Solomonic words burn themselves into my mind and heart more deeply than when I saw them in the brilliant colors of Byam Shaw's strange, and yet powerful and startling picture."

"But when studying that picture I asked myself this question: 'Do all modern inventions really make man wretched and miserable, as King Solomon implies? Did King Solomon himself mean that all modern inventions were bad? Of course the greater opportunities of life, which come through the revolving wheels of machinery and the concentration of capital, do naturally offer greater opportunities for wicked men to do evil; but are all great inventions agents of evil?'"

"No," I answered. "A greater opportunity of life offers greater evils for wicked men, so greater opportunities of machinery and inventions afford greater opportunities of good for good men. Thus on this Sabbath preceding our national Thanksgiving day, I will catalogue some of the blessings which, in a good sense, come to good men from the sewing machine, the railroad, the factory, the telephone, the typewriter, the printing press, and from all the other inventions that have made the past century the most remarkable, in a scientific sense, of all the ages."

"Some people marvel at the mechanism which makes it possible for the farmer to sow and reap fields of wheat hundreds and thousands of acres wide, where their ancestors had only a few acres to a farm. 'Tis true we must gaze in awe at the wonderful possibilities of the modern farm, through the miracles of modern machinery. Last summer, while riding through the country, I saw a great machine going over the prairie, where once the farmer went swinging his scythe. This marvelous machine was called 'A Combined Harvester.'"

A gentleman once possessed a valuable sporting dog which was extremely clever in the retrieving of dead and wounded game. It had, in fact, never been known to lose a bird when brought down by the gun. The owner, however, was a remarkably bad shot, and one day, on firing both barrels hastily at a rabbit which ran unexpectedly across his path, he heard a mournful howl. The next moment his dog appeared, carrying a black object in his mouth, and laid it carefully at his master's feet. The animal had retrieved his own tail.—London Globe.

URGES YOUNG MEN TO ACTIVITY Dr. Northrop Speaks of "Christianity on the Run"

A stirring appeal to the young men to be up and doing something toward saving the souls of their fellow men was made by Dr. Stephen A. Northrop at a mass meeting held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the Masonic temple. The subject was "Christianity on the Run."

Dr. Northrop held his audience in very close attention while exhorting them to be alive to the everyday needs of the young men who have come to Los Angeles from the far east, and rejecting incidents of how the souls of young men have been saved that have come under his own personal observation.

He told the story of a man who had lost his wife and felt the need of sympathy more than anything else upon earth. Not receiving it from his fellow men he turned to the church. The sermon he heard was upon molecules and Darwinian theories and like topics, and he did not get the longest-for sympathy. The man had failed to receive the message of Jesus to the broken heart because the minister was too much taken up with earthly topics. Dr. Northrop then exhorted the young men to carry this helpful sympathy to those who suffer.
